It's a booster; here's the hammer. By united effort we can make Concrete one of the best towns in the county. Try it.

THE CONCRETE HERALD

The upper Skagit valley is the land of opportunity. Its resources are unlimited, but publicity and development are needed.

...G FORCE OF ...NCRETE SCHOOL RETAINED BY BOARD

...NGHAM TENDERS RES-...NATION—OTHERS ARE RE-...ED FOR ANOTHER TERM ...W BOARD IS ORGANIZED.

The new board of directors of the ...crete school was organized at a ...ting held Monday afternoon by the ...ction of Geo. W. White as chairman ...f the board and Geo. A. Campbell as ...k. Mrs. Elma Bagnell is the third ...mber. Mr. White succeeds Mr. ...mpbell as chairman, and Mr. ...mpbell succeeds G. L. Leonard, ...ho has been clerk of the board for ...bout fifteen years.

The first business to be taken up ...y the new board was the considera...ion of teachers for the next school ...ear starting in September. Supt. ...lvin L. Bolton announced that Miss ...ona Bingham, commercial teacher ...n the high school, had tendered her ...esignation, effective at the close of ...he present school year, as she plan...ed to take up work elsewhere, and ...ecommended that the balance of the ...eaching force be offered contracts ...or next year.

There was no discussion on the ...uestion of the re-election of the ...eachers, all the directors being in ...avor of retaining the entire force, ...he only question being on the sal...ries to be offered. It was decided ...o give all teachers a raise in salary ...according to the salary schedule of ...the board. Supt. Bolton was not up ...for re-election, as he signed a con...ract for two years last year. The ...teachers who have been tendered con...racts for next term are: High school ...—Miss Elsie Chandler, principal; ...Ronald M. Hill, and Miss Hildegrade ...Wahlberg. Grade school—Mrs. Sel...ma V. Lindbeck, principal; A. B. ...Wiseman, Joseph J. Baxter, Miss ...Louise M. Lang; Miss Ebba Natter...lund; Miss Myra Huestis, and Miss ...Mary Funk.

It is hoped that a teacher can be ...secured to fill the vacancy in the ...commercial department in the high ...school before the end of the present ...term. It may also be found neces...sary to employ another teacher in ...the grades, if the attendance shows ...an increase for next year, but it is ...likely that this will not be decided ...until about the time school opens. ...The present corps of teachers is one ...of the strongest in the history of the ...school, and it is hoped that all will ...decide to remain in Concrete for the ...coming year.

...RETE'S COMMUNITY CLUB ...ILL MEET NEXT WEDNESDAY

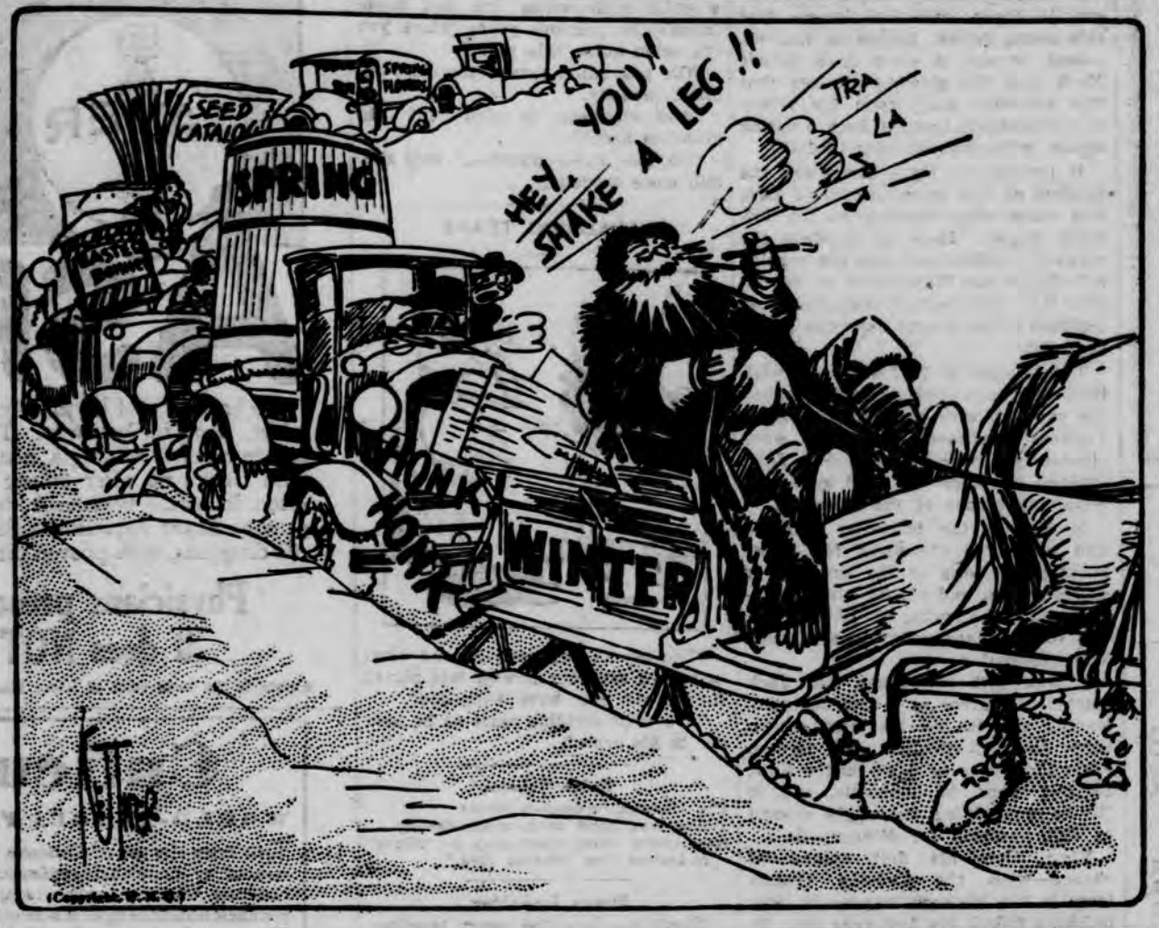
The monthly general meeting of ...the Women's Community club, which ...would regularly fall on April 10, has ...been advanced one week and will be ...held on Wednesday afternoon, April ...17. All members are urged to remem...ber the change in date and to turn ...out for this meeting, as there is con...siderable business to be transacted. ...The meeting will be held in the club ...room in the Concrete Library ...building.

The meetings of the Study and the ...Dramatic groups, which were to have ...been held next Wednesday, have been ...postponed to Wednesday, April 10.

...RLINGTON CHOIR WILL ...VE CONCERT AT CHURCH

The choir of the Methodist church ...of Burlington will present a full con...cert of Easter music at the Mt. Bak...er Presbyterian church next Thurs...day evening, April 4. There will also ...be a reader along to add variety to ...the program. The Burlington choir ...is noted for the quality of its music ...and it is hoped there will be a large ...audience out to enjoy the concert. ...There will be no admission charge. ...A collection will be taken to de...fray expenses and for local church ...work.

Holding Up the Parade



HUGO BAUMAN CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Last Saturday evening was an event in Rockport, the occasion being the third annual birthday party given by Hugo Baumon, one of the pioneers of the community and one of the leading citizens of Skagit county. His first party was "pulled" two years ago in honor of his sixtieth birthday, and then he announced that he would give a party for his friends each year thereafter. The one Saturday was to commemorate his sixty-second anniversary, and the affair was fully as enjoyable as the two preceding parties.

There were about 250 men present, as the annual party is strictly a "stag" affair, and every one who was there reports the best kind of a time. Every guest was made to feel at home and was royally entertained, Hugo being an ideal host, and no "wallflowers" are permitted at his parties. The feature of the evening was a splendid lunch, served by the host, at which all had a chance to enjoyed a real meal. The tables in the dining room of the hotel were loaded with good things to eat, and the only order was "Help yourself". The center of interest at the feed was several huge birthday cakes that had been baked for Mr. Bauman by friends in Rockport. He was also presented with a number of valuable birthday presents, in which he took great pride. There were many from here who attended the party and who are looking forward to his fourth annual party next March.

VAN HORN GRADERS WIN COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

Although it was not generally known, a basketball game for the championship of Skagit county was played in the local gym last Monday evening. The title at stake was the grade school championship of the county and the competing teams were the Van Horn and Samish grade schools. As the game had not been advertised, there was only a small crowd out, but thegame was a good one and was worthy of a much larger attendance. The boys from Van Horn are now the champs for a year, as they won the game, 24 to 21. The score indicates how close was the game, and it was hard fought all the way, with the teams about evenly matched. With the grade champions at Van Horn and the Class B high school champions at Concrete, the upper valley made a good record in basketball during the past season.

CONCRETE YOUNG MAN IS MARRIED IN BURLINGTON

B. B. Blackwood, who has been employed at the Superior plant for the past few years, was married last Friday to Miss Harriett Stewart of Asilomar, Calif. The wedding ceremony was performed in Burlington by Rev. Mr. Oates, in the presence of a few intimate friends, after which Mr. and Mrs. Blackwood left for a short wedding trip. They returned to Concrete the first of the week and will make their home here. Mr. Blackwood is a popular young man of the city and has a host of friends here to wish him a long and happy married lift. The bride is a new comer in the city, but the few that have met her say that she is a charming young lady and she will be given a warm welcome in Concrete.

BENEFIT FOR BAND AT THEATER NEXT TUESDAY

The next of a series of monthly benefit performances for the Mt Shuksan band, being given at the Concrete Theater, will be on next Tuesday evening, April 2. The photoplay for the evening features Flash, a new dog star, and which is entirely different from the usual dog pictures. The band will also give a concert, playing a number of new selections, and there will be some added numbers that will be enjoyed by those who come. As the band needs funds to pay the expenses of new music and other incidentals, and as the organization receives half of the proceeds of the show, it is hoped that all who are interested in the success of the band will turn out, so that the theater may be filled for this performance.

REX CONNALLY IS GIVEN LONG SENTENCE BY COURT

Rex Connally, who was convicted of murder in the second degree early this month for the killing of Merlin Leonard in this city last December, was brought before Judge George A. Joiner in the Superior Court Monday for sentence. Judge Joiner sentenced Connally to serve from twelve to fifteen years in the state penitentiary at Walla Walla. A motion for a new trial, presented by Willard L. Brickey, counsel for Connally, was denied, after which Mr. Brickey stated that he would take an appeal to the state supreme court.

GREAT AVIATION PICTURE IS FEATURE AT THEATER

The big feature on the program at the Concrete theater for the coming week is "Wings", an epic of the American air service, which will be shown on Sunday and Monday nights. This is a drama of life in the army air force in France during the world war, with a thrilling plot, some sensational flying scenes, including some very realistic battles in the air. The cast includes such well known stars as "Buddy" Rogers, Richard Arlen, Gary Cooper, Clara Bow and Jobyna Ralston. This photoplay is included in all lists of the ten best pictures of the past year.

On Saturday night George Bancroft and Evelyn Brent are featured in "The Showdown", an exciting drama of the Mexican oil field. It is the story of five men and one woman in the Mexican jungle, and there are plenty of exciting situations and some unexpected situations.

On Tuesday and Wednesday nights Flash, one of the newer of the canine stars, will be seen in "Under the Black Eagle". It is another story of the world war, featuring the fighting between the Germans and the Russians on the Russian border. Ralph Forbes plays the part of a German officer and Marceline Day has the part of a war nurse, while Flash is an army dog and manages to save them both during the action of the picture. There are some strong war scenes, a pleasing love story, and some wonderful acting by the dog. On Tuesday night comes the monthly benefit for the Mt. Shuksan band, with music by the band as an added attraction.

On Thursday and Friday nights John Gilbert and Alma Rubens head a strong cast in "The Mask of the Devil". It is a romantic drama of life among the aristocracy of modern Vienna with an interesting story and the picture is one that all will enjoy. Theodore Roberts, who died recently, has a leading role in this picture, one of the last in which he took part.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Congregational meeting of the Mt. Baker Presbyterian church will be held Wednesday evening, April 3rd, in the church basement. Those coming are asked to be there by 6:30, and to bring lunch for all whom they bring; get in touch with Mrs. C. M. Bagnell and Mrs. F. H. Roller, who will suggest regarding the eats. After the meal the reports for the year now closing will be read and plans for the coming year will be considered.

POWER COMPANY TO DOUBLE CAPACITY OF RENTON PLANT

NEW UNIT TO BE ADDED AT ONCE TO HUGE STEAM PLANT NEAR SEATTLE—TOTAL COST TO BE OVER $7,000,000.

Involving an additional expenditure of $2,500,000.00, the Puget Sound Power & Light company will proceed immediately with the construction of a second unit of the Shuffleton Steam plant on the shore of Lake Washington, near Renton, according to an official announcement by Mr. Harry B. Sewall, manager of the Northern district.

The effect of this will be, of course, to increase the generating capacity of the plant from 50,000 horsepower to 100,000 horsepower and the investment from $4,500,000 to $7,000,000. The investment per horsepower will be reduced from $90 to $70 for the reason that an enormous amount of construction—intake and discharge tunnels, railroad yard, wharf, machine and electric shops, dredging, and so forth—included in the cost of the first unit will now be common to both and to any further units that may later be decided upon.

The decision to proceed with the construction of a second unit at this time means that the steel and concrete building will be increased in size from 150 feet in length to about 225 feet, the width being 170 feet and the height above the ground floor 85 feet.

In this building will be housed the three largest steam boilers and the two largest turbines in the Northwest, each boiler being 31 feet square by 60 feet long and each of the two turbines having a capacity of 50,000 horsepower. Each boiler, when operating at capacity, will be capable of evaporating 330,000 pounds of water per hour, a grand total of 3,000,000 gallons daily, or sufficient to supply the needs of a city of 30,000 people.

In addition to this 60,000 gallons of water will pass through the condensors a minute when the plant is operating at full capacity. This is at the rate of more than 86,000,000 gallons a day as compared with an average consumption by the entire city of Seattle of only 49,000,000 gallons daily.

This tremendous usage of water has necessitated the construction of an intake tunnel 850 feet in length and a discharge tunned 1800 feet in length, each tunnel being lined with concrete and having an inside measurement of six by nine feet.

Power from this plant will be delivered at a load center to be constructed on the company's high tension transmission system where the largest switching station in the Northwest is to be constructed and into which will be directed the power output of all the major hydro-electric and steam generating plants for distribution to points of demand.

The construction contracts have been awarded to the Stone & Webster Engineering corporation and are being executed under direction of W. D. Shannon, who was engineer in charge of the Baker River hydro-electric plant and many other large undertakings on behalf of the company. Many former Concrete residents are employed on the Renton construction, including many of the foremen who helped build the Baker river project.

CONCRETE MAN INJURED IN UNUSUAL ACCIDENT

Leonard Kellar, who resides on Capitol Hill, was painfully injured in an unusual accident Monday afternoon. He was riding in the rear of the Superior truck driven by Carl Lundin, sitting on a box, and in going down the Aldridge street hill he was jolted off the truck when it struck the rough places near the foot of the hill. He struck on his shoulders, breaking his collar bone and being badly bruised.

WEATHER DELAYS PLANS FOR EARLY START IN BASEBALL

NO CHANCE TO PRACTICE DURING WEEK—HIGH SCHOOL IS SCHEDULED FOR GAME WITH HAMILTON FOR TOMORROW.

Last week the weather was favorable and the baseball fans were planning for an early start for the various teams of the city for the season, but this week all plans for practice were wrecked by continuous rains, and the fans have had to be content to remain at home and read baseball news in the papers. Manager Collins of the Concrete town team had a turnout for preliminary practice called for Monday night, but the field was a sea of mud and water, so all who came out went to the city hall, where a "skull practice" was held and plans for the season talked over. A number of the veterans were out, and a large number of new prospects who wanted to show their skill in hopes of making the team this year. No date has been set for the next turnout, but it will be held as soon as possible after the rain stops and the field has a chance to dry out.

Early indications are that Concrete will have a strong team for the coming season, probably the best for some years. Practically all the regulars on the 1928 team are expected to turn out, and with the large number of new players who will be trying out, there seems to be a good chance for the manager to pick his players, and he will naturally pick those who make the best showing for the various positions.

It is almost certain that the City League will be organized again this year with at least three teams in the field, and possibly four. A meeting will likely be called as soon as the weather gets better so regular practice can be held, with the schedule starting around May 1. This league put up some interesting games last season, and even better games are anticipated this year.

The high school turned out for baseball several afternoons last week and then had to suspend practice on account of wet grounds. The opening game of the season is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, with the Hamilton high school nine provinding the opposition, but at this time it seems doubtful if the game can be played. As neither team has had a chance to get in any practice, it is not likely that there will be much classy baseball played, if the weather permits any playing at all. The high school team hopes to be able to play a game each week until the close of school, but it is likely that about half the games will be cancelled on account of weather conditions. The school has prospects for a fine team and it is hoped that the boys will be able to show what they can do against some of the other schools of the county.

MRS. ROBT. BRYDON DIES AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Robert Brydon, better known here by her maiden name of Eloise Bronson, passed away at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bronson, in east Concrete early this morning from pulmonary tuberculosis, after an illness of about a year. For the past six months she had been taking treatments in various hospitals without any benefit to health, and for the past few months she has been at the home of her parents, growing gradually weaker until death came to end her suffering this morning.

Funeral services will be held in the Higley chapel in Sedro-Woolley Saturday forenoon at 10 o'clock, after which the body will be sent to Seattle for burial. It is expected that many friends and neighbors from this city will attend the services.

Obituary will be published in next week's issue of this paper.

Starts Gridiron Plans for 1929

AFTER two months spent on the Pacific coast, where he discussed football with many well known coaches and authorities, Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern has returned to Evanston to map his 1929 campaign. In their Big Ten warfare next fall, the Wildcats will be called upon to meet Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois, Ohio State and Indiana. Notre Dame will play at Dyche stadium in the season's final, November 23.

As the first move in preparing to meet such a stiff schedule Hanley plans to open spring football training the latter part of the month. The first workouts will be held indoors and will consist of light setting-up drills. If the weather permits, the athletes will take to the Dyche practice green early next month.

Failure of several of the more promising members of the classy freshman squad to make their grades last semester has caused Purple athletic officials some regret, but with the biggest squad of first year men in history coming up in the fall, their loss will not be felt so keenly as in the past.

Coach Dick Hanley.

Coach Hanley paid a lengthy visit to Pop Warner while on the coast. He declares that Stanford's football wizard, whose system of play is being used all over the country, will flash a brand new set of grid pyrotechnics next fall.

"Let the boys go ahead and figure all they please on how to stop Pop's present system," said Hanley. "When they're all ready to break things up, they will suddenly find themselves up against something different. Pop never makes a secret of his plays. He'll tell them to anybody, but there is a good reason—by the time the others are putting the plays into use, Warner has new ones."

Sport Notes

Already we are picking out the baseball pennant winners.

• • •

Rhode Island State will have two football captains next fall. They are Dick Howes and Charles Lazareck.

• • •

Jim Perry, owner of the Indianapolis club, asked major leaguers $100,000 for his pitching star, Steve Swetonic.

• • •

A new pitcher, Clarence Kendall, of North Bessemer, Pa., a southpaw, has been signed by the Columbus Senators for 1929.

• • •

Marty Griffin, pitcher, was returned to Fort Worth by the Boston Red Sox and then sold to Mobile of the Southern association.

• • •

While the infield and outfield of the Cardinals have been much changed by winter deals, the pitching and catching staffs are about the same as last year.

• • •

One of the highest hockey scores on record was registered three years ago when the Williams freshmen defeated Springfield high school 46 to 0 in 45 minutes of play.

• • •

Pal Moore, veteran Memphis bantamweight boxer, defeated five different holders of the title during his lengthy ring career, but they were all no decision bouts, so he never gained the championship.

Girl athletes of Canada met and voted to continue in Olympic games competition.

• • •

Australians like cricket well enough to turn out 50,000 strong for a match at Melbourne.

• • •

The management of the track at Bowie announces the starting stalls, tried out last fall, are there to stay.

• • •

Managers of all eight clubs in the Texas league will do their mastermind work from the bench this summer.

• • •

Del D. Baker, a catcher, has been purchased for the Fort Worth baseball club from Oakland of the Pacific Coast league.

• • •

Mike Murphy, new crew coach at Wisconsin, learned the game from Ed Leader. He rowed at Washington and coached at Yale under the great mentor.

• • •

Willie Hoppe, the former "boy wonder" of billiards, never smoked or drank, but before and after each match would consume a couple of apples.

• • •

Joe Boland of Atlanta, center of the Bulldog football squad, was elected captain of the 1929 edition of the Red and-Black team of the University of Georgia.

• • •

Billy Southworth, manager of the St. Louis Cards, says he learned more baseball while playing under John McGraw than at any other time in his career.

LELIVELT STARTS HIS 24TH SEASON

Skipper of Milwaukee Brewers Hopeful of Flag.

Jack Lelivelt, pilot of the Milwaukee Brewers, who has begun his twenty-fourth season in professional baseball, is rather hopeful that his charges will land a pennant this year. For the past three years Lelivelt has been leading the Cream City team and he feels confident that he now has a winning combination.

'Way back in 1906 a fleet, strong-limbed outfielder with a keen batting eye, joined the Lake Linden club of the Copper Country league in northern Michigan, and the furore that this young fellow, known as Lelivelt, raised, brought a scout from Connie Mack and the glowing phrases that this emissary sang upon his return to Philadelphia brought Jack a spring tryout with the Athletics in 1907.

It proved too big a jump and the balance of that year, and all of 1908, was spent with Reading, in the Tri-State league. Here he acquired the necessary polish and was the regular left fielder for Washington in '09, '10 and '11. He ranked with the best clubbers of the league over this three-year span.

The forepart of 1912 was spent with Rochester, and here again he flashed his war club with such effect that the Yankees purchased him and were pleasantly surprised when Big John crushed the apple for .368 in the 60 remaining games of the schedule.

In May of the following year, he was traded to Cleveland for Roger Peckinpaugh, one of the greatest of shortstoppers, and stayed with the Indians until the spring of '15, when he was sold to Kansas City in the American association.

It was with the Blues that Jack started his career as a first baseman, leading the league his first season there in both fielding and hitting. After three seasons down on the Kaw, Lelivelt went to Louisville, and in '19 he was rifling the apple around as first baseman for Minneapolis.

Then came his first managerial chance—with the tail-end Omaha team in the Western league—in 1920, finishing fourth his first year out. In '21 he improved to the extent of coming in second in the flag chase, still helping his own cause with his play around first and heavy slugging.

A high salary offer from Tulsa, down in the oil country, lured Lelivelt from Omaha at the start of '22 and he rewarded his backers with a pennant. He dropped to second the next year and to third in '24.

Under Lelivelt's leadership, a chronic trailer, St. Joseph, finished fourth in '25, rounding out such an impressive five-year cycle as manager that Otto Borchert believed himself fortunate in landing him to manage the Brewers in '26.

Seeks World's Mark

Capt. Jack Elder of Notre Dame's track team is still chasing after a new world's record in the 60-yard dash. Elder equaled the mark for the ninth time in his college career in a recent dual meet between Illinois and Notre Dame.

Soccer Football Is Most Popular of All Sports

Association or, as it is known in this country, soccer football, enjoyed the greatest popularity of any branch of sport in the recent Olympic games at Amsterdam, if the financial returns constitute any criterion. A total of 249,500 spectators paid 539,000 florins to see that particular type of contest, while general athletics took second place with 130,000 spectators and a yield of 278,500 florins. The games drew a total of 663,000 paying spectators, who spent 1,425,000 florins ($570,000) on tickets, which must be a welcome echo of that vast athletic spectacle staged by Holland last summer

Jimmy Crowley Resigns From Georgia University

Jimmy Crowley, for several years back field coach at the University of Georgia and formerly a member of Notre Dame's Four Horsemen combination, has resigned, athletic officials said. Coach Crowley said he was considering a position as head coach at another institution.

The resignation comes as no surprise, as it has been reported several times since the end of the 1928 season that Crowley would leave. Frank Thomas, University of Chattanooga coach and former Notre Dame star has been mentioned for the place.

On the Funny Side

NO CHANGE

Each succeeding year many of the guests returned to a popular resort hotel. One of them was interrogating a child with whom she had made friends the previous year: "Have you the same nurse this year?"

"Oh, yes, same nurse," the child replied, casually.

"And who else is with you? Is grandma here?"

"Oh, yes, same grandma," said she, still more casually.

SCALDING TEARS

"You say he was badly burned when he parted with her forever last night? How could that have happened"

"She wept scalding tears as he held her in his arms."

Color Scheme

The classical musician views
The jazz band with much dread;
And every time they play a "Blues"
It leaves him "Seeing Red."

Merry Laughter

"Don't you love the merry laughter of children?"

"Not always," answered Miss Cayenne. "Sometimes when their older companions try to suggest restraints the merry laughter sounds a little sarcastic."—Washington Star.

Good on Top

"Yes; my daughter."—Passing Show.

Queer, Wasn't It?

Jerry—Too bad about Marie's father being blind, isn't it?

Walter—Yeah, three times last night he said, "Isn't that young man gone yet?" and he was looking straight at me every time!

SELDOM ON EARTH

Aviator—You know there's nothing on earth I love as much as you!

She—Yes; but you're usually off the earth.

Apparel

The stockings all so neat and smart
In garb we must admire.
The bootleg never plays a part
In feminine attire.

Delightful Helpmeet

Knicker—He sure has some wife Splits all his poker winnings with him

Bocker — Nothing extraordinary about that. They all do it!

Knicker—Not only that, but she splits his losses with him, too.

Foolish Question

Angry Father—If you wanted to go swimming, why didn't you come and ask me first?

Sammy—Because I wanted to go swimming.

A Laudable Ambition

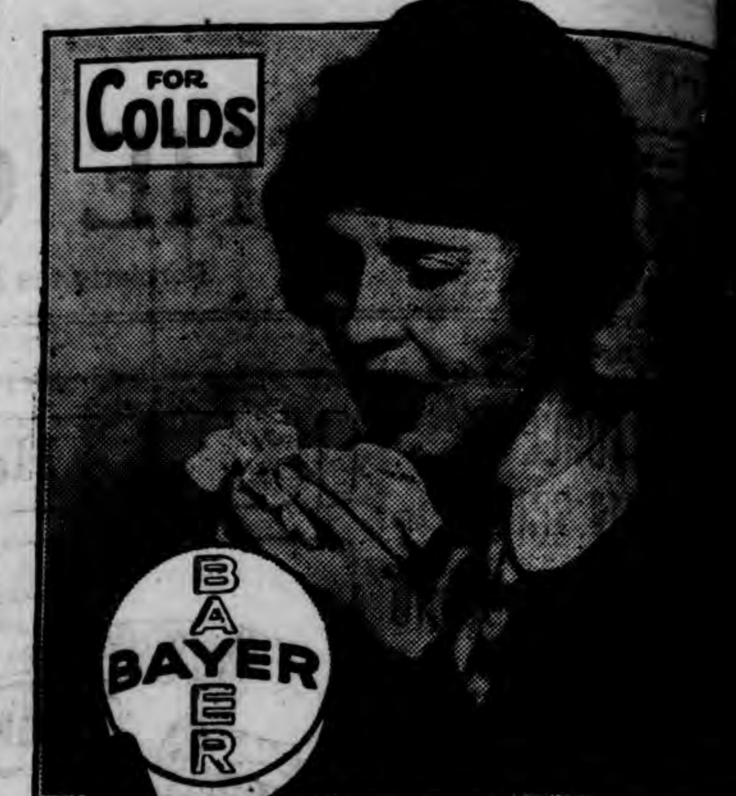
The Sire—Son, your school report shows a lot of very low marks. How about it?

The Son—Well, you see, dad, everything's so high nowadays I thought it was time some items were marked down.

Looking for It

"So you enjoyed your trip abroad eh? Tell me, what was the wickedest thing you saw in Paris?"

"An American tourist."



ASPIRIN

To break a cold harmlessly and in a hurry try a Bayer Aspirin tablet. And for headache. The action of Aspirin is very efficient too, in cases of neuralgia, neuritis, even rheumatism and lumbago. And there's no after effect; doctors give Aspirin to children, often infants. Whenever there's pain, think of Aspirin. The genuine Bayer Aspirin has Bayer on the box and on every tablet. No Place for Middle Aged Man in Business?

Sociologists are debating ways and means for caring for the middle-aged as well as the aged, and newspapers in the large cities are printing many complaints to the effect that men past fifty are denied employment solely because of their age. The problem of the unemployed man of fifty is becoming serious.

Along with this condition it is interesting to note that the board of managers of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor reports that between 15 and 20 per cent of all persons more than sixty-five years of age receive some support from others. It is also stated that in 1850 2.8 per cent of the population was more than sixty-four years of age while in 1920, due to the generally lengthened span of life, figures were 4.6, an increase of 64 per cent in seventy years.

The percentage of old persons is expected to increase steadily for some years. With employers refusing to hire men and women past fifty what will become of these persons? Is it a kindness to increase the length of life if old age must be spent in poverty?—Miami Herald.

Precious Stones Saved

Becoming accidentally mixed with rubbish, three diamonds, valued at nearly $1,000 were tossed into the incinerator at an Attleboro (Mass.) manufacturing plant. When the loss had become known, employees were ordered to search the ashes, and the gems, undamaged, were recovered.

Reminders of Old Rome

The Palatine hill, Rome, is now a public park; the Janiculum has been converted into walks and drives.

Indian Pedestrians

As a whole, the American Indians never had any form of transportation except afoot, there never being horses for all. Despite the great distances they walked, they never had corns, bunions, falling arches or other modern foot troubles.

Wisdom's Height

"Mother, I want to get married."

"No, my dear, you are not wise enough?"

"When shall I be wise enough?"

"When you get over the idea that you want to get married."

The Mean Thing!

Hub—What's the difference between an evening gown and a nightgown?

Wife—I don't know.

You can't dye a dress—no matter how careful you may be—without real color. That's the idea behind Diamond Dyes. They are made to give you real service. They contain from three to five times more anilines than other dyes on the market.

Next time you want to dye, try Diamond Dyes. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare results. Note the absence of that re-dyed look; of streaking, or spotting. See how soft, bright, new looking the colors are. Then observe how they keep their brilliance through wear and washing. If you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes, your dealer will refund your money.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

SEASONABLE FOOD

This is the season when we enjoy the succulent oyster. Try this one:

Creamed Oysters.

Clean one pint of oysters, heat to the boiling point in their own liquor. Cook three tablespoonfuls of butter and two of flour together, then add one cupful of thin cream. Add the oysters, salt and cayenne to taste, one beaten egg yolk and serve on toast or crackers. Add two tablespoonfuls of mushrooms.

Veal a la King.

Trim off the fat from two pounds of veal and cut into inch cubes. Brown lightly in one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add water to cover well. Add six medium sized carrots, two medium sized onions cut fine, one sweet green pepper, one bayleaf, four cloves and cook all together until the meat is tender. Keep the liquid to about a pint. Add one quart of sweet cream which has been heated to the boiling point, one can of mushrooms and one can of sifted peas. Season to taste with salt and paprika, then serve over chow mein noodles, using two cans.

Luncheon Dish.

Place well drained sardines on a chilled platter and surround with a wreath of parsley or water cress. Cut radishes in the form of small tulips and arrange in the cress. At the ends of the platter place sections of lemon. Serve very cold.

Home Made Ice Cream Soda.

Place balls of vanilla ice cream in glasses, pour over iced bottled cream soda. Stir slightly and serve immediately.

Poor Man's Pudding.

Take six cupfuls of milk, one-half cupful of rice, one-half cupful of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of nutmeg and one-half cupful of raisins. Put all together in a buttered pan in a moderate oven and bake slowly for two hours. Serve hot or cold.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT
By F. A. WALKER

WHAT TO READ

A reader sends us a question which is a source of pleasure for it proves that we have aroused in one mind at least an interest in reading.

He writes as follows: "You refer very frequently to the value of reading. I wish that you would answer the question, 'What is the best to read?'"

That is a short question with a long answer. When a physician wishes to build up the frail body of a poorly nourished patient he prescribes foods which have two qualities—the furnishing of the greatest amount of nutrition and the smallest amount of waste and combinations which are easily digestible.

The badly nourished mind needs food of the same qualities, and that food is furnished by reading.

The three greatest books in the world are the Bible, Shakespeare and a good dictionary.

Abraham Lincoln, who laid a pretty good foundation of youthful reading, had only one of these—the Bible. His other books were "Aesop's Fables," "Robinson Crusoe," "The Pilgrim's Progress," "A History of the United States" and Weem's "Life of Washington." Not a very big library, but a good one.

A good many young people think that the Bible is a dull book. The reason they think so is because they have not read it. Entirely aside from being religiously valuable and the best code of life that has ever been written, it is remarkably interesting.

No better love story was ever written than the story of Ruth. No better story of adventure than that which leads up to the fight between David and Goliath. No better poetry than the Psalms or the Songs of Solomon. Read the story of the Israelites. No modern novelist has touched it in interest. Read the book of Job for first-class English and the Gospel of Mark for number-one reporting of what he saw and heard.

Don't think the Bible is uninteresting.

Shakespeare, the greatest individual writer of all time, should be read every day. A young man who reads all of Shakespeare has the basis for a liberal education. There is not a useless sentence in all that he wrote and he touched every passion, every science, every mood of the human mind. The world of literature owes more to Shakespeare than to any twenty other writers in all the languages of the earth.

And the dictionary. No man can use more words than he knows and to know a word is to be able to recognize its various meanings and shadings of meaning.

Do you realize how few words even a well educated man knows? Less than a thousand.

Read a page of the dictionary and see how many words there are on it that you never heard of.

By a careful reading of the dictionary for fifteen minutes a day a man can in a year double his vocabulary and triple his understanding of words.

But it is of no use to read anything unless while you read you think.

A man could eat a whole ox, but if he did not digest it, it would furnish him no more nourishment than as if he had not eaten at all.

Thinking is mental digestion.

Be sure to think about what you read, as you read it, if you want to get the most out of books and their authors.

PLEASE TELL MY WIFE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I WISH that you would see my wife
And tell her that I love her,
A thing, these later years of life,
I hope that she'd discover.
'Twas quite an easy thing to say,
The way that youth would view it,
But, now we both are getting gray,
I just can't seem to do it.

I wish that you would write a line,
Would send my wife a letter,
And kindly tell this wife of mine
I really love her better
Than in the days of twenty-one,
And thought, of course, she knew it.
I think it really should be done—
I wish that you would do it.

I wish you'd do that much for me;
It's really very easy:
Just write a line, or come to see,
Adopt a manner breezy,
Just say, "He loves you," just like that;
There's really nothing to it,
There's nothing to be frightened at—
But I can't seem to do it.

Why We Do What We Do
by M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE ASK EVERY SUCCESSFUL MAN THE SECRET OF HIS SUCCESS.

EVERY successful man is besieged by admirers who are eager to learn the secret of his success. His success may consist of any outstanding achievement.

A prominent citizen who reaches the ripe age of four score years is approached on each succeeding birthday by a corps of newspaper men and bombarded with questions calculated to uncover the secret of his long life. He is supposed to know what made him live so long.

Magazines that feature the life story of successful men in business have a tremendous circulation. People are eager to learn the secret of success. The ideal magazine hero starts life in a log cabin and rises to be a merchant prince, a financial giant. The implication is that if he could do it with no education and no friends, how much better off you and I are with at least a fair start.

Nothing succeeds like success. We admire and envy the successful man because we too, would like to be regarded as successes. We like to read of such people because it has inspirational value. We naively assume that if we get hold of the secret, we too, may be as successful. This is because we feel that possibly if we had the right password and could pull the right wires we have enough native ability to get there.

We want to know the secret of the great man's greatness not only that we might also become great by following the same methods, but also because we are curious to know the ins and outs of a colorful career. This interest is very much as the curiosity we have in knowing how to solve a puzzle or a riddle. It answers the perpetual question, "How do they do it?"

We try and fail and then wonder how others succeed. We conclude that either they are made of different clay or else they have some special secret. We hope it is due to some secret and not to superior native ability; hence the eagerness to inquire of every successful man the secret of his success.

Lesson for March 31

THE FUTURE LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:1-12; John 14:1-6.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Glad Resurrection Day.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Glad Resurrection Day.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living Here and Hereafter.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Ground of Hope for the Future.

I. The Resurrection of Jesus Christ (Luke 24:1-12).

The supreme test of Christianity is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. It matters little what Jesus said and did while alive if His body remained in the grave. If He did not come forth in triumph from the tomb, then all His claims are false.

1. The empty sepulcher (vv. 1-3).

(1) The coming of the women (v. 1).

As an expression of affectionate regard for the Master, they came with spices for His body. If they had believed His words, they would have known that His body could not be found in the sepulcher.

(2) What they found (vv. 2, 3). When they came to the sepulcher they found the stone had been rolled away, but they found not the body of Jesus. For them to have found His body in the sepulcher would have been the world's greatest tragedy. The empty tomb spoke most eloquently of the deity and power of the Son of God (Rom. 1:6).

2. The message of the men in shining garments (vv. 4-8).

(1) "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" (v. 5).

This question, uttered by the angels, has been reverberating through the centuries.

(2) "He is not here, but is risen." Jesus had told them that the Lord must be betrayed and crucified and that on the third day He would rise again. Had they given heed to His words they would have been relieved of their perplexities.

3. The women witnessing to the eleven (vv. 9-11).

Their thrilling testimony concerning the empty tomb and the words of the angels appeared to the apostles as idle tales and they refused to believe.

4. Peter investigating (v. 12).

While the testimony of the women seemed as idle tales, Peter was not of the temperament to dismiss the matter from his mind, therefore he ran unto the sepulcher. Upon investigation he found the linen clothes lying in such a way as to prove the reality of the resurrection.

II. Jesus Preparing a Place in Heaven for His Own (John 14:1-3)

These last words of Jesus were words of comfort. The hopes of the disciples were utterly shattered when Jesus told them about the cross. He consoled them by pointing to the reunion in the heavenly Father's house.

1. He asked them to trust in Him, even as God (v. 1).

Faith in the God-man, Christ Jesus, will steady the heart, no matter how intense the grief, or how great the sorrow.

2. He informed them that He was going to the Father's House in heaven to prepare a home for them (v. 2).

He assured them that there was abundant room there for all. He said, there were many "abiding places." Heaven is an eternal dwelling place for God's children.

3. He assured them that He would come again and escort them to heaven (v. 3).

Jesus will not depend upon nor wait for His own to come to Him, but will come and call forth from the grave those who have died; transforming living believers, and take them all together to be forever with Himself in the heavenly home.

III. Jesus Christ is the Way to the Heavenly Father (vv. 4-6).

Jesus informed the disciples that they knew the place to which He was going, and the way. To this Thomas interposed a doubt, in answer to which Christ asserted that He is:

1. The Way (v. 6).

Jesus Christ is more than a mere guide to God. He is the way itself.

2. The Truth (v. 6).

He is not merely the teacher, but the Truth incarnate. In His incarnation the spiritual and material worlds were united; therefore every line of truth, whether spiritual or material, converged in Him.

3. The Life (v. 6).

Christ is not merely the giver of life, but He is the very essence of life. Only those who receive Christ have life in the true sense.

The New Testament

The New Testament has done more toward creating a race of noble men and women than all the books of the world put together.—Sir Walter Scott.

Man is unjust, but God is just; and justice finally triumphs.—Longfellow.

Community Building

America Is Leading in Building Architecture

The architecture of America is today leading the world, according to William Harmon Beers of the American Institute of Architects.

More better-class building will go on in the United States in 1929 than in any previous year, Mr. Beers prophesies, while warning that architects should not be too much impressed by optimistic forecasts of increased building operations. Mr. Beers, architect of the Lincoln building, New York, foresees stabilization in construction and advances in design.

"To stimulate their latest abilities, American architects have the advantage of many building projects," Mr. Beers declares. "With the educational opportunity afforded the younger architects and students are becoming more and more fitted to grasp the peculiar problems continually arising.

"I think there is a growing improvement in quality of design and construction and architects are showing more caution in studying building requirements before beginning projects."

Mr. Beers explains that equilibrium is being reached between apparent decline in cheap, low-grade building projects and increase in prospective government, educational and municipal construction.

"I agree in part," he continues, "that volume of construction moves in direct ratio to capital accumulations used for permanent improvements, and therefore to general industrial prosperity. The curve of building tends upward if our population and wealth increase, and if we constantly develop new activities which require new buildings.

"Of course, we have had four years of abnormal construction activity. Estimates of increase have included public works and utilities—roads, bridges, power plants—which are matters for the engineer rather than the architect. This type of work has risen from $994,000,000 in 1925 to $1,438,000,000 in 1928.

"Architectural construction during these past few years has shown a tendency toward stabilization. National building field sales organizations have focused their attention on the market represented by the multitude of small new building and alteration projects under the $5,000 minimum valuation.

Stucco Walls Must Be Suited to Architecture

Masonry offers a wide choice of materials where selection usually depends upon the style of architecture and sometimes upon local material available. A combination of field stone with stucco may, with proper attention to detail, produce a most happy result.

Stone is the sturdier structural material. It is used in the foundation and lower story, where it contributes to the stability of the whole by reason of its evident weight.

Stucco is a plastic material. It can be finished in any one of a wide variety of textures and colors. It readily adapts itself to the irregularities of stone masonry, and can be used in many different ways to cover broad wall surfaces. The surface may be smooth and the stucco gray to blend with the stone, or brightly colored stucco in high texture relief may afford a desirable contrast. The choice of method depends upon the architectural effect desired and the imagination of the owner and architect.

Size of Lot Important.

The importance of buying a large enough lot for the home cannot be overemphasized. If one had to choose it would be preferable to purchase a large lot in a more inexpensive part of town or city than to choose a smaller lot in a more costly locality—a lot which is no wider than that required by law to hold the house.

To be sure there are some types of houses which can adapt themselves admirably to a narrow setting, while other houses equally well designed are ruined by not being given the proper background.

One fact, however, stands out above all others to be remembered in considering the question of a house and lot; that is to study the lot before one buys it in reference to the type of house one anticipates building, and once having bought the land, consider again the type of house best suited to it, before the first spadeful of ground is broken.

Healthy Cities.

Seventeen cities in the United States virtually share honors for being the safest places for a baby to live. The infant mortality rate for each was less than 40 per 1,000 births, a recent health survey shows.

Positions of honor as to low mortality among the various groups of cities were: Cities of 250,000 and over, Seattle, Wash., Portland, Ore., and San Francisco; 100,000 to 250,000, Salt Lake City, Oakland, Calif., and Cambridge; 50,000 to 100,000, Union City, N. J., Brockton, Mass., and Tacoma, Wash.; 25,000 to 50,000, Oak Park, Ill., Malden, Mass., and Everett, Wash.; 10,000 to 25,000, Stonington, Winona and Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Stockholm's Parks

The city of Stockholm has owned its parks for nearly 500 years, or since 1436, and the national government therefore has no jurisdiction over them. This has been brought up by Carl Linohagen, mayor of the Swedish capital, in connection with a request from the state that the city pay rent for certain parks. In opposing this demand, the chief executive referred to a deed dated 1436 which tells of the award "for all time to come as a token of gratitude for the faith and service the people of Stockholm have shown the government."

Miss Zena Park was shopping and calling on friends in Sedro-Woolley Wednesday.

Mrs. Elmer Larsen went to Sedro-Woolley Wednesday to visit her son "Chuck" Scales, who is in the Valley hospital recovering from injuries received in a logging camp accident a few weeks ago. At last reports "Chuck" was said to be getting along as well as could be expected, and his broken leg appears to be healing as rapidly as possible.

SIDELIGHTS

By "KURLEY"

Hello, gang.

* * *

How's zis for weather?

* * *

Didn't we hear someone say something about baseball—Oh, yah.

* * *

Did you notice our baseball diamond? Looks like the dead sea—ain't it,

* * *

No news from our new manager—he just won't talk.

* * *

We asked him a lot of questions—who's going to do this—and do that, etc.

* * *

All we git is "Well, I think Hugo Bauman is a good road man."

* * *

We saw the manager and Jake Lorentzen having a talk by themselves—maybe something will come of it—maybe.

* * *

We hope you can come to terms, Jake—would be a mighty good start for our 1929 "hopefuls".

* * *

We know that Brown Wiseman has come to "terms" for the catching "assignment".

* * *

Also Fred Baker, John Lorentzen and of course our old friend Andy—if he hasn't slowed up too much.

* * *

We understand that there was a baseball meeting at the city hall the other evening—and a lot of the "aspirants" for the team was present.

* * *

And who knows—maybe we can find a few "diamonds" in the rough.

* * *

What worries us is—who is going to plug up the "gaps" at second base and shortstop.

* * *

Those positions sure have been a "nightmare" for the last season or so—let's plug 'em up—for one season anyway.

* * *

Did you notice the good start Seattle got in the opening game of the coast league- We noticed it—although we don't care a darn.

* * *

Although this has not been verified—gossip has it the Hamilton is getting into the game this year—with our old friend Hobe Wiseman as manager—what a lot of fun we are going to have this summer.

* * *

Haven't heard a thing about a county league this season—it wasn't so hot last year—for the reason that they did not play long enough.

* * *

We don't care who you play as long as you play someone—and don't pick on "soft" ones.

* * *

Who's going to Rockport Saturday evening—the Eagles are holding a meeting and initiation up there—followed by an open meeting and feed—guess we'll go up and get the "wrinkles' out.

* * *

Heard the Mt. Shuksan band at the high school gym the other evening—and as usual they were very good.

* * *

Did you notice Brown Wiseman as "guest artist" with the band?

* * *

And the "vodeville" show was very good—showed lots of hard work—and went over "big"—we thought.

* * *

Now don't forget the Band Concert at the Concrete Theatre next Tuesday evening—the band boys are working hard and deserve your patronage—they always give you a good evening's entertainment—so let's go.

* * *

And listen Band Boys—this ad will cost you your services at the opening game of the baseball season—no foolin'.

* * *

Excuse us now—we have a date with "Dolly".

* * *

We'll tell you how it came out next week—maybe.

* * *

Alright.

PROMINENT ATTORNEY OF COUNTY DIES IN SEATTLE

Wilba Coleman, one of the best known attorneys of Skagit county, died in the Swedish hospital in Seattle yesterday morning, following an operation. Mr. Coleman, who has been in ill health for some weeks, went to Seattle the first of the week for an examination by a specialist, and while there was taken seriously ill and was rushed to the hospital, where it was decided that an operation was necessary. The operation was performed, but Mr. Coleman failed to rally and grew gradually weaker until his death. So far no information in regard to funeral arrangements has been received.

Mr. Coleman was born in Michigan and came to Skagit county in 1900, when he formed a partnership with Chas. P. Gable for the practice of law in Sedro-Woolley. In 1913 Mr. Coleman went to Mount Vernon and opened an office there, with Mr. Gable continuing the office in Sedro-Woolley. Mr. Coleman was one of the leading attorneys of the county and at the time of his death was president of the Skagit County Bar association. He was also president of the Skagit County Country club and chairman of the Republican Central Committee of this county. He was 63 years old when he died.

Developing Famous Grotto

The famous stalactite grottoes of Postumia, Italy, which are among the most important in Europe, are to be made more accessible for visitors by the building of a motor road, allowing tourists to return to Postumia directly after having seen the grottoes without passing through them again. A new electric lighting system is also to be put in place, with more powerful lamps, and another seven miles of subterranean passages are to be opened up which will make the total length of grottoes and passages open to the public 25 miles. The underground course of the river Pluca is to be explored, and mining operations will be resorted to to open up some further caves and passages at present inaccessible.

The Settling of the Sage

By HAL G. EVARTS

Copyright by Hal G. Evarts WNU Service

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," a stranger applied for work as a rider. Williamette Ann Warren—known to all as "Billie," is the owner of the ranch. The girl's father, Cal Warren, had been the original owner. The newcomer is put to work. Cattle "rustlers" have been troubling the ranch owners. The new hand gives his name as Cal Harris. By his announcement in favor of "squatters" he incurs the enmity of a rider known as Morrow. The will made by Cal Warren stipulated that half the property should go to the son of his old friend, William Harris, under certain conditions. The new arrival is the man, and he discloses the fact to Billie Slade, a ranchman with an unsavory reputation, visits Billie. Slade, endeavoring to embrace Billie is interrupted by Harris. While the riders are at their evening meal, far out on the range, six outsiders join them. Billie knows them to be "rustlers." To test Harris' courage the girl appoints him temporary foreman, suggesting that he order the visitors to leave. Somewhat to her surprise he does so. The men depart, making threats. Billie makes Harris permanent foreman. Catching Morrow leaving cattle were they can be stolen. Harris discharges him. Riding with Billie, a man presumably Morrow, shoots at Harris. Three Bar riders start in pursuit of Morrow. One of them, Bangs, is ambushed and killed. Harris outlines his plans for bringing settlers into the country.

"They say folks get disappointed in love and go right on living," he observed. "I wonder now. I've heard that men run mostly to form and at one time or another let it out to some little lady that there's no other in the world. That's my own state right about now. Are you always going to keep on disliking me?"

"I don't dislike you," she said. She was still convinced of his father's trickery toward her own; but Cal Harris' quiet efficiency and his devotion to Three Bar interests had convinced her, against her will, that he had taken no part in it. "But if you brought me out here to go into that I'm going back.'"

"I didn't," he denied. "But I drifted into it sort of by accident. No matter what topic I happen to be conversing on I'm always thinking how much I'd rather be telling you about that. Whenever I make some simple little assertion about things in general, what I'm really thinking is something like this, 'Billie, right this minute I'm loving you more than I did two minutes back.' You might keep that in mind.

"Listen," tapping his knee with a forefinger to emphasize his point. "Cal Warren always wanted to put the Three Bar flats under cultivation. He's probably told you that a hundred times. This will always be range country. It will only support a certain number of cows. If the Three Bar had a section in hay to winter-feed your stuff you could run double what you do now on the same range. It's the same with every other small concern. There's only a few spots suitable for home-ranch sites and every one of those has a brand running out of it now—excepting those sites down in Slade's range. If all those outfits put in hay it wouldn't cut up the range any more than it is now—except down Slade's way. Every outfit in the country could run twice as many head as they do now—except Slade. He couldn't. The minute farming starts there'll be squatters filing on every quarter where they can get water to put it in crop. There's twenty places Slade would have to cover by filing to hold his range where the others would only have to file on one to control the amount of range they're using now."

She nodded as she caught this point.

"Folks have fallen into a set habit of mind," he explained. "You think because every squatter is burned out that every outfit but the Three Bar is against sticking a plow in the ground. The rest probably feel the same way—know they haven't a hand in it but figure that you have. As a matter of fact, it's Slade alone. There's a persistent rumor to the effect that any man who burns out a squatter can drop in at Slade's and get five hundred dollars in cash."

"The sheriff has never been able to pick up a single one of the men who have burned those squatters out," she said.

"And he never will without some help," Harris agreed. "Alden's hands are tied. But he is playing his own game single-handed the best he can. One day he'll get his hooks into some of these torch-bearers so deep they'll never shake them out. The homestead laws can't be defied indefinitely. The government will take a hand and send marshals in here thicker than flies. Then the outfits that have hedged themselves in advance are on top. The rest are through."

"But what can the Three Bar do against Slade until those marshals come?" she asked.

"There's a difference between sacking an established outfit with a big force of hands and burning out some isolated squatter roosting in a wagon," Harris said. "I've filed on water out of the Crazy Loop to cover the section I bought in the flats. We can pick men and give them a job with the Three Bar between spells of doing prove-up work. We can put in a company ditch to cover all the filings, pay them for working on it and charge that pro-rata share of improvements up against each man's final settlement. When they've made final proof we can buy out those who went to sell. Let's put the flats in hay, girl, and start grading the Three Bar up. It doesn't take much more feed to turn out a real beef steer than of those-knife-backed brothers down in the flat. In five years we'll have a straight red brand and the Three Bar will be rated at thirty dollars a head, come as they run on the range, instead of round ten or twelve as they'd figure us now. We'll have good hay land that will be worth more by itself than the whole brand is today. Say the word, girl, and we'll build up the old outfit that both of our folks helped to found."

The girl had closed her eyes as he painted this picture of possibilities and except for the difference of voice it might well have been old Cal Warren speaking; the views and sentiments were the same she had so often heard her father express. Next to the longed-for partnership with old Bill Harris the dream of his life had been to see the Three Bar flats a smooth meadow of alfalfa.

"I'll put a bunch of terriers in there that will be hard for Slade to uproot," Harris said. "What do you say Billie? Let's give it a try."

"I'd like to see it done," she said. "But so much depends on the outcome. I'll have to write Judge Colton first. He has all my affairs in charge."

They mounted and rode back to the wagon and the girl went straight to Waddles with the proposition Harris had urged.

"Tell him to go his best," Waddles advised, when she had outlined Harris' scheme. "He'll put a bunch of terriers on the Three Bar that will cut Slade's claws. If they burn out the boys Cal Harris puts on the place then there'll be one real war staged at the old Three Bar."

"He's been telling you," she accused.

"He did sort of mention it," Waddles confessed.

"Then his idea is to import a bunch of gun-fighters," she said. "I won't have a bunch of hired killers living at the Three Bar."

"These boys will just be the sort that's handy at knowing how to avoid getting killed themselves," Waddles evaded. "You can't rightly blame any man for that. And besides, Slade has to be met on his own ground."

"Do you think Slade is at the bottom of the Three Bar losses every year?" she asked.

"Every hoof," Waddles stated. "Every last head! Maybe the albino's layout rustles an odd bunch on and off. But Slade is the man that's out to wreck your brand." The big cook heaved a sigh as he reached a decision on a matter which had been troubling him for days. "That's what Cal Warren was afraid of—Slade's branching out our way like he had already toward the south. And that's one reason he left things tied up the way he did."

He tapped a much-thumbed document on his knee and handed it to the girl.

"You and Young Cal have been sort of half-hostile," he said. "Cast an eye over that and maybe it'll help you two youngsters to get along.'

Three times the girl read every word of the paper while Waddles smoked his pipe in silence. Then she sat on the gate of the wagon and gazed off across the sage; and she was picturing again the long trail of the Three Bar cows; but this time she was reconstructing the scene at the end of it. Instead of one man scheming to trick an old friend at the last crossing of their trails she now visioned two old men regretting that the life-long hope of a partnership had never been fulfilled and planning to cement that arrangement in the next generation. For old Bill Harris had left her a full half-interest in everything he owned on earth with the single stipulation that she retain her half of the Three Bar for five years after her father's death.

"But why?" she asked presently. "Why did he do that for me? He'd never seen me since I was three years old."

"He did it for the girl of old Cal Warren, the best friend he had topside of ground," Waddles said. "Your dad and Bill Harris had been pals since they was hatched. They knew there was hard times and changes ahead and both hated to think of the old brand going under or changing hands. They was afraid that if both you and the boy knew your path was going to be carpeted soft in any event that you might sell out if things got to breaking wrong. This way it looked like you'd be sure to stick. They was planning the best they knew. Your dad told me to keep an eye on the general lay. And Judge Colton sent me that copy to have on hand to sort of iron things out when I thought best. I'm telling you because I know you wouldn't quit the Three Bar as long as there's two cows left."

"Does Cal know?" she asked.

"Not a word," Waddles asserted. "He's likely considerable puzzled himself. But he surmises things will break right some day, knowing his own dad and havin' visited round a day or two with yours. You drop the judge a line, girl, and turn Harris loose to rip up the Three Bar flat and seed it down to hay."

She nodded and slipped from the end-gate of the wagon, taking the paper with her. Harris was soaking a flannel shirt in the little stream, flattening it in a riffle and weighting it down with rocks. She went straight to him and sat on the bank, motioning him to a seat by her side. He dried his hands and took the paper she held out to him.

"What's in the wind?" he asked.

She nodded to indicate the document and he sat down to look over it. His quizzical expression was erased as he saw his father's name and the girl watched his face for some evidence of resentment as he read on. Their status was now reversed, for Bill Harris' holdings had been easily double those of her own parent. She saw the sun wrinkles deepen at the corners of his eyes as he grasped the text of it and he looked up at her and laughed.

"Now we're resting easy," he said. "An even trade."

"Uneven," she dissented. "Of course you know that I'll not take advantage of that."

"Accounts are all squared off between us now," he said. "And of course you'll do just what it says." He held up his hand as she started to dissent. "Don't you!" he reproved. "Let's let that end of it slide—rest for a while. Maybe some day we'll lump both into one and the two of us boss the whole job."

She rested a hand on his arm.

"Of course you know I'm sorry for a number of things I've said to you," she said. "But I want to thank you for being too decent to return them in kind. You're real folks, Cal."

"Good girl, Billie," he thanked her. "As to what you said, it's remarkable that you didn't say more. I knew you weren't crabbing over what you might lose for yourself but over the thought that your father had been tricked. I tried to put myself in your place and if I'd been you I know I'd have kicked me off the place, or told Waddles to turn loose his wolf."

He switched abruptly away from the topic in hand and reverted to the subject they had discussed an hour past.

"We've a clear field now with nothing on our minds but the job of putting the Three Bar on its feet," he said. "The Three Bar is a pretty small outfit the way things are today but in a few more years the brand that runs three thousand head will be almost in the class of cattle kings. The range will be settled with an outfit roosting on every available site. The big fellows will find their range cut up and then they're through. If the Three Bar flies on all the water out of Crazy Loop and covers the flat with hay we'll control all the range for a number of miles each way. There's not another site short of Brandon's place west of us—twelve miles or so; about the same to the east; still farther off south of us. We'll be riding the crest. You try and get a letter off to the judge today."

The girl nodded.

Colonists Placed Ban on Sumptuous Dress

Nowadays one of the most prominent features in the attire of the fair sex is the use of silks and satins. However, such was not the case with the women in the early days of the colony of Massachusetts. Their mode of dress was not governed by their own discretion and budgets. Rather the authorities took it upon themselves to dictate just what should be worn, not only by the women, but also that the men folks should dress in accordance with the judgment of those handling the affairs of the community at that time.

As early as 1651, the general court was enacting legislation which provided that if a man was not worth 200 pounds, he was not eligible to wear gold lace or silver lace, buttons or points at the knees. They were not permitted to wear boots owing to the scarcity of leather then.

As for the women, if their property was not valued to the extent of 200 pounds, their attire was not to include silk, tiffany hoods or scarfs. Thus, it was possible, by glancing at the dress of neighbors to tell approximately how much of this world's goods they possessed. The distinction of dress was an accepted distinction both of social rank and of occupation.

Solomon's Grand Song

The Song of Solomon was incorporated in the earliest Jewish scriptures. Selections were sung at certain festivals in the temple at Jerusalem prior to its destruction by Titus. It was first declared canonical by the Synod of Jamnia 90 A. D.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

STAYING FOR SUPPER

"Why do you guard the door?" asked the visiting cat.

"Because the family has gone away on a visit. They will be gone all day, and we are guarding the house.

"The family are so nice and kind to us that we wanted to see that no unwelcome callers got in.

"When they get home they will reward us by a good supper. Around at the back of the house we've hidden some food in case we get hungry during the day.

"You see the dog brought a bone here so he could play and chew and have a good time."

This cat and a dog and a hen were sitting on the doorsteps of a large house. They were all friendly. And now a visiting cat had come to call.

"Well," said the visiting cat, "who are you going to keep away?"

"I am going to keep away all mice," said the cat.

"Are they apt to call?" asked the visiting cat happily. "I might like to help you keep some of them away myself."

The dog laughed and the hen cackled at this, but the visiting cat went on talking.

"Tell me some more," said the visiting cat.

"The dog will keep away tramps, and then will eat up all worms."

But do mice and worms call on the family?" asked the visiting cat.

"I have never known them to do so," the cat on the doorsteps said, "but then we can never be sure when they might begin.

"It's best to be sure that they don't get in."

"I see," said the visiting cat. "So you're having a good time while looking after the house."

"Well," said the Visiting Cat.

"Oh yes," said the cat on the doorsteps. "We are having a very good time.

"Why should we be unhappy and miserable?"

"There is no reason at all why you should be," said the visiting cat.

"And even the sun is obliging."

"Yes, the sun is most kind. He couldn't bear to see us here in the cold without his strong rays to keep us warm."

So the visiting cat sat down too, and chatted with the cat, the dog and the hen.

"I would like to know," said the dog, "why your eyes are so different at different times?"

"Whatever do you mean?" asked the visiting cat.

"Sometimes I've seen them look big and sometimes rather small."

"Oh, now I understand," said the visiting cat. "When we are in a dark close looking for mice our eyes become larger.

"It's partly the effect that the darkness has on our eyes and partly because we're looking forward to finding mice.

"Of course, grown-ups think it is simply because of the dark closet—but it's partly the reason and secret I've just told you."

Just then a shrill whistle was heard through the stillness.

Then came a cloud of smoke from the train.

The animals didn't know that it meant that their family, who had been away at a neighboring place for the day, were on their way home now.

But before long they saw them walking along the road toward the house.

"I must be going," said the visiting cat, "they might shoo me away."

"Oh no," said the cat on the doorsteps, "do stay for supper. We have an especially good one when the family have been away.

"They're afraid we have been lonely and they like to give us a special treat."

Sure enough the visiting cat stayed for supper, and the family were most polite to him.

It was fun to be invited out to supper—and they certainly all did have a feast!

Composition on Cats

A grammar school boy handed in the following composition on "cats."

"Cats that's meant for little boys to maul and tease is called Maultese cats. Some cats is reckernized by how quiet their purrs is, and these is named Pursian cats. The cats what has very bad tempers is called Angorie cats, and cats with deep feelins is called Feline cats. I don't like cats."

This Mother Had Problems

As a rule, milk is about the best food for children, but there are times when they are much better off without it. It should always be left off when children show by feverish, fretful or cross spells, by bad breath, coated tongue, sallow skin, indigestion, biliousness, etc., that their stomach and bowels are out of order.

In cases like this, California Fig Syrup never fails to work wonders, by the quick and gentle way it removes all the souring waste which is causing the trouble, regulates the stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally of their own accord. Children love its rich, fruity flavor and it's purely vegetable and harmless, even for babies.

Millions of mothers have proved its merit and reliability in over 50 years of steadily increasing use. A Western mother, Mrs. May Snavely, Montrose, California, says: "My little girl, Nina's, tendency to constipation was a problem to me until I began giving her California Fig Syrup. It helped her right away and soon her stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. Since then I've never had to have any advice about her bowels. I have also used California Fig Syrup with my little boy, with equal success."

To be sure of getting the genuine, which physicians endorse, always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name.

Setback for Convicts

Convicts in Louisiana state prison institutions once more will don the telltale striped uniform after having gone without the characteristic prison garment for more than ten years. The restoration of the striped suit was ordered by Gov. Huey P. Long, who was influenced by the recent killing of Herman Baker in a robbery in New Orleans. Baker, shot to death while robbing an aged storekeeper, was a "furloughed" convict and had been at liberty several weeks. The governor also ordered all "furloughs" discontinued unless ordered by his office.

Large, Generous Sample Old Time Remedy Sent Free to Every Reader of This Article

More than forty years ago, good old Pastor Koenig began the manufacture of Pastor Koenig's Nervine, a remedy recommended for the relief of nervousness, epilepsy, sleeplessness and kindred ailments. The remedy was made after the formula of old German doctors. The sales soon increased, and another factory was added. Today there are Koenig factories in the old world and Pastor Koenig's Nervine is sold in every land and clime.

Try it and be convinced. It will only cost you a postal to write for the large, generous sample.
