Armistice Day Program Planned Next Wednesday

Legion Sponsors Program of Speaking At School—Big
Football Game At 1:45.

Armistice Day, which will be a holiday in nearly every town in the county next Wednesday, will be celebrated here in a program similar to the one given last year.
The celebration is being sponsored by the Heskett-Arnold Post of the American Legion.

At 10:45 in the morning a program will be held in the high school auditorium. The program is open to all. The program features an Armistice Day address by J. R.
Hurley, well known speaker from Mount Vernon. Other numbers are:

America Audience
Flag Salute Harold Thompson
Taps Wendell McDaniels
Invocation Rev. C. Snowden
Vocal Solo C. E. Sharp

Everyone wishing to attend the program should be in their seats before 11:00 as the program will start promptly at that time.

Football Game

The afternoon entertainment will be the last football game of the year. In this contest Concrete will meet the Bellingham high school
"super varsity". This is the second team of Bellingham high, but is a regular team now playing in Class B circles in Whatcom county and leading that league.

As Bellingham high school is now composed of both Whatcom and Fairhaven students, you can see that this team will be no easy opponent and the odds are against Concrete.

However the local boys are planning to finish up their 1936 season with a victory if it is at all possible. A good game is certain.

The game will start promptly at 1:45 p. m.

PUGET SOUND PLANS MARBLEMOUNT LINE

For the past months surveys and preliminary work has been carried on by the Puget Sound Power & Light Co. for a new line between Rockport and Marble-mount. Toward the latter part of last week the company announced that it had completed negotiations with prospective customers and that construction would be started within the coming month.

The plan of construction calls for eleven miles of line, which,
including transformers, etc. will cost about $14,000. Fifty-one customers will be served.

When the Marblemount line is complete it is understood that the company will investigate the territory south of the river at Rockport with a view toward extending their line to serve a group of farms
in that district.

Whether or not the formation of the county power district will effect completion of these plans has not been learned.

Basketball Schedule For Conference Announced

With football on the way out in the county, athletic officials have released the county basketball schedule which will open January 8th with Hamilton playing at Concrete for the opener. The local team will begin practice following their last football game next Wednesday afternoon.

The schedule for Concrete is as follows:

Jan. 8—Hamilton at Concrete.
Jan. 15—Concrete at Mt. Vernon.
Jan. 19—Sedro-Woolley at Concrete.
Jan. 22—Edison at Concrete.
Feb. 5—Concrete at Anacortes.
Feb. 9—LaConner at Concrete.
Feb. 12—Concrete at Hamilton.
Feb. 19—Burlington at Concrete.
Feb. 26—Concrete at Edison.

The Busy Bee club will meet on Tuesday, Nov. 10th with an all day meeting and pot luck luncheon at the Womens' Club rooms.

ELECTION BET PARADE HERE WEDNESDAY

Hallowe'en Pranks Bring Kids Trouble

Celebration of the Hallowe'en holiday Saturday night proved an exciting time for about fourteen young men of this city who let their imaginations run wild in a choice of pranks.

The outcome was that the fourteen fellows, many of which were old enough to know better, were arrested on the charge of turning in a false fire alarm, turning on six fire hydrants and throwing away
the caps, and a few other stunts
of similar caliber.

The local marshals rounded up the offenders for a brief visit at the jail Saturday night and last night a hearing was held at the City Hall before J. J. McDonald.
After pointing out the seriousness of their offense the boys were finally released, but will be given the task of replacing the caps on all hydrants, and painting the hy-drants under the direction of the fire department.

Other Hallowe'en activities included the usual stunts, soaping of windows, etc., with no especial damage except to the minds of those who happened to read some of the wording on the windows.

Dramatic Company To Present Three Act Play

Next Thursday night, November 12th, at the Concrete Theatre a stage production, "The Fifth Commandment" will be presented by the O. Kirkman Dramatic Co. The play is a three act comedy-drama
based on the Townsend Plan.

The performance here is being sponsored by the Concrete Boosters club, a share of the proceeds to go toward the Christmas tree fund.

corded high praise by every person present. The evening was spent in the enjoyment of Hallowe'en games and stunts. The awarding of the prizes for the prettiest costume proved an ordeal. Two sets of judges tackled the job and broke down under the strain but finally the prize was awarded to Mrs. G. L.
Leonard with second prize going to Mrs. Geo. D. Kauffman.

Concrete Enjoys A Election Bet Parade

Election betting in Concrete this year took many strange forms and Wednesday noon of this week the town was treated to quite a show
as Brown Wiseman and Joe Baxter, local Republicans, gamely paid their debts.

The above cartoon, drawn by George Elmgren, local artist, depicts Brown pushing Bud Thompson in a wheelbarrow, with Joe following along behind on his hands and knees. The parade was witnessed by a large crowd, who followed the procession from the City Hall to the school house. Bud was then dumped over the terrace
for good measure.

In explaining the sign, Brown
says it refers to Barnums statement "The public loves to be fooled."

A number of other bets were scheduled but no more public appearances have been recorded.

RED CROSS LEADERS PREPARE FOR DRIVE

A special meeting of the Skagit
Valley Chapter of the American Red Cross was held at the home of Mrs. Louise Hunter in Sedro-Woolley Friday, October 30th.

Miss Alice D. Case from the San Francisco office was introduced by Miss Gertrude Linn and gave a resume of the general program.

The Red Cross activities cover
four fields, Public health, First aid, Veterans Service and Disaster Relief. It had 806 public health nurses on duty last year, 50,000 persons were instructed in home hygiene and 212,000 in first aid. The farm and home accident program reached 10,000,000 homes.

The Red Cross leaders are now
preparing for their annual Roll Call membership drive, which will start November 11th.

Dunn-Pape Wedding In Bellingham Yesterday

Friends of Miss Myra Dunn, daughter of Earl Dunn of Seattle and Gene Pape, son of Jim Pape of Sauk, will be interested in knowing that they were quietly married Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 by Judge Gruber in Bellingham. Mrs.
Robert Swanson and Mrs. Charles Reece, sisters of the bride-groom were the only witnesses. Mr. Pape is well known in the Sauk district and is employed near there. Mrs.
Pape has visited here many times.

Hunters Lucky As Duck Season Opens For Month

Duck dinners were plentiful the first of the week, following the opening of duck season on Sunday.
Many hunters from here made the trip down to the flats and waterfront and few came home without at least one duck for their trouble.

The season remains open until November 30th.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs.
Rawson Hornbeck, born Monday,
died suddenly this morning.

Entire County Goes Democratic With The Nation

All Republican Candidates Defeated—Thompson Is Loser For Commissioner.

Concrete acted no different than the rest of the country in the general election Tuesday. All Democratic candidates were swept into office on the landslide that carried the nation for Roosevelt.

As a result of the election our next state officers will include all Democratic candidates from Gov.
Martin down to Supt. of Public Instruction, which was considered the one sure thing on the Republican slate.

Our next legislators from this district will include Fred Martin of Rockport and Violet Boede of Island county, reelected to their position, and one newcomer, Robt.
Ginnett of Anacortes. Grant Sisson, next high man was nearly one thousand votes behind.

For state senator, W. J. Knutzen will give up his position to Leroy Todd of Anacortes. Todd led Knutzen by nearly 2,000 at last reports.

Thompson Defeated

Richard Thompson of this city made one of the best races of the county group, but was nosed out in the final returns by Ed C. Carr of Sedro-Woolley. Around 900 votes separated the two men, and there is no chance of further returns changing this standing.

Thompson's defeat loses Concrete and the upper valley its last representation in the county court house. Hugo Bauman, the retiring commissioner is the only man from the upper valley in the court house and his retirement leaves Concrete entirely dependent upon the mercy of lower valley office holders.

Power District Carries

Another blow to Concrete was the district power bill which was carried by the margin of 1000 or more. This measure was defeated here nearly 2 to 1 but carried in all outlying districts.

As the result of the vote the commissioners were also duly elected.
They are Charlie Nelson, first district; John Wyle, second district and Mont King, third district. They will administer the affairs of the power district for terms of one,
two and three years.

Skagit county was the only one in this district to approve the bill.
Both Snohomish and Whatcom voted the measure down.

40-Mill Limit Approved

All other initiatives, referendum, and constitutional legislation was voted down in the county and the state with the exception of the 40-mill limit, which was approved by almost the same majority as the others were defeated by.

Counting of the ballots this year was a slow and tedious job. The members of the election board remained on the job until it was finished, however, and arrived at their respective homes in time for breakfast Wednesday morning.

Hunting Party Gets Mess Of Deer On East Side

A report from the deer hunters east of the mountains was received this week by Mrs. H. C. Lisherness, stating that her husband and his party had accounted for five deer for the six hunters. No such luck has been reported by the other group from town.

Postponed Council Session Next Monday Evening

The regular meeting of the town council, postponed this week on account of the absence of most of the members, will be held next Monday evening at the regular time.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Guthrie and daughters Marjorie, Louise and Sarah and Mrs. A. Thompson left Monday for their homes in Alabama. They have been living on Burpee Hill.

"Breathing Spell" Is Over

Well, that's over. One thing certain is that can no longer be any doubt as to whether or not the general public is in favor of the New Deal so far. In their overwhelming vote of confidence to the president they have indicated a willingness to continue the experiments in social and governmental problems as far as he wishes to go. With a Democratic Congress to pave the way, we look for an era of lawmaking that may not be pleasant to businessmen but will at least be interesting as a phase in the change from private to government control of industry. At any rate the "breathing spell" for business is over and from now on no one is sure of what will happen next.

One feature of the District Power Bill that fails to measure up to representative standards is the fact that the power district commissioners were selected without competition by only those voting for the measure. Those voting against the measure had no voice in selecting the men who have such wide power over their property and rights as citizens. The power district embraces the entire county and can be a bigger business than running the county. In view of this apparent need for the best men possible for such a position it is hardly right for a set of commissioners to be forced upon the voters without a fair chance to select their own candidates and vote in a regular procedure.

The voter is a strange person. In this county the vote for the 40-mill limit on taxes was an indication that, like the rest of the state, they wanted lower taxes. Then in another cross mark of the pencil the District Power Bill is voted in. This measure is not governed by the 40-mill levy law and thereby can raise taxes to any height necessary to carry out its provisions.

LaConner's idea of a "prankless Hallowe'en" could well be adopted here. It consists of a big free party on the night of the celebration. This year the marshals had to hold their party after the holiday.

Anyway the big election only made liars out of a few hundred newspapers, the Literary Digest, 2,372 county chairmen and 10,000 voters. Too bad the voters had to fall so low.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO IN CONCRETE

The Lisherness Auto company has purchased the lot adjoining the present garage building on the east and is making plans to start work soon on a new garage building to cover the entire lot. The building will be of corrugated iron construction.

The Concrete high school basketball team met the Rockport boys in the Legion hall last night and came out on the long end of a 23 to 10 score. The Rockport team, which was organized a few weeks ago by Brown Wiseman, made a very creditable showing but better teamwork on the part of Concrete proved the margin of victory.

Mrs. E. L. Gardner entertained about fifteen of the little folks at a Hallowe'en party at her home in Crofoot addition Monday afternoon complimentary to her daughter Edna.

Mrs. Marcella Pierce, a former Concrete girl, passed away suddenly in Seattle Monday. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Pierce, who resided in this city some years ago.

Oscar Banner and Jack Snyder are building a new porch on Abbs Clarks store in Rockport this week.

THE next day there was confusion and excitement in the office; nobody could talk of anything but the change, and Tony received due respect as a close friend of the new associate editor.

"Is he nice?"
"Mr. Bellamy? He's charming."

"They say Danielson's frantic."

"Fitch doesn't look any too gay."

Mr. Fitch, whatever his feelings, was not in evidence, but Bess Cutter was. Fat and soft and pathetic, with a lace hat and much too much rouge accentuating the wrinkled bagginess of her face and the false gold of her hair, she went from desk to desk, trying to seem a part of the city room again.

"Did—did Frank say anything about my doing some work for him next month, Tony?" she presently asked.

"No, he didn't, Bess. He may have to Greeny."

"I was going up to Tahoe. But now I'm not, and I'd have time for space and detail again," Bess murmured carelessly. "You ask Greeny, will you?"

"I surely will."

Tony heard her telling Vince in a low tone that she regretted the scene she had created in the office a few days before. A friend had sent her down some "grapa" from Sonora, and like a fool she had taken some on that hot, hot day. "Frank and I never stay mad very long; we're too old friends," Bess said uneasily. From her tone Tony knew that at all events they were not yet reconciled after the last sensational break.

Mae Ethyl Muzzy was virtuously indignant at Bessie's lack of pride in coming into the office at all. "My gracious," she whispered to Tony. "He's done with her—I mean she let herself in for it, didn't she?—and he's done with her, and what of it? Mrs. Fitch was saying on Saturday night—"

"Oh, you met Mrs. Fitch?"
"My mother and I went over and had dinner with them on Saturday night."

"Oh?"
"He wants me to do articles about all the country clubs," Mae went on. "It ought to be quite a feature, I was just telling Van and Joe Burke about it, and they say he'll help me do it. They want to run my picture up at the top of the article."

"Marvelous!" Tony commented. In her soul she said: "Well, if it wouldn't make you sick!" Aloud she asked, "What are you getting now, Mae?"

"Fifty."

Tony raised her eyebrows politely; she herself was getting thirty dollars a week.

"New associate editor, Greeny?" Tony said smilingly, as the city editor came up to her desk.

"Seems so. Pip, too, from what I hear," Greeny said, with a jerk of his head toward Mr. Arnoldson's office upstairs. "Say, Bessie, I want to speak to you a minute," he added.

He and the late editor of the "Bessie Saw It" column withdrew to a quiet corner of the office, and Tony, covertly watching, as they all were, saw that whatever he was saying angered and mortified his companion dangerously.

"Tony, come over here a minute!" the harassed Greeny presently called. "Here's the thing," he explained in a confidential undertone. "Bess here—you know how we all feel about her—she's one of us, she belongs here; that's all right. But Frank—Frank Fitch, see?—he's trying to land something good for her, and he thinks he has landed something good for her, and until he does he thinks it'd be smarter of her not to come in, see?"

"You mean that Frank Fitch don't dare come in here while I'm here, and for good reason?" Bessie began ominously. "Well, you're right. I've got something to say to Frank Fitch—"

"Listen, Bess," Tony interrupted. "Will you just listen to me, and then you can say anything you like. You're not going to get anywhere with Frank Fitch this way. You know that; you only make him mad. Now, you clear out, and some day this week Greeny'll telephone you to come down; we'll pick a time when he's in a good humor, won't we, Greeny?"

"Bet your life!" Greenwood said fervently. For Bess was obviously softening. Encouraged, Tony recommenced with fresh zeal.

"Yes, but I can't walk out now," Bess objected sullenly after a while; "they all know I came down here to see Frank."

"Well, then, I'll tell you what you do," said the resourceful Tony. "You and Greeny and I have been talking about new Sunday articles, see? Greeny, you tell Bess now, so that they'll all hear, that she better go into the Sunday room with you and see Davids. And I'll tell 'em out here you've got a new idea to work up. Good luck, Bess!" she ended loudly, going back to her desk.

When they had gone she sat on, working, telephoning, thinking. These editorial pets who were spasmodically featured for a column of this or that were a sorry crew.

Presently Mr. Arnoldson came in, and with him, very tall and square-shouldered, and smiling his own characteristic smile, was Larry. The editor-in-chief introduced him to Greeny, the two men knew each other anyway, and shook hands heartily, and then Greeny took him about the office, stopping at the desks, or at the knots of men who gathered in his way. Larry gave Tony a special smile. "Hello, Tony," he said.

"Does it mean you'll see much of him?" Brenda asked that night.

"Not necessarily. His office is upstairs, and he'll be frightfully busy getting to know the ropes. Besides, I'm not really there much, except Thursdays," Tony answered.

Once he was in the city office and nodded at her, and once he was talking hard with Mr. Arnoldson and some other man, going down in the elevator when she got in, and then he naturally only lifted his hat with an abstracted smile of greeting. That was all in the first two weeks of his tenancy of the imposing upstairs office that had his name on the door. Then one Wednesday afternoon she found a note on her desk; just one of the usual carelessly penciled office notes: "Ruth gets back today; wants you to come up and dine with her tonight."

It was dated "Tuesday," and signed "L. B." Tony twisted it in her fingers for a moment and then telephoned to the office of the business manager to ask if Miss Taft could see Mr. Bellamy. Yes, Miss Taft was pleased to come right up. Her heart was beating hard as she went upstairs.

"Tony, you look magnificent yourself!"

"I am. Brendy was married at noon today, you know."

"Sure enough! Ruth wired, I think."

"But how grand you look!"

"I am beautiful, I think," Tony said complacently. Her dark blue coat was embellished by an immaculate and delicate frill of white; gardenias were on her shoulder, and one gardenia was pressed against the brim of her dark-blue hat. "I've never been so grand," she observed. "Brendy was lovely, too, and her beau-papa gave us a noon breakfast at the Fairmont. Then Aunt Meg and Aunt Sally went off to weep together, and the Atwaters got into their Buick and started for Monterey, and I came down to break the back of my Thursday stuff and found this."

WHEN IS A "TAX" NOT A TAX?

—when it is a Service Charge
for using Public Highways

Did you ever consider how useless your automobile would be if there were no roads to run it on? The very existence of automobiles depends on places to use them. Roads and streets are as necessary to cars as are the wheels.

With such dependence of cars on roads it is only reasonable that the motorist should pay for these highways in the proportion in which he uses them. Were it not for practical difficulties, the motorist could be charged according to speedometer readings or tire wear. As such measures are out of the question, the so-called "gasoline tax" was devised as the fairest yardstick of road service charges.

This commonly called "Tax" really is not a tax but a SERVICE CHARGE like a telephone toll or electric bill.

You pay this gasoline service charge only when you use your car. Anyone is privileged to travel by other means of transportation and save the gasoline charge. This so-called State tax is not like most other taxes which all must pay regardless of direct benefit.

So, Washington motorists pay for their State highways in proportion as they use them. This is one reason why they are willing to pay a few cents more for gasoline when they know those extra funds are going into better highways and that roads paved with PORTLAND CEMENT CONCRETE are saving them more than the cost in the operation of their cars.

CONCRETE provides the permanent, economical highway that also gives thousands of Washington workmen useful employment in the building. Insist that public officials spend your gasoline service charges for CONCRETE highways.

Maiden Voyage

She displayed his note. "I'm terribly sorry, Larry, will you tell Ruth? I went home early yesterday, on account of wedding excitement, and didn't find this until just this minute."

"I'll tell her, and you telephone to the morning, and cook up something between you," Larry glanced at a paper on his desk.

His tone was somehow horribly disappointing, horribly hurtful. They felt the chill of death at her heart. That kind, puzzled look—"What's-what's the matter?" she asked, as he did not speak.

"Is anything?" Larry asked. But she saw the dull red come up under the skin, and she heard the artificial note in the voice he tried to make simple and surprised.

"Well," Tony said thickly, "that's what I'm asking you."

Larry took off his glasses; wiped them; put them on again.

"Then I say that nothing is the matter," he said; and after a moment, as she did not speak, "Sit down, Tony. Perhaps there's something we ought to say, something I ought to say about all this."

She sat down, looking at him expectantly, with her blue eyes heavy with shadows, and her lips trembling. Then suddenly she put her hand down on her arm childishly and burst into tears.

"I'm m-m-miserable, Larry!" she sobbed.

The burst of tears ended almost suddenly as it had begun. Tony felt ashamed of herself, and, what was worse, felt that the situation had suddenly gone flat.

Shifting and gulping, not looking at him, she fumbled for her handkerchief, blew her nose, and wiped her eyes.

"I don't know why I did that," she apologized, swallowing.

Larry was sitting facing her, his hands on the arms of his chair. The expression of his face was completely non-committal; his fine gray eyes were narrowed and fixed on her. Tony's heart sank as she looked at him; he was not going to help her out.

"You knew I felt that way," she said sullenly.

The girl had a desperate sudden change of suasion; a desperate need to awaken, to be away from somewhere else, somewhere else in the dark.

"However, if you don't understand me, Larry—" she began, with a dignity. And with hands that trembled she gathered up her hair, and the new soft white gloves. "I did," Larry said suddenly.

For a second she stared at him, then, then dully, hopelessly she looked away.

"I don't know," she said.

"Exactly," Larry added briefly. There was silence again.

"Don't think I'm glad about it," he said, standing up. And, completely, as he made no comment, he added, "I had no idea of—of doing all this—"

After a pause he said, somewhat naturally, in a careless everyday voice: "Oh, that doesn't do any harm."

Tony was fitting on the soft new white gloves, her bag caught up lightly under her arm.

"And you'll give my message to Ruth?" she said, trying for an ordinary tone.

"I will indeed."

"Will telephone her and make a date," Tony walked to the door, looked back, nodded a good-by, and went out, closing the door carefully behind her.

Back at her desk in the city room

Tony Found Herself Inclined to Talk Aloud.

again Tony found herself inclined to talk aloud.

"Oh, you fool!" she said under her breath. She ranged the little notes before her without seeing them; slipped a sheet of yellow paper into her typewriter. "What of it—what of it—what of it?" she said fiercely. "What do you care what he thinks? He knows I'm crazy about him. What of it? I wish I hadn't gone up there! I could have sent a note. Darling Betsy—she looked so sweet. I wonder how it'd feel to be married to a man who made you feel completely crazy, nutty, the way I feel now. Going off with him in a car for Monterey—oh, I wish I hadn't gone up to his office! What did he say? Did he say anything at all? No, he didn't. He just sat there and was sorry for me."

She brought her mind to her notes; the bridesmaids for the Di Milano wedding had been picked. Mrs. James Lee Fairchild and her daughter Miss Janet were leaving for the East, where Miss Janet would be placed in a girls' school. Mrs. J. Kane Kelly was entertaining for her niece, Miss Barbara Fairchild.

Tony felt broken and sick; her head ached. She could not keep her mind on what she was doing. At six o'clock she walked home. The walk seemed nothing tonight. The nervous energy that drove her would have carried her on for miles without fatigue or even consciousness. Reaching her own room she changed from her wedding garments jerkily, spasmodically; sometimes hurrying as if driven, sometimes stopping short to fall into restless and feverish thought. There was a telegram; blood rushed into her face, and her fingers trembled as she opened it. It was only a few words of love and gratitude from San Jose, signed "Brenda and Alvin Atwater."

"They don't care who knows they're bride and groom," Tony thought. "Oh, Larry—Larry!" She put her hands to her head and squeezed her palms against her temples.

Guard Rare Plant

To protect a rare plant, a pact signed by nine governments is in effect. The plant is the Welwitschia, which grows only in the Kalahari desert of South Africa. It has no stem, and its long straplike leaves spring straight from its roots and end in a cluster of red cone blossoms. The leaves are renewed from the base as they fade at the tip and are thought to be the oldest leaves in existence. The plant was discovered in 1890, and all efforts to grow it outside the Kalahari desert have failed.

Birdsview News

Mrs. Mary Stiles spent last week with relatives in Sedro-Woolley.

T. F. Brayton was calling at the home of J. W. Morgan Tuesday.

Mrs. Selma Savage and Mrs. Montie Bloom were calling on old friends in Lyman Thursday.

The Primary room at school enjoyed a Halloween party Friday afternoon. The children beginning school next year were the guests. They were Dorothy Rathvon, Merle Spurling, Dorothy Wyatt, Marilyn Brayton, and Nellie Isham. Mrs. Jordan served them lunch before they left for their homes.

Friday night the upper grades room at school enjoyed a masquerade party in the gymnasium. The first prize went to Bobbie Beck, second to Bertha Brayton and the third prize to Shirley Kelly. The children played many games and contests, after which all were seated to a decorated table with place cards made by a committee of girls and a delicious lunch was served to all. Mr. and Mrs. Archie Thomas and Buss Good were the chaperones.

A large crowd from Birdsview motored to Lyman Saturday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Elmer Davison. Services were held at the Gospel Mission church and burial was made in the Lyman cemetery. Mrs. Davison had lived in Birdsview seven years. She was an active worker in both Birdsview and Lyman churches, was a member of the W.C.T.U. and had a wide circle of friends here. She leaves to mourn her passing her husband, Elmer Davison and five children, Freda and Kathryn Shook of Lyman, and Everett, Maurine and Jim Davison of Birdsview. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Buckner and one sister and four brothers also survive.

Pacific, Atlantic Salmon

The Pacific salmon is quite different from its Atlantic brother, says a writer in the Chicago Daily News. This species dies after spawning once and never returns to the ocean, while the eastern salmon spawns approximately four times. It always returns to its fresh-water birthplace and frequently lingers in that locality for a whole year. During this time the Atlantic salmon never eats. It receives its nourishment from its own body, which it has previously built up from ocean feeding, but this fast costs a 30 per cent reduction in weight.

DANCE EVERY SATURDAY NIGHT At GLACIERVIEW HALL, 6 miles east of Rockport.

Well folks here we are again. Gee but us Democrats whaled the stuffing out of the G. O. P. While my fellow citizens of the upper Skagit shot my political carcus full of holes at the primaries I sure can laugh in return.

Well, I want every one to come out to our dance Saturday night and celebrate if you are a Democrat or let us console you if you are a Republican. Let us forget our troubles and get going on our efforts to get the road paved to Marblemount in four years and say $1.00 each to the first numbers drawn till jack pot is gone.
