WOMAN'S DILEMMA

A woman saw her husband slyly take a piece of paper and put it away in the farthest corner of the bureau drawer. If he had carefully thrown it in, she would have caught nothing of it. But she asked: "What's that?" And he answered sheepishly, "Oh, nothing." She said wondering what it was which said was of no importance. As he was gone she looked at it. This was what she read: "I want to say that new hat you bought which if you are able to resist the temptation and will leave this paper alone."

Now she's in a pickle. How can she claim the hat without giving herself away? You answer it.

Lions Drop To Third Place As Burlington Wins

Tigers Too Much For Local Boys In 28-22 Victory—Tournament Hopes Fade.

Standings	Won	Lost
Anacortes	8	0
Sedro-Woolley	7	2
Concrete	6	3
LaConner	4	5
Burlington	4	5
Mount Vernon	3	6
Edison	3	6
Hamilton	0	8

Concrete's tournament hopes for this year took two smacks on the chin over the week end and unless the games this week turn out in a certain way, there is no chance for the trip. The smacks on the chin that removed Concrete from second place or an assured berth at the tournament was the Burlington game and the ruling that the contested Sedro-Woolley player was eligible and would be allowed to finish the season.

To be in the running now Concrete must beat Edison and Mount Vernon must beat Sedro-Woolley. This would make a play-off necessary between Sedro-Woolley and Concrete, and the winner would receive second place in the county and the tournament trip. If Sedro-Woolley wins from Mount Vernon they have undisputed right to the second honors no matter how the Edison game goes.

Concrete 22; Burlington 28

Last Friday Concrete entertained Burlington on the local floor, but Burlington was rude enough to leave home the team that has been dropping games all year and bring the team that nearly beat Anacortes. This game, led by a streak of lightning named Crandall kept the Lions on the low end of the score all evening. Concrete came within a field goal of a tie score in the last period, but another spurt by Burlington put the game out of danger.

The score at the half was 17-10; at the third quarter 15-21 and ended 28-22. The local boys were completely at loss under their own basket due to the advantage of height of the Burlington men. However, as the score indicates, it was a good game and a well-earned victory for Burlington.

The box score:
Concrete
Barta (1) F.... Mower (5)
Pressentin (8) F.... Daniels (2)
Wiseman (5) C..... King (4)
Scott (5) G..... Clark
Tingley (5) G..... Crandall (12)
Subs: Concrete, Whitehair (2), Dillard (1), Burlington, Knutzen (5), Gorman.

By way of consolation the Concrete second team won a hard-fought preliminary battle 23-17.

While Concrete was dropping its contest Anacortes swamped Sedro-Woolley, Ropes and all, 52 to 32. Mount Vernon won over LaConner 32 to 23 and Edison beat Hamilton 38 to 18.

Final Games Friday

All teams will play their final games of the schedule tomorrow evening. Concrete will go to Edison for their last battle; Sedro-Woolley will play Mount Vernon; Burlington, Anacortes and LaConner will end up against Hamilton. The postponed game between Hamilton and Anacortes has been forfeited by the Hamilton team.

Where Credit Is Due

In last week's list of contributors to the Red Cross flood relief fund an item of $10.00 was credited to the Mt. Baker Sunday school. To be more specific we have been asked credit $5.00 of this as from the Sunday school and the other $5.00 from the Women's Adult Class.

Not Improved

Mrs. Bert Jewett, who was injured here a few weeks ago when a roof collapsed under the weight of the snow, is reported unimproved. It was found that she had suffered a broken spine.

Always on the Job

Newhalem Train Blocked By Slides

Penned in between two snow slides on the railway between Rockport and Newhalem Saturday night, the steam locomotive of the City of Seattle railroad and its crew and passengers were in a tight spot for a few hours.

The train made its regular trip to Rockport Saturday evening, but on the way back found a number of small slides along the right of way. Near Nestos spur they crossed a small one safely only to encounter a larger one that blocked the track completely. Backing up they found that another larger one had come down behind them and they were left with nowhere to go.

A call for assistance brought crews from Newhalem and a bulldozer from the C.C.C. camp at Bacon creek, which cleared the slides after a few hours. By Tuesday through traffic had been resumed on the railway.

Odd Fellows Night

The annual visit of the Odd-Fellows and Rebekahs of Concrete to the Mt. Baker Presbyterian church will be held this Sunday evening at 7:30. For this occasion the pastors subject will be "What I Saw on the Jerico Road." There will be special music.

Fifteen Years Ago In Concrete

Concrete Herald, Feb. 25, 1922

Notices have been posted this week calling attention to the annual school election to be held next Saturday, March 4th. In the Concrete school district the election will be held in the domestic science room of the old school building. This year the retiring director is Chas. R. Craig, who was elected last year for a one-year term. He states that his working hours are such that he cannot give full attention to the duties of the office, so prefers not to be considered for re-election.

The sixteenth annual masquerade of the F. O. E. was a big success in every way and proved to be one of the best ever given by the aerle. The large hall of the American Legion was filled with dancers throughout the evening and well past midnight. The number of costumes on the floor was larger than usual, and were probably the most attractive ever seen in the city. The prize for the best costumed

ANNUAL ELECTION OF SCHOOL DIRECTORS

Notices were posted this week announcing that the annual school election will be held next week. In the Concrete district this means that the patrons will be called upon to choose two directors this year, one from the 5th district, which includes Van Horn, and the other from the 3rd district, which takes in East Concrete.

So far no contest has developed for these positions as both Elmer Larsen and Geo. A. Campbell, retiring directors, have filed their candidacy for re-election for another three years.

Alumni Dance Next On Legion Hall Schedule

Taking their cue from the fine crowd attending the Valentine dance held in the Legion Hall recently, the Concrete Alumni have rented the hall for another dance, to be held Friday evening, March 5th. This time Al Widekamp and his orchestra will furnish the musical entertainment.

Students Hear Lecturer

Channing Beebe, geologist and explorer, was a visitor at the local school today and entertained the students with a lecture entitled "From Ants to Elephants," being a talk on his adventures in Africa.

Wiseman Named On First All County B. B. Team

Russell Wiseman, center of the Concrete basketball team, rose to fame this week by receiving the nomination as center on the Mt. Vernon Herald's All-County Five. Wiseman has been playing exceptional ball this year and evidently his work was noticed elsewhere as well as at home. All season he has been among the ten highest scorers in the county and at present it 3rd from the top, being out-scored only by Nelson of LaConner and Millard of Anacortes.

The mythical team, which is also the first to be published this year, lists the following: Forwards, Nelson of LaConner and Millard of Anacortes; Guards, Ropes of Sedro-Woolley and Oakland of Anacortes; Center, Wiseman of Concrete.

Martin Pressentin, local forward who has also been among the ten high scorers most of the season, was given honorable mention for his seasons efforts.

More Snow!

While Concrete was blessed with only six inches of new snow Saturday, Marblemount and the upper valley did much better. A total of 18 inches was reported at Marblemount.

Post Office Will Open In Bank Building Mar. 1

Will Start First of Month In New Location—Patrons Receive Box Numbers.

Concrete's new Post Office will be ready on schedule and the first mail will be distributed at the new location on Monday morning, Mar. 1st. The old office will close at the usual hour Saturday evening and all equipment, materials and records will be moved the next day to the office in the State Bank building.

Notices will be mailed out today giving all boxholders the number and combination of their new box. As the boxes in the new office lock automatically each time they are closed it will no longer be possible to leave the combination in place. Patrons are urged to memorize their combinations to avoid delay in re-setting the dials each time they open their box.

Regulations In Force

With the move into a separate building a number of new regulations will be in force. For instance, there will be no package drop as in the old office. All packages must be presented at the window during office hours. Also the large size boxes, which were without locks, will be discontinued.

For a short time some difficulty will be encountered in handling general delivery mail as part of the new equipment ordered from the factory has not arrived. This order includes the general delivery boxes. Wherever possible those using general delivery are asked to rent a box for the month to help relieve the congestion.

Lobby Open Until Eight

The lobby of the Post Office will be opened at 7:30 in the morning and will remain open until 8:00 o'clock in the evening for a month or two. During the summer months it will remain open until 9:00 o'clock.

Regular office hours of from 8:00 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. will prevail at the windows.

The new office is being completed in a very attractive manner and will be a credit to the town as a neat and business-like place in which to transact business.

STATE BOARD RULES SEDRO PLAYER O. K.

The question of whether or not Sedro-Woolley should lose its star player and forfeit three games in the basketball league was settled last Thursday evening when the state board of control ruled that as the player had missed eligibility by such a small margin they would make an exception in his case and allow him to finish the year.

The player in question, William Ropes, had participated in a game during his first semester in school, which made him ineligible at mid year this year, he being a mid-year student.

The decision of the board was not unanimous, so it appears that Concrete's action in calling for a definite ruling was not entirely out of place. In fact, the ruling came as a surprise to most school officials in the county.

In the opinion of Supt. Hansen of the local school this case will open up an avenue of appeal for other schools who have players also missing eligibility by a small margin. The bad feature he feels, is that the case was not presented by Sedro-Woolley before the season began, instead of waiting until mid-season when trouble is bound to result.

Action Again On Road To Upper Mining District

Plans for building the Ruby Creek road up into the Slate Creek district were revived this week by the Whatcom county commissioners, when J. W. Austin made a motion that a project be prepared calling for an expenditure of $20,000 of secondary highway funds in preliminary work.

Entered at Concrete Postoffice as Second Class Mail Matter

Beginning next week Concrete will take its place among those modern little communities who have forsaken the time-honored institution known as the country post office. Our drug-store-post-office has its counterpart in small towns everywhere—a friendly gathering place for folks who like to hang around in hopes that their box will be blessed with a letter before the curtain goes up, signifying that the mail is out. The homely exchanges of gossip, the occasional sampling of the wares of the soda fountain, and the more frequent glances through the latest magazines on the display rack, to say nothing of "kidding" the drug store clerks will all become a pleasant memory of the past. So, while welcoming a fine, new, efficient post office, we can also look back with genuine affection upon that community center that has for so long been a part of Concrete life—the post office in the drug store.

A move on the part of Sauk residents to secure the Riverside bridge near Mount Vernon, when it is torn down and replaced with a new structure, found the editor napping on the job. Six hundred signatures have been secured on a petition to the commissioners to have the old bridge placed across the Skagit at Faber. The plan is worth more attention than it has been getting as it will open up a new year-around territory to Concrete merchants and also provide another artery for tourist travel through the valley. Also the fact that several other communities are after the same bridge means that unless the idea is given support and lots of it, it will be just another dream.

In view of constantly mounting taxes it becomes apparent that the government's efforts to give the general public lower prices through public ownership and higher wages through private industry, springs from a desire to make extra funds available for paying taxes, rather than to enrich the individual.

Pro-divorce legislation becomes popular among the nation's legislators. Washington has a bill to lower the term of residence required for a complete divorce, and so has Idaho. If this develops into a competitive race some state will soon be giving legal divorces with each marriage license. A round trip ticket.

Remarkable how a little sunshine can brighten up the whole future.

and the Concrete girls saving the honor of the school by winning 9 to 8. The boys game was fast but marred by too much wrangling, a free-for-all fight being threatened several times largely due to poor judgement on the part of the referee.

Ed Pressentin returned from Burlington Wednesday night with his infant son Martin, who has been critically ill at the hospital there. Mrs. Thos. Ryan, who has been nursing the baby through his illness with pneumonia at her home in Ness returned with them. The little lad's life was despaired of many times, and the friends of the family are glad that he is convalescing. Mr. and Mrs. Ross Zongrone left yesterday for Burlington where Mr. Zongrone will undergo an operation for appendicitis.

Joe Janisch, the only merchant in town who runs two stores, was a business visitor in Sedro-Woolley yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Milton and children moved Wednesday from Crofoot's addition to the Carl Baker cottage at Grasmere.

Mrs. W. H. Wallace is seriously ill with pneumonia at her home in Central Concrete.

The look in her kind brown eyes, the inflection in her voice, told Tony what it was she asked. The girl flushed as she answered regretfully:

"No, it isn't Doctor Vanderwall. I wish it were. We like each other so much! But—but it happens there's nobody else."

"Does he know it?" the other woman asked in quick concern. "Oh, yes. He knows the man."

"Oh-h-h?" Mrs. Unger murmured in disappointment. "I'm glad you would have liked it, for I know you like Doctor Vanderwall," Tony said. "I love him, of course; there's no one like him. But—but it so happens that I'm not—"

"Heart whole and fancy free?" Ellen Unger finished it with a little philosophical shrug of her shoulders. "Well, never mind, my dear. We have to take these things as they come."

Then the guests had gone and Tony was alone with Joe. The sitting room, where they had had so good a dinner and so satisfying a talk, looked somewhat disordered, and the fire had burned low. Joe returning from farewells at the door, threw on another log—two or three logs. The flame started up again, and Tony said:

"Ah, don't let me get warm and lazy! We have to go right out into it again."

Joe had seated himself in a low fireside chair of shabby leather; he seemed to be paying no attention to her, and for the first time in the course of their friendship Tony had a moment's uneasiness about him. What did this abstracted, unsmiling manner mean? Surely Joe wasn't going to frighten her, to make her feel that this constant coming to his house, this easy intimacy, was not quite as safe as she tried to persuade Brenda it was? "Sit down a minute," he said.

"Nine-twenty, dear. And you know my big sister. She'll telephone in a few minutes."

"No, sit down," he said. And then suddenly: "That telegram that was here when we came in. It wasn't from the Ungers."

"Wasn't it?"

"No."

"Oh—?" She looked at him expectantly. "And am I to know what it was?" she asked, in the tone of a good little girl.

"I have to tell you," Joe said, looking at the fire, his voice devoid of expression. "It was from Larry."

"Larry?" Her voice was only a whisper; the quick blood came up

"Sit Down a Minute," He Said.

Into her suddenly radiant face. "Tell me—" she said with an effort, "he's here?"

"No, it was from Baltimore. I said it was from Larry," Joe said; "it was signed by them both. It was signed 'Caroline and Lawrence.'"

For a long minute Tony looked at him steadily. The color slowly drained from her face, leaving it drawn.

"How—d'you mean?"

"I mean—there!" He stretched a long arm, and she took the folded yellow paper from him as if she were afraid to touch it.

"What is it? What does it say?" she said thickly. Her eyes fell on the printed words, but the message made no sense to her, it danced about crazily and she could only see the signatures: "Caroline and Lawrence."

"He says that they were married today," Joe said flatly. Tony put the telegram down unread, leaning over to the table to shove it well on; sat back and looked at Joe.

"I don't know what that means," she said faintly.

"I don't blame you," said Joe. "I think it's rotten. I'm sorry. I'm damned sorry. I had no more idea of it than you had."

He crossed the floor, and knelt down beside her chair, and she laid one hand on his shoulder and stared into his eyes in puzzled questioning. Her look was a child's pleading look.

"Oh, no—" she breathed. "It doesn't—let me see it—"

The crumpled telegram lay on the floor. Joe made no move to get it.

"That's what it says."

"That Larry—" she whispered.

"They were married today."

Back of it all - ADVERTISING

ADVERTISING plays one of the most prominent parts in modern life—without it progress would be slow and new inventions would take years to reach us. Everything you use these days owes a great deal of its importance to advertising. You eat advertised foods, drive an advertised car, read advertised books, attend advertised shows, then go home to take off advertised clothes and sleep in an advertised bed. Why not put advertising to work for you?

ADVERTISING is simply passing on information, telling people what you have to sell, where to get it and how much it costs. It return you are kept in mind when they want your services. It's modern business method—it's our job. Let us attend to your advertising needs in the Herald.

TRAFFIC on busy streets is measured in millions of car-miles annually—and millions of car stops. Can you make these stops swiftly, surely, with possible skidding?

You can if your streets are concrete. Concrete's gritty surface grips and holds tires; offers maximum traction in any weather. Its uniform riding surface gives you driving confidence—a further safety. And at night concrete's light gray, highly visible color makes your streets safer for motorists and pedestrian alike.

For economy, for good appearance—and safety—insist on concrete.

Concrete's Resistance to Spring "Break-Ups" Worth Millions to Taxpayers Every Year

When the frost comes out or the rain pours down, concrete pavements "can take it." They're always ready to get you through with safety. Even after the terrible punishment of this winter, routine, inexpensive maintenance will quickly put concrete in condition for heavy summer traffic. Aggravating detours and costly delays are avoided.
