SEEN and HEARD ON MAIN STREET

The Easter parade was nifty as usual, but it didn't reveal anything quite as nobby as the cloth-top button shoes us gentlemen wore thirty-five years ago.

Then there was the fellow who drove 25,000 miles on a set of tires, and then celebrated with a blow-out.

You never can tell about a woman, says Dad Gummit, adding that if you could, you shouldn't.

A fellow really discovers his ability to raise cash when the judge says "thirty dollars or thirty days."

"You look depressed my friend. What are you thinking of?"
"My future."
"What makes it seem so hopeless?"
"My past."

"When that elevator fell with you I suppose all your sins flashed before your eyes."
"Well, not all—you see, we only dropped five stories."

Killer McGuffy didn't mind facing the electric chair—it was the prospect of sitting in it that worried him.

"And let me tell you one thing. You owe your wonderful recovery entirely to your wife."
"Glad to hear it, doctor. I'll just make the check payable to her."

Dumb Dora thinks a saw horse is past tense of sea horse.

Notice in a Scotch church: "Those in the habit of putting buttons instead of coins in the collection plate will please put in their own buttons and not buttons from the cushions on the pews."

Student: "I hear the School Board is going to stop necking."
Second Student: "That so? First thing you know they'll be trying to make the students stop too."

She scare could breath.
She sneezed aloud
And there stood Eve!

The sea was calm, and the captain decided it would be a good time to satisfy the cabin boy's desire to take the helm. He pointed out the North star to the boy, and gave explicit directions to steer toward it all the time.

For a while everything went well but finally the young pilot got into difficulty. "Captain," he called, "I've passed that star. Will you please come and pick out another?"

The electric chair can be termed period furniture. It always ends a sentence.

POME

The horse and mule live 30 years
And nothing know of wines and beers;
The goat and sheep at 20 die
And never taste of Scotch and rye;
The cows drink water by the ton,
And at 18 are mostly done.
A dog at 15 cashes in,
Without the air of rum or gin;
The cat in milk and water soaks,
And then in 12 short years it croaks.
The modest, sober, bone-dry hen,
Lays eggs for nogs, then dies at ten.
All animals are strictly dry,
They sinless live and quickly die;
But sinful, gin-ful, rum-soaked men
Survive for three score years and ten!

Dr. C. R. Olds, who has been practicing dentistry here for the past two years after taking over the practice of the late Dr. H. P. Swain, has arranged to take over the dental offices of Dr. William A. Fisher, Jr. at Lynden.

The announcement was made in the Lynden Tribune last week that Dr. Olds would spend four days a week in that city, from Wednesday through Saturday, but will be in Concrete the first two days of the week until he can make arrangements to dispose of his practice here.

Dr. Olds has been a prominent member of the local American Legion post and an active civic worker here and will be greatly missed when he leaves to make Lynden his permanent home.

GAME MEN RAISE LEVEL IN TEXAS POND

Game Protectors have been busy the past few weeks adding to the sportsmen's future chances of good catches by fish planting and other restoration work. Brood stock rainbow trout, from 10 to 14 inches long, were planted in Baker Lake. 1033 were planted last week and the same number this week from the Birdsview fish hatchery.

On the Sauk road, towards Darrington some restoration work was done in rebuilding the old dam at Texas Pond. The repairs raised the lake level about three and one half feet and will increase the spawning area of both lakes by over 50 per cent. The two lakes will be re-stocked with Eastern Brook trout.

Unemployment Insurance To Cover All Employees

Questionaires will be mailed to all Washington employers within the next few weeks who will be subject to the state unemployment compensation act after July 1 to secure the information necessary to establish their accounts on the date the new act become effective.

The 1941 session of the state legislature amended the unemployment compensation act to include employers of any individual after July 1st, without regard to the duration of the employment or the number of persons employed.

The only exceptions to the coverage provisions are those accorded agricultural labor; domestic service in a private home; government employees; a minor in the employ of his parent; a parent in the employ of a son or daughter; workers on a commission basis only; newsboys delivering papers on the street or house to house; and casual labor not in the usual course of an employer's business.

Frank Walsh Transferred To Seattle Manager Post

Terrell, acting manager of the division, who will step into the office of operating manager of the entire system.

The largest and one of the smallest of Washington's state parks are to be found in Spokane in Eastern Washington.

Mount Spokane State Park, a year around recreation area of 16,000 acres, is the largest of the state's 56 parks. A vista house on the summit greets the visitor with a view of the lakes, streams and mountains of Eastern Washington, Northern Idaho and Southern British Columbia.

Spokane Battlefield Monument, but an acre in area, commemorates the battleground of United States Army and Cour D'Alene Indians.

Spokane County also boasts the third largest park site in the state in Riverside State Park. Containing 4,000 acres, the site extends from the city limits of Spokane through the water-carved gorge of the Spokane River. Twenty-six miles of scenic drive extend through this park from the city limits.

Wedding invitations were received this week by friends of Dick Rayburn of Seattle, formerly of Newhalem and this city, who will be married to Miss Mary Christine Cowie on Sunday at the Emanuel Episcoal church on Mercer Island.

Buller Tells Own Version Of Cascade Pass History

At the gavel meeting of the Grange, held at Marblemount a few weeks ago, Richard Buller was on the program for a talk on the history of the Cascade Pass highway and the town of Marblemount. Well known in the upper valley as a teller of tales, Dick came through with the following version:

* * *

History Of Marblemount And The Cascade Highway

"I have been asked by the Grange to write a history of Marblemount and who discovered the Cascade Highway. Now history is a mighty hard thing to write about without being called a liar by ignorant people that can't read and just have to get all they know over the radio. Now when I was a young feller about the most important thing in history was about Columbus discovering American but shucks anybody with a good boat could have did that if they just kept on sailing westward from Yurup long enough. A body couldn't have mist as big a place as America is, but to find a tiny groove in the mountains when the whole thing is nothing but humps and hollows takes some discovering. Another thing, America was only discovered once but the Cascade Highway has been discovered by every politician that has ever went to Olympia from Skagit County so it is about the most discovered pass in the State of Washington. Now as to the first discoverer, this is not counting Injuns 'cause it was so long ago that the first Injun never left his name. So now we come down to the white man, as the Indjuns is mostly all ded now anyway and can't vote. Well as I was saying up on the Sauk was some awful bad Injuns and they wouldn't let white men come down the Sauk river so the army sent a Lieutenant Pierce to see if he could locate a pass reported to be situated among friendly Injuns so he started from Fort Colfax to see if he could get across the mountings without losing his scalp, which he'd do if he missed his connections and landed on the

Fire Destroys Abb Clark Store At Rockport

Old Landmark Burns To Ground Last Friday Evening.

The pioneer structure housing Clark's store at Rockport was totally destroyed by fire last Friday evening in a late-hour blaze that gained such headway that little could be saved from the building. The fire apparently started next to the up-stairs chimney, where Mrs. Clark had her apartment.

The fire was discovered about 11:00 p. m. and by the time an alarm had been sounded the upper story was entirely in flames. Volunteers managed to save a few odds and ends from the store before the flames broke through, but little of any value could be rescued. The records and accounts were saved, however.

The fire was so hot that for a time it was thought that other nearby buildings would be set on fire and garden hoses, the only water available, were used desperately to prevent a general conflagration. The Clark store was finally reduced to a mound of ashes, not a burnable piece of material left above the ground.

The loss was only partially covered by insurance.

Pioneer Building

The store building was built over 35 years ago by Carl Olson, Rockport pioneer and served in many capacities until purchased for his store by Abb Clark about twenty-five years ago. Mr. Clark operated it from that time until he was stricken with illness a few years ago. Mrs. Clark then took over the management and continued its operation after his death and until the fire Friday.

Reports are that she plans to build another store at the same location and continue in business.

Stork Shower

Mrs. John Smith and Mrs. Herman Jensen entertained with a stork shower Tuesday afternoon, honoring Mrs. Edward Pressentin. Contests furnished amusement for the afternoon with Mrs. Ferd Macklin and Mrs. Milton Emmerton receiving the prizes. After the contests little Helen Ann Pressentin and Betty Lee Crinklaw pushed in a basinet filled with dainty gifts for the honor guest. Afer viewing the many gifts a luncheon was served at a beautifully decorated table, centered with a pink and blue basinet filled with spring flowers.

On Scholarship Roll

Richard Dubigk, of Concrete, won a place on the Washington State college high scholarship roll for the first semester, the school announced this week. To be eligible for this honor a student must earn 34 grade points or make a grade average of 90 per cent while carrying a full college course.

South Rockport Turns On Lights

The first electric lights on the south side of the Skagit at Rockport were turned on last Friday afternoon by Puget Sound's local manager, Bert Hansted. All services were not yet completed Friday but in order to give lights to those completed the lines were "made hot" and the community began to enjoy the benefits of electricity.

No formal ceremonies were held but a spontaneous celebration was staged that consisted of open house for all residents and their friends at all homes where the power had been connected.

The job of connecting up other services was completed this week. Installation of water systems, milking machines, refrigerators and other appliances will probably continue for some time.

PLANT SUFFERS FIRST LOST TIME ACCIDENT

The record of two years without a lost-time accident at the Superior plant was halted last week in the fourth month on a third year when an accident at the quarry proved to be serious enough to send a man to the hospital.

John Pappas was injured at the quarry March 31st when he fell and hurt his back. He worked a day after the accident, but was laid off with the rest of the crew following a breakdown. Later he found his injury no better and entered the hospital for treatment.

Superior Portland Cement, Inc. had not had an accident-free year since 1934 until 1939 broke the spell. This was followed by a safe 1940 and hopes were held to hold the record for a few more years.

Now the green safety flag comes down until the first of the month, after which the employees will try to keep it flying for another two years.

ELEVEN YEARS AGO IN CONCRETE

Concrete Herald, April 17, 1930

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Concrete school yesterday afternoon it was decided to proceed with the erection of a large addition to the high school building, provided their action is approved by the voters. A central heating plant for all school building is also being considered and will likely be installed during the summer vacation. The new addition and the heating plant will be financed from the sale of bonds and a special bond election will be called within a few weeks. The proposed addition will be built on the rear of the present building and will be about 40x80 feet, with full basement. The upper floor will have a large auditorium, while the lower floor will be divided into classrooms.

Daily headlines tell us to prepare for war within a short time as the news is gently broken that we have been on the road to war for many months. Just who we are to fight, actively, is still undetermined but our all-out aid to Britain has definitely placed us in the battle against Germany and Italy. Those who remember the last war are struck by the similarity of present times with those preceding our entry in that war. Identical events and closely corresponding propoganda are all converging on the point when some minor incident will plunge our draftees from play into grim reality of war. Many view it calmly now and keep a tongue in their cheek, but with the first cry of war-anger all will be out waving flags and shouting for victories as the boys again march away. Once we saved the world for democracy, yet somehow failed. Perhaps because democracy only becomes worth fighting for when someone would snatch it away.

BULLER'S HISTORY OF THE CASCADE PASS

Sauk. Now Columbus did not have to worry about his scalp but every morning Lieutenant Pierce felt his hair to see if it was all there. Well he traveled and finally hit a hole in the mounting that was to be the Cascade highway some day maybe. Coming down the river he was most starved till he came to Frank Pressentin's store. There he borrowed an auto and came to Bullerville to attend the Cascade Grange before going on to Olympia to see the other discoverers of the Cascade that had beat him to the Capitol. Arriving at the capitol he found they had all gone home to tell us how their efforts had advanced the good cause, that while they had not nothing for a Cascade highway they might be able to get a couple of miles of mine to market road built or something, but if we elected them again in two years they were sure they could do better. On hearing this. Lieutenant Pierce is said to have returned to the happy hunting grounds never to return. Saying he would rather fight the Sauks than believe a political candidates campaign promises.

Oh yes, I most forgot the history of Marblemount. It is the beginning of the Cascade highway. To get there you just drive up and up the Skagit Valley, finally a big steel bridge across the Skagit river is right in front of you. That's Marblemount you are in. Drive onto the bridge and you are out of Marblemount and started for Lake Chelan over the Cascade pass. Only to get there you will have to walk most of the way as the auto road stops up in the mountings a ways. Marblemount was founded in 1890 by my mother who built the first hotel. Whisperin George Engels, who had the first beer parlor only he didn't sell no beer and Papa Bogurdus and Frank Sewart who had the first store. Most everybody wanted to call it Bullerville but Frank Stewart insisted that it be something that would advertize the valley so as they was a big Injun burial ground at Marble Creek, 12 miles up the Cascade highway and high up on the mountings—that is we think it was a Injun burial ground as there is millions and millions of tombstones there. The only reason the tourists have not hauled them away—I mean the toombstones, not the Injuns—is there is no road and also the Injuns had nothing to dig them out with. Maybe some day your grand children can get one for your grave from there. You know most people—specially farmers—are so doggone busy making a living they never take time out to find out just how big Skagit County is, and what a fine place to spend a Sunday the Cascade forest park at Marble Creek is. You just build a fire on the river bank and toss the fish you catch right into the frying pan without even having to get on your feet.

But there I go fishing again, when this is a history of Marblemount and the upper Skagit. Marblemount has three beer parlors, two hotels and a post office. It's farmers used to make the best moonshine this side o' Carolina, but now they sold their farms and work in the logging camps as they could not make a living just selling milk and farm stuffs. Marblemount was first started in 1890 because everybody thought that a great big smelter would be built there and smelt the Silver ore that is most everywhere around Cascade pass. And as there was no wagon road even, they had to live on the river bank where Injun canoes could haul out the silver, lead and gold taken from the mines and bring in stuff to eat. Everybody in Marblemount had stock in some mine and considered himself a millionaire and even the farmers had a mine or two located so they could rent the farm in their old age, join the Grange and move to the city to pass their declining years in comfort. Now they don't need to depend on mines and what not—they just deed their farm to the State if they still one and live on the old age pension the rest of their lives. If they don't own it they still have the pension—that is if there is money enough to go round. Well as Marblemount history, most everybody lost their mines, the state quit building it's highway. The democrats ruined the moonshine business and now most everybody has had to go to work or become democrats and get a post office job or join the forest service. I guess that's about all I know about Marblemount's history. That is all the grange will allow me to write about—they won't allow me to mention about the big membership drive the Cascade Grange plans for the summer as they say that ain't history till its did. So if you folks will try and come up once in a while to our grange meetings you all will be making history. Good by folks, we'll meet you at the Cascade pass someday if we live long enough.

The Garden Corner

By DR. JOHN H. HANLEY

NOTES ON SOME GOOD ANNUALS

Because many gardeners will be buying their annuals soon, if they have not already ordered them, it is appropriate to mention some of the most outstanding varieties which proved themselves especially worthy in the Arboretum trial garden last summer.

The larkspurs have been developed in truly striking forms. Here are a few of the best ones: Pink Perfection—tall, medium pink with a long spike of large, well-spaced flowers—the best of the pinks; Dazzler—a light, bright, carmine red that is a fine addition to the group and one which gives accent to the planting by virtue of its depth of color; Blue Bell—a clear azure-blue; Blue Spire—an intense blue, an excellent and very uniform variety; and White Spire, which, by contrast sets off the other colors beautifully.

The California poppy is so commonplace in many parts of the Northwest that one might think it undeserving of comment. But it is constantly being improved and even now offers some brilliant types which are far superior to the volunteers that are permitted to devlop in many gardens each year.

Also this flower is so perfectly adapted to ehat and drought that it has become specially valuable in the drier regions. The variety called Monarch Art Shades is a delightful, richly-colored type; Ramona is bright rusty-gold; Delightful is a large-flowered, erect-growing type with intensely gray-green foliage.

One should watch the development of these erect-growing varieties carefully since they represent one of the most recent and most important improvements. The new plants do not tend to fall apart in the center as the season advances as in the case with the older types.

One of the most showy, delicately colored flowers in last season's trials was a free-blooming poppy of the Shirley type called Begonia-flowered. This variety is a double or semi-double; in each flower is a crest of narrow petals which impart to the whole the appearance of a double begonia.

If one is fortunate enough to live in a section where the weather is cool enough to grow stocks, here is a list of colors that will give pleasing effects in the garden and which, in addition, will provide for splendid cut flower effects in the house: Apricot Beauty, Apricot, Canary Yellow, a light, creamy yellow; Old Rose, the old-fashioned rose shade; Elk's Pride, deep royal purple; Antique Copper, a very arty rose shade; Shasta, clear white and Lavender.

For Safety's sake
PAVE THE GAPS WITH Concrete

WHY do state highway departments warn the public: "Concrete Pavement Ends"?

Because it is universally accepted that speeds which are reasonable and safe on concrete become dangerous on other surfaces.

To save lives to prevent accidents... demand concrete all the way.

True and even, it has no high crown—is usable to its full width. Brakes are at their best on its gritty, non-skid surface. Its light gray color and sharply defined edges give visibility at night. Any car is a better car on concrete.

And concrete saves money for motorists and for taxpayers. Insist on concrete for your roads.

Concrete's Resistance to Spring "Break-Ups" Worth Millions to Taxpayers Every Year

When the frost comes out or the rain pours down, concrete pavements "can take it." They're always ready to get you through with safety. Even after the terrible punishment of this winter, routine, inexpensive maintenance will quickly put concrete in condition for heavy summer traffic. Aggravating detours and costly delays are avoided.

"Vital Statistics ON AND ABOUT STAIRS"

AS A GENERAL rule you aren't in any great danger when you ascend or descend stairs . . . unless you become careless! If you're careful you can enjoy reading statistics, but the minute you get careless you may become one!

Loose, cracked or broken stair treads or railings are invitations to become one of 20,000 people who are painfully or seriously injured by falls in or about the home every year. The cost of fixing minor defects in stairs is reasonably small . . . especially when you consider that a single tumble downstairs may result in a large hospital bill or a goodly crowd of mourners at the funeral!

Don't invite disaster, when repairs are so inexpensive. Call us today and have those stair treads and railings examined or repaired.
