FEATHERS from the Duster

By The Overtime Editor

SNOWBOUND, that nostalgic old poem about being indoors in winter, may have been a classic in its day. Nowadays there is so much desire to go places that few can relax and enjoy the comfort of not having to go and do anything. The calls on your time are seldom as urgent as they seem and once the initial refusal is made to brave the storm for some unimportant errand it becomes easier to take a storm as a blessing in disguise. Just too bad the last TV football game has been played this year. Last Sunday was a most relaxing day.

THE HERALD CATS, Jocko and Sabu are extremists when it comes to weather conditions. The snow and ice outside is something they take with firm resolve—they absolutely refuse to go outdoors! A brief peek out the door and they shake their feet at the mere thought of puting them into anything so wet and cold. A perfect excuse for staying by the closest source of heat and sleeping, sleeping, and catching a few cat-naps.

They were in a bit of trouble by way of suspicion for a few days until it was discovered that those scattered wet spots were from the snow kicked off feet of humans. This solved, their behavior marks are still A-1.

WE ARE GOING to miss Joey's Cafe around town. A small place with few pretensions of grandeur, Joey's always dispensed a feeling of being at home among friends. A cup of coffee was the amount you could drink, food was the kind you would expect at home and no one asked for caviar. You could get a potato without gravy, have the peas left off the plate in favor of a more desired tid-bit. For the regular customer every order was custom built to his specifications and it was here the "Edgar Special" was built for Ed Monrad and became a regular feature. It was a result of indicision which ended with "give me a little of each" of the day's entrees. Of such things are built the charm of the small eating place in the small town. As in so many cases the lady in the kitchen never became "Ma" Allen. Too young at heart—she was Joey to everybody. J. D. and the Allen girls added their bit to the light-hearted and informal atmosphere. Could be that someday you just won't hardly find these kind any more.

Liquor Arrest Follows Juvenile Robbery Case

Margaret Landsau, also known as Peggy Simpson, of this city, was arrested last Saturday evening on a charge of furnishing intoxicating beverages to minors. She was fined $250 with $150 suspended, and chose to serve out the fine in the county jail.

The arrest was made on evidence that alcoholic beverages were obtained there by the two juveniles who broke into the Cascade Supply and Concrete Department Store last week before the burglary

The boys were questioned in the juvenile court and later released to their parents. One, up for a third offense, will have a hearing on Monday of next week. The other's case is still under consideration.

Punch Board Tax Is Turned In For 1961

The apparent discrepancy in the collection of tax fees on punch boards in Concrete, discovered at the last council meeting, was cleared up this week by Marshal Fred Bianchini. The council had found that no tax fees had been turned in during the past year. Marshal Bianchini also made the embarassing discovery that he had not noticed the passage of time and had forgotten to make his report and returns as usual.

Checking with the mayor, the marshall had his records brought up to date and the amount turned into the town treasury was about normal up to October. For the balance of the year no collections were made as Marshal Bianchini reported that conditions did not seem to warrant strict enforcement of the licensing ordinance.

A full report of the matter will be made to the council at the next meeting as promised, Mayor Peterson has stated.

Local Women Bowlers Complete First Schedule

The first half of the women's bowling league schedule for the upper valley was closed last week with Hornbeck Bros. team in the lead with 139½ points. Now the teams will start over and winners of first and second halfs will play off for first place at the end of the season.

In the last session Mary George was high with a 152, and also held a 166 for high game of the first half. She had the high individual series of 406, but Barbara Haussler had 428 for the top series of the half.

The league average has climbed steadily since the girls started in the league and several players are now 30 or more points over the first averages.

The second half starts January 26th and an eighth team may be added if there are enough interested. Contact Mrs. Harold Allen or Mrs. Colin Thomson.

This Friday, Jan. 19th, a number ber of the women who wish to bowl more will be forming another league to bowl on the alternate Friday mornings.

SNOW ADDS TO FUN—
Boy Scouts Make Camping Trip To Upper Baker

Eight Boy Scouts from Troop 74 of Concrete had an enjoyable trip to Sulphide Creek on the Upper Baker River this past weekend. The trip started from Concrete early Saturday morning in most favorable weather. The cars were parked near the Upper Baker bridge and the three and a quarter mile hike to Sulphide Creek was undertaken. Walking was not too difficult because of the frozen snow. Two scouts observed a black bear still up and around and all of the fellows were able to see the spawning salmon in the beaver ponds. Five of the scouts with one of the leaders arrived at Sulphide Creek in less than two hours with the rest of the group not too far behind.

Camp was set up and a wood supply from the old log jams piled up for the evening. Warming fires were started and quickly adapted to meet the requirements of a cooking fire. At this time Mt. Shuksan was showing with all its majestic features but was soon hidden in darkness. The campfire that night was an enjoyable time with singing, stories and an initiation taking place.

The night slowly passed away for a few of the scouts but sped by for most. Morning came with the weather conditons having taken an abrupt change. A heavy snow was falling with about three inches of fresh snow already on the ground by daylight. By the time breakfast was cooked, camps taken down, and the packs all ready to go, a total of about eight inches of snow had fallen. The trip out to the road was made in good time despite the adverse walking conditions and everyone reached the road by 1 p.m. The pre-arranged use of a four wheeled drive truck in spite of bad weather was a welcome sight. The arrival of three extra trucks in anticipation of possible trouble were also greatly appreciated.

The end of a very worthwhile trip was soon at an end. The boys had a good time and if any of them were asked if they would do it over again the answers in about all cases would be 'yes.' The eight scouts making the trip were: Tom Stokes, Steve Arnold, Leslie Gross, Dana Hornbeck, Paul Davis, Otis Allen, Bill Hornbeck and Ray Johnson. Larry Smith, John Phillips, and Frank Olson also went on the camp out. All concerned with the camp out wish to thank Art Kales, Lawrence and Leonard Hornbeck, Volley Reed, and Norman Hornbeck for their help on Sunday afternoon.

SKAGIT STEELHEADING HOT IN PAST WEEK

The Skagit river, famed all over the nation as one of the top steelhead fishing streams, brought a big blob of publicity again this past week as the cold weather dropped the river level to ideal angling conditon, and the best catches of the year so far resulted.

Don't think the fishermen were not watching for the break. The game department checked 692 anglers last Thursday and Friday and among them they had 202 steelhead. Fishing continued over the weekend at a high level of catch-per-fisherman.

Some big fish are turning up. Hugh McDaniel of Burlington landed a 23½ pounder; Halp Conner of Sedro-Woolley boated one 20½; and Don Pope of this city brought in one weighing 21 pounds.

The Sauk river was also in good shape with a fair percentage of fish caught by those trying that popular stream.

● TWO ON NEXT JURY

The next jury panel for Skagit county will go to work on February 28, so the task of selecting the panel list is now under way. On the first call for fourty-four citizens only two were chosen from the upper valley and these were Robert Johnson and Walter Jungblom, both of the Birdsview area.

"OLYMPIA REPORTER"

By C. E. Johns

A major activity of the Legislature's interim Joint Fact-Finding Committee on Highways, Streets and Bridges during 1962, and in particular two of its subcommittees will be the formulation of a package of bills intended to reduce the number of traffic deaths and injuries on the state's highways with a resultant reduction in economic losses.

The final count for 1961 showed that 572 people lost their lives on the highways last year. Many times that number were injured. The economic losses mounted into millions of dollars.

Invitations were sent out last week to 19 citizens of the state interested in various aspects of traffic safety, asking them to serve as members of an advisory committee on the study of needed legislation. Joining in issuing the invitations were Sen. Nat Washington, of Ephrata, chairman of the interim Joint Fact-Finding committee, Sen. Al Henry of White Salmon, and Rep. Joe Beierlein, of Auburn. Sen. Henry is chairman of the interim committee's subcommittee on highway safety, and Rep. Beierlein is chairman of the highway committee in the house of representatives and chairman of the subcommittee of the interim group dealing with the state license department and motor vehicle affairs.

Present expectations are that the larger advisory committee will

Joey's Cafe Purchased And Closed For Good

Joey's, the little cafe on the sunny side of the street which has been operated here off and on for a number of years and since February of 1960 by J. D. and Joey Allen was closed permanently last week. The business, building and fixtures were purchased by Rudy Johnson, owner of the Kit Carson Cafe.

Mr. Johnson stated that he had purchased the cafe to eliminate the competition between the two, and will sell the fixtures and restaurant equipment and turn the building into apartments.

The Kit Carson Cafe has been operated for the past few years by Franklin James but Mr. Johnson still retains the majority interest in the property.

She also leaves three brothers, all residing in Wisconsin. Mrs. Boyd was born in that state July 21, 1900.

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at the Lemley Mortuary in Sedro-Woolley and interrment was made at the Hawthorne Lawn Memorial Park in Mt. Vernon.

Mrs. Boyd was a member and active in the Concrete Community Bible Church and other local organizations during her years in this community.

Huck Witham Loses In Justice Court Defense

Huck Witham of Marblemount defended himself unsucessfully in the local court last Friday evening on charges of illegal fishing in the Skagit river at Marblemount. It was another of the "local citizen against the game dept. rulings". Outcome—after an hour a a half of argument—guilty of the offense.

Witham maintained that he was not fishing when seen by the game wardens, but merely untangling a line by lagging a cedar stick down stream. The statement by the game men that he ran when he saw them coming, and hid the pole, was a clincher for the prosecution.

Huck was fined $75 with $50 suspended and paid the balance of $25 and costs.

MISS JOHNSON TO WED

EDNA LEA JOHNSON

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Johnson of Marblemount announce the engagement of their daughter, Edna Lea, to Larry D. Orrell, Naval Officer, Radarman, 3rd. class. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Orrell of Longmont, Colorado.

Hospital Panel At PTA Tuesday

In a joint meeting Monday night the Upper Skagit and Burlington Hospital District commissioners met to further discuss their plans for a new and modern hospital to be located between Sedro-Woolley and Burlington and eventually replace the old hospital in each of the two cities.

The discussion covered all the various phases of financing and details of organization for the joint venture. Charles Lampson, administrator of the Memorial hospital, was chosen as laison man between the two districts in coordinating activites.

The group is now in the process of reviewing the list of accredited hospital architects. The first step toward building will, of course, be determining the course of action on financing and once this is determined the architect will be the next matter of consideration.

In order to acquaint the upper valley people with plans and progress and to answer all questions regarding the present Memorial hospital, Commissioner Fred Shular will speak Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the Concrete P. T. A. He will be aided by a panel of men interested in the hospital situation, who will be ready to answer questions in regard to the problem.

On the panel will be Dr. William Monzingo; Memoral Hospital Board member Chas. Dwelley; Tasker Robinette, present Anacortes hospital administrator who helped on the recent survey made for the valley hospital district. Other members of the district board and the hospital board may also be present.

The meeting will be held in the high school cafeteria, starting at 8:00 P. M.

Car Overturns On Icy Road Below Birdsview

While the snow and ice has been bothersome to the exent that any number cars have had to be pulled or pushed from places where they skidded; so far only one serious accident has been recorded by the state patrol and this one caused damage only to the car.

The accident occured Sunday on Highway 16 near the Gar Green place below Birdsview when Harry R. Worrell of Everett totalled out his 1950 Chevrolet when it went out of control on the slippery road. The car was westbound, slid off into the ditch and rolled over on its top.

Two New Citizens At Marblemount Now

Among the new citizens appearing for naturalization papers in the Skagit superior court yesterday were Mrs. Barbara Witham and Mrs. Thelma Rickner of Marblemount. Mrs. Witham is the wife of Edwyn Witham and comes from Great Britain. Mrs. Rickner, wife of Dell Rickner, comes from Canada.

There were four others listed in yesterday's hearing, one from Norway, one from Netherlands, one from Canada and the fourth from Spain.

Driver Freezes Fingers On 'Ice Box Road' Run

Kenneth Williams, local truck driver who has been hauling wheat from Montana to Seattle over the famed "ice box road" in Montana, found the truth of the stories to be exact last Tuesday when the fuel pump on his truck froze up and he had to spend several hours before being towed into Great Falls. It was 25 degrees below zero when the truck stalled and in the process of releasing air brakes, etc. for towing he was out in the weather long enough to freeze both hands and seven toes.

He was hospitalized in Great Falls for two days before being released to come home.

The "ice box road" is part of Montana's new central highway system and is a short cut from Missoula to Great Falls over Rogers Pass. It passes within a mile of the nation's coldest spot, which in January of 1954 set a record of 69.7° below zero!

After last week's article about the burglary of two local stores by juveniles we had a criticism voiced that our story "didn't make the kids look very good." Of course we realized that it wasn't exactly what the person meant and the facts bore out our explanation of the point in question so the conversation was entirely amicable. Since then the words keep coming back and it seems that maybe this kind of thinking is becoming an unconscious rationalization of youthful crime and perhaps in a great measure adding to our juvenile problems. We keep asking ourself—is it necessary to make thieves under 18 years of age "look good" in the public eye? Is it better to blame the police who chase a stolen car for the wreck that ultimately ends the chase, and excuse the 'teen age criminal who needlessly appropriated $2,000 or more worth of somebody else's property? Is it right to guarantee a person old enough to break laws freedom from any sort of publicity that might deter him from ever being ashamed of himself for his actions? Coddling in custody takes away all sense of guilt and places the boy in a position of feeling that someone else must be responsible for making him a naughty lad. No wonder crimes that would send a man to prison turn to pranks for those a few years less in experience. Until the lawbreaker of tender years realizes that he alone is responsible for making youth of American "look good" in juvenile court, we see no chance of a slackening in the growing avalanche of juvenile crime that worries police, courts and prison superintendents. The path is one of sheltered anonimity. Let's face it.

Politics is now beginning to play a major role in all questions. Votes are the curse of the elected minority.

Our county namesake is out with the hatchet this week with a front page full of 'winter in Concrete' with our big three inches of snow piled up to look like a mid-west blizzard. We don't brag about trifles—when we want a snow picture we run the one where the street clearings were piled ten feet high in the middle of Main street. Some years ago, of course.

Spring, with all its compensations, still cannot match winter as a reviver of enthusiasm for summer.

We note with interest that a beggar in Indian saved enough to become a lawmaker and is working on better laws for beggars. If he increases his natural talent he could be an ideal diplomat.

One fallacy in the clamor for preservation of all things in a natural state for beauty alone is the grim truth that people can't live on scenery. —And that those who cry the loudest have already made their livelihood out of the same wilderness they now seek to save. It's a good thing America was not discovered by bird watchers.

The season for filing initiative measures intended for the 1962 election ballot opened January 8th., and two were filed on the first day. First was the legislative redistricting measure filed by the Washington State League of Women voters. Soon after came filing of an initiative by the Citizens Tax Revolt Committee, Spokane, which seeks to repeal two 1961 measures which levied almost $50,000,000 in new taxes now being collected. On January 9, a third initiative was filed which would create a new profession of "denturist" and license technicians to make, fit and repair "false teeth". Glenn D. Kennedy, president of the Washington Society of Denturists who filed the third initiative, said the licensing of denturists would break a monopoly now held by dentists and enable denturists to sell false teeth at half their present cost.

How many more initiatives will be filed is problematical as this is written. One that looks fairly certain is a "right to vote" measure which would force public utility districts to require a vote of the electors before they could acquire private power utilities by condemnation or negotiation.

Also probable are two others. One initiative would propose elimination of title insurance companies. Another would create a State Fisheries Commission, patterned along the lines of the State Game Commission.

Considered possible but not probable are an initative to repeal the Sunday Blue Laws, and one to authorize trading stamps without the present prohibitive annual license fee. If one measure is filed by the "wets" to repeal the Sunday Blue Laws, the "drys" threaten another which would spell out a prohibition against the sale of liquor on Sunday.

Washington was ranked first among 15 states providing medical assistance for the aged last October, the federal Welfare Department reported last week. Washington paid an average of $325.28 for each of 487 recipients last October, compared with a $295.91 average payment in New York, the next ranked state. The average for the 15 states and the Virgin Islands was $207.14 with a low of $16.63 per recipient in Maryland. The State Department of Public Assistance said the average was high in Washington because only cases involving major expenses are handled. Some states also help aged persons meet smaller medical bills.

Washington citizens received more than $340,700,000 last year in federal funds for health, education, economic security and other benefits. The figures were released by the San Francisco regional office of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Of the total, $87,600,000 went for welfare benefits, $220,000,000 for social security payments, $14,500,000 for education and the rest came under other programs.

It would cost approximately $87,000,000 to dig a 58-mile canal from Puget Sound to Grays Harbor, it was estimated here by Clarence B. Shain, former state highway director, now an engineer with the State Department of Conservation. Shain gave the estimate recently to the Canal Commission created to look into the feasibility of the project by the 1961 Legislature.

Shain said the waterway which would leave the Sound at Olympia would cost more than three times as much as an estimate made in 1933. The proposed big ditch would be 14 feet from Eld Inlet of Puget Sound, through Black Lake to the Chehalis River, and then to Grays Harbor.

A study of the possibility of a canal from Puget Sound to Hood Canal also is under way, but a cost estimate has not been developed. A third waterway also is being considered. It would extend 74 miles from Puget Sound to the Columbia River. It would skirt Chehalis and Centralia and reach the Cowlitz River at Vader.

The national and state policy of passing the responsibility for civilian defense and survival to local government does not seem to be getting far. Gov. Rosellini indicated last week that the job may be taken back and "coordinated" at the state level. There also evidently will be federal help for state and local government in construction and stocking of community shelters to supplement the basement or back yard family shelter.

With the campaign year around the corner, we do not look for any investigation of the State Liquor Control Board to develop. Such an investigation was suggested by State Sen. Albert Thompson, (R) of Bellevue, after the Bellevue liquor store was moved to a new location where Thompson said the rent was $400 a month higher than in the former location. Don G. Abel, Liquor Board chairman, said he would welcome an investigation of all phases of state liquor operations, including political interference with the board's operations.

However, Rep. John L. O'Brien, (D) of Seattle, Council chairman, promptly said the Council sees no need for a full scale investigation of the State Liquor Control Board.

From the standpoint of political effects we think O'Brien is entirely right. There always are attempts to bring influence to bear on any operation such as the $90,000,000 annual operation of the Liquor Control Board. A lot of political ammunition would be manufactured in a liquor inquiry, but on its merits we doubt that anything constructive would be developed. Incidentally, Rep. O'Brien has been mentioned as a possible gubernatorial candidate in 1964, but hardly if Rosellini tosses his hat in the ring.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Since my arrival in Germany on the 17th. of February, 1961, I have been receiving the Concrete Herald from home.

Now, rather than have them send me their paper, which they probably would like to keep, I would like to have a year's subscription myself.

I really enjoy reading about the people and places that I know so well. A person never realizes how much he likes his home until he is away for a long while.

I am stationed in Aschaffenburg, about twenty miles south-west of Frankfurt. My address is: Sp 4 David L. Gustafson— Hq and Hq Co. 9th. Engr. Bn (C)— APO 162, New York, New York.

Sincerely

I would like to say hello to all of my friends in and around the Concrete area and wish you all a Happy New Year.

To the High School graduates of the class of 42. Would it be possible to organize a get-together the latter part of June of this year. I think it would be real nice to talk over old times and celebrate the 20th anniversary of "that noble event, graduation". I am sure many of us plan to be in the Concrete area since the World's Fair is to be in Seattle this year. Well, here's hoping.

I am teaching mathematics in Escondido, my wife is busy with a Brownie troop, Judy is having a glorious time in the third grade. Families can be fun and very, very busy.

Again, Best Wishes to every one and hope to hear of some of you soon.

Sincerely,
Clyde Howard

PICTURE OF A FELLOW WHO DIDN'T BELIEVE IN WINTER . . .

In spite of the fine record of the past few years—we can have winter in the upper valley. And this week may not be the end of it. In fact, February has always been the month for snow and cold.

So, take a tip from the weather man and get your car ready for the worst—and you won't be caught. Special attention to batteries, and radiator. Snow tires and chains are also worth a second thought.

A backwoodsman who weighed over 400 pound was eager to reduce his weight, as it was difficult for him to get around. A neighbor recommended certain pills at the drug store. The fat man went to town and bought a box of the pills and took most of them.

About three months later the druggist asked the neighbor if the pills had reduced the fat man's weight.

"Shore did," replied the neighbor. "Him and the coffin together jest weighed 90 pounds."

Work of Forest Service Men Is Year Around Job On Baker

Winter, as well as summer, is a busy time for the Forest Service personnel.This article will acquaint you with the winter projects being undertaken by the personnel of the Mount Baker National Forest.

Multiple use demonstration area plan is one of the projects being worked on by the District Ranger. This area will attempt to point out to the public our muliple use policies in action on the Baker River District. This demonstration area is a part of the information and education plan and program for the district.

Employee performance and evaluation reports is another one of the projects under way by the Ranger. Financial control reports must also be completed. These reports show the money needed to adequately manage the Baker River District during the next fiscal year.

The Timber Management Assistant has three work projects which must be completed during the winter months. (1) He must make timber sale layout plans for the 1962 field season. (2) Sale appraisals must be completed for timber which is to be sold in the spring. The third and biggest project is the district timber management plan. This is an overall plan describing timber harvesting, reforestation, timber stand improvement, erosion control, and watershed management plans for the district.

Among the projects undertaken by the District Engineer are construction and maintenance reports, project reports and forms for fiscal year 1963, cost estimates for logger built roads, and correction of road and trail maps. Also, budget plans must be made for money to be spent in the next fiscal year. This winter the District Engineer is also attending four weeks of training school in the Regional Office at Portland, Oregon.

The major winter projects of the District Assistant are fire prevention plans, fire suppression plans, sign plans, safety plans, and trail maintenance plans.

Typing takes up most of the District Clerks time. Many reports must be typed each winter. Most of these reports are written by the other district personnel. She must also prepare time reports, requisitions and purchase orders, as well as maintaining manuals, handbooks and files.

Projects engaged in by the Post Sale Assistant are, (1) writing the Baker Lake recreation plan. This plan consists of using the data obtained from the National Forests Outdoor Recreation Resources Review, which projects our needs to the year 2000. The plan will spell out just what we must develop to meet the needs for 1965, 1970, 1975, and 2000 in the Baker Lake area. (2) Planning reforestation projects for the fiscal year 1963. These projects include planting, seeding, brush and rodent control. Also, maintaining of records for work completed during the past year. (3) Plans to establish more study units for the determination of the effect of deer on their habitat and our reforestation.

The Timber Sales Officer is working on four projects this winter. (1) The yearly accomplishment report must be written. This is a report on the volume of timber cut, acres cut, and the value of the timber cut during the past year. This report also shows the volume, and acres of timber yet to be cut on the present open sales. (2) Reports must be written on the plans for the next fiscal year concerning finances of the Timber Sales Officer and the District Scaler. (3) Logging and fire protection plans must also be made for the coming logging season. (4) Winter field work consists of timber stand improvement work and sale administration when weather conditions permit.

Some of the winter projects of the Small Sale Assistant are timber sale appraisals and rate redeterminations, small sale plans, and the drawing of maps for small sales to be sold in the future. Field work consists of small sales administration and layout. Also, timber stand improvement work when the weather permits.

Winter projects of the Pre-sale Assistant are large sale appraisals, reappraisals, rate redeterminations, and the drawing of sale maps. Some of the work on the five year management and action plan is also being done by the Pre-sale Assistant. Winter field projects are sale layout and timber stand improvement work when the weather permits.

Much of the districts road design work is being done by the Location Engineer. Six roads are being designed this winter.

Progress reports, road design, and the drawing of right-of-way plats are projects of the Resident Engineer. Field work consists of road inspections.

Preliminary design work is the winter project of the Pre-construction Engineer. Field work will consist of construction staking if the weather permits.

Equipment and building maintenance work at the Koma Kulshan Guard Station is the winter responsibility of the Headquarters Fireman.

When not scaling, the District Scaler does maintenance work on the scaling platform and assists in the maintenance work at the Koma Kulshan Guard Station.

The Assistant District Ranger position was not mentioned because the position is vacant at the present time.

The work projects listed above are the major undertakings on the district. Work is also being done on many smaller jobs.

Following is a list of the personnel filling each of the positions discussed. It is interesting to note that in the last six years the number of permanent personnel on the Baker River District has more than doubled.

District Ranger, Maurice Barber; Timber Management Assistant, Steve Zitkovich; District Engineer, Albert Frisell; District Assistant, Clarence McGuire; District Clerk, Wanda Eldridge; Post Sale Assistant, David Jay; Timber Sales Officer, Gary Flanik; Small Sales Assistant, Frank Olson; Pre-Sale Assistant, Robert Tucker; Location Engineer, Bert Doran; Resident Engineer, Roy Stidham; Pre-Construction Engineer, Bill Olson; Headquarters Fireman, Volley Reed; District Scaler, Shubert Hunter.

SIN, PSYCHOLOGY and CONFESSION

Doctor Mowrer, of the University of Illinois, read a paper last year at the meeting of the American Psychological Association. In that paper on the concept of sin in psychology, Doctor Mowrer said:

"I see no alternative but to turn again to the old, painful, but also promising possibility, that man is pre-eminently a social creature, or in a theological phrase, a child of God."

He pointed out the inconsistency between theory and fact, in the Freudian theory of psychology, which "abandoned belief in right and wrong, virtue and sin." Doctor Mowrer stated that under Freudian doctrine a patient is emotionally disturbed, not because of having done anything wrong, but because he has been unnecessarily inhibiting his impulses. This, he says, leads to the conclusion that the patient has been too good. Doctor Mowrer continues:

"By Freudian theory one would expect neurotic and psychotic individuals to have led saintly, exemplary lives. The fact is that they typically exhibit lives that have been disorderly and dishonest in an extreme degree."

Another psychologist stated that emotional disturbances can result from a sense of sin, if the individual is not able to rid himself of the feeling of guilt. For peace of mind, a person must be able to get rid of the guilt for offenses against his Creator.

Jesus Christ, Who is God, and the Creator of human nature, knows that we need a means to cope with the guilt of sin. He supplied the remedy through the sacrament of penance, administered through confession. He gave the Church the power to forgive or refuse to forgive sins:

"Receive the Holy Spirit, whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them; and whose sins you shall retain, they are retained."

When Christ gave His Apostles and their successors this authority to forgive an individual's sins against God, He also provided a means to give the individual peace of mind. The individual unburdens himself by confessing privately to Christ's duly authorized representative; and the individual receives assurance that his guilt is forgiven.

Many outside of the Catholic fold are restudying the subject of sacramental confession. Last year in Germany, a Lutheran convention discussed this subject, and more than two thousand Lutherans went to confession, to ministers in two churches designated for that purpose. Pastor Hans Jacob, of Bensheim, stated:

"For ninety per cent of them confession was a new experience and all of them felt it opened a new way to God."

You are invited to write for a free booklet explaining the sacrament of penance and confession, as it has been administered by Christ's authorized ministers in the Catholic Church, from the time of the Apostles to the present day. Ask for free pamphlet number 46.

Community Church Challenge

ARE YOU A FOOL?

There are few of us but whose feathers would bristle if this term were to be applied to us, but there are many fools walking around town today. The trouble is, we might not even be aware of it.

The Bible Says, "The fool has said in his heart there is no God." Few of us deny with our lips the existence of God, but in the Bible the term heart does not denote the organ that pumps blood to various parts of the body. It carries rather the thought of center of living or where we live. So a fool, according to the Bible is one who says by the way he lives there is no God. This is fine . . . if there is no God. But if there is a God, and by lip admission of most of us there is, then there must be some responsibility to Him in the way we live.

At the Community Church we try to teach the Bible in such a way as to bring a person into a vital relationship to God, through Jesus Christ. Christ can change our living so that we no longer are a "fool" but a well adjusted, happy person acknowledging God by the way we live. This is really living.
