VOLUME FIFTY-SEVEN | CONCRETE, SKAGIT COUNTY, WASHINGTON, OCTOBER 17, 1957. | NUMBER 42

THIS & THAT

BY H. L. D.

This week's issue of the Herald is being put out on Wednesday instead of Thursday as it usually is, so some of the late news will not be in the paper. The office will be open between 10:30 a. m. and 4:00 p. m. for the rest of the week and Monday of next week. Chuck will be back on Tuesday and business will go on as usual. We certainly hope he has a wonderful trip to make up for his ruined vacation.

Baby Boy At Newhalem

Mr. and Mrs. Webb Wenrich are the proud parents of a baby boy, born last week in the Rowley hospital in Mount Vernon.

Square Dancers Elect

There will be no square dancing this Saturday, as the hall will not be available. The next session will be on October 26th. At the last get-together there was an election of officers with Joe Finden chosen as president; Jerry Clements, treasurer and Henriette Smith, secretary. It was decided that the group would meet the first and third Saturdays of each month through next May. Membership is still open and the group hopes to welcome many new people to the organization.

Whatcom Seeking Road Money For Baker Hiway

Complete reconstruction of the Baker Lake road was listed by the Whatcom county commissioners as a "must" for emergency road projects coming up soon. In order to provide funds for the needed work the commissioners are holding a special hearing on Oct .29th to set up a $300,000 emergency budget.

The money is to be "taken off the top" of federal forest money received by the county. The balance of money will be split 50-50 with the schools.

Hurt At Dam

Thomas Steinacker, 29, was taken to the Sedro-Woolley hospital last Wednesday morning, suffering back injuries receieved while working for Stone & Webster Co. at the Upper Baker River dam. He was hurt while working under a bulldozer on repairs. The blade slipped and came down on his shoulded.

He is now reported in good condition with no serious injuries.

Buy Christmas Seals

Tinka Doyle Seal Chairman

Mrs. Tinka Doyle will be in charge of the annual sale of T. B. Christmas Seals in Concrete. The plans are now being laid for the mailing out of the seals.

Murder Weapon Turns Up In Baker Dredging

A murder, committed here one cold night in January of 1954, was recalled last week when the gun used in the crime was turned up by the dredging operations currently in progress along the Baker river.

The gun, spotted in the gravel by shovel runner Ed Rine, was a .32 Beretta automatic, which had been used by Charles Henry Deiner, 50, in the slaying of Wade Reid, 31, at the cabin of Annie Flodin near the G. N. depot. Reid had been shot twice, once in the leg and again in the chest.

The first Marshal Jack Williams knew of the shooting, Mrs. Flodin was pounding on his door, trying to tell him the story. Soon Deiner arrived to cry out: "You gotta help me, I just killed a man!"

During the questioning Deiner was asked what he did with the gun. He replied: "Oh, I disposed of that. That's what you have to do after a killing." He told of throwing the gun over the bank above the Baker river.

Searchers combed the area where the gun was supposed to have been thrown, but it laid hidden until disturbed by the shovel last week. The gun was in good condition despite its long exposure to the elements.

Earl Ellenberger Dies Tuesday

Earl D. Ellenberger passed away early Tuesday morning at his home in Sedro-Woolley following a long illness. He was a long-time resident of the valley, having lived at Hamilton, then at Sedro-Woolley where he owned and operated the Ellenberger Machine Shop for many years. He came to Concrete in 1950 and worked at the cement plant until his retirement last year. He then moved back to Sedro-Woolley where he became ill in February of this year.

Earl Delas Ellenberger was born Feb. 23, 1885 at Madena, Wisconsin. From his first marriage he had seven children, all of whom survive. They are Bertha Taylor of Shelton; Lilian Hunt of Swisshome, Oregon; Cora Bass of Gresham, Oregon; Kenneth Ellenberger of this city; Glen Ellenberger of Renton and Arthur of Seattle.

He was married a second time in August of 1935 to Mae Beacraft and added five step-children to his family. They were Nellie Wagner of Seattle; Louise Eckenberg of Sedro-Woolley; George Beacraft of Seattle and Alice and Dorothy Komar of this city. Their mother also survives.

In addition there are 30 grandchildren, 10 great-grandchildren; a sister and two brothers in Wisconsin.

The deceased was baptised in Norwegian Lutheran Church at Madena, Wisconsin. . . had been a resident of Washington since 1918 and of Skagit county since 1919. He was a members of the Odd Fellows lodge, the Eagles lodge and the Birdsview Grange.

Mr. Ellenberger was known as a kind father and grandfather and was dearly loved by his stepchildren as well as his own children. He had a great many friends in the communities in which he had lived.

Funeral services have been set for Thursday afternoon at 2:00 at the Lemley Chapel in Sedro-Woolley.

VALLEY RESIDENTS IN MINOR ACCIDENTS

A rash of minor auto accidents during the past week listed names of many upper valley residents. Recently in Sedro-Woolley Sidney Shelver of Birdsview was in one car of a two-car collision at an intersection. Bright sun was named as the cause. Later Juanita Wright of Newhalem had a similar accident at an intersection near Mount Vernon.

Saturday Sigurd Peterson of this city got his car mashed up to the extent of some $75 in a collision on the Burlington highway. Nobody hurt. Also on Saturday Mrs. Betty Cook, 40, of Concrete was treated for leg cuts in Bellingham after being involved in an accident on the Mount Baker highway near Kendall. The car, driven by her husband, skidded off a curve and into a utility pole. Damage to the car—$200 or more.

South Skagit Farm Couple Chosen For Honors At Sedro Junior Chamber Banquet October 26

The Jim Ovenells, Mr. and Mrs. Conservation Farmer of 1957

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Ovenell have been named "Mr. and Mrs. Conservation Farmer for 1957" for the Skagit Soil Conservation District. The Skagit Conservation Farmer recognition program is being sponsored by the Sedro-Woolley Junior Chamber of Commerce locally and on a state-wide basis by the Washinton State Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Ovenell are Skagit County pioneers, having been born near Avon and have lived in the county since that time. The Ovenells for many years farmed near Burlington but during the past ten years Mr. Ovenell has resided on the farm South of the Skagit River here which was originally developed as a partnership by Ovenell and Harold Pierson. This farm plus the Burlington operation is presently owned and operated by Mr. Ovenell with the assistance of his sons, Norman and Lyle.

The farm includes 730 acres of land, 330 acres of which are now cleared. Two hundred acres have been cleared since being acquired by Ovenell and Pierson. Soil conservation surveys were used as the basis for land clearing operations and farm development. Mrs. Ovenell has played an important part in planning and developing the farmstead. From the picture window in the front room the Ovenells can look out over many acres of their farm and have an unexcelled view of Mount Baker and the upper Skagit area.

Mr. Ovenell has cooperated with the Soil Conservation District technicians in trying out new legume and grass mixtures for use on low capability upland soils. Beef cattle have utilized production from the grass-legume fields. Two concrete trench silos were built by Mr. Ovenell to conserve excess spring growth as grass silage and for the ensiling of field corn. Winter wheat and sweet corn have been marketed as cash crops. However, the bulk of the farm's production has been sent to market through beef cattle. Mr. Ovenell's accomplishments in beef production were recognized several years ago when he was selected by the Skagit County Cattlemen's Assn. as the county's first Cattleman of the Year.

The many acres of woodland on the farm are being managed in such a manner as to keep them productive. Products from wood have provided a substanial amount of material used in barns and feeding sheds on the farm. Mr. Ovenell has cooperated with the University of Washington's College of Forestry in setting up two permanent experimental plots to study the growth response of second growth Douglas fir under a stand improvement program.

Mr. Ovenell has given generously of his time to community activities. For ten years he was a drainage district commissioner; he served six years as Skagit County Commissioner; he was a member of the board of supervisors of Skagit Soil Conservation District from 1945 to 1956, serving as chairman for ten of these years. He is a member of the advisory board to the Northwestern Washington Experiment Station at Mount Vernon, and as a county commissioner played a leading part in the establishment of the experiment station. He is currently serving his fourth term as a Representative to the State Legislature from Skagit and San Juan counties. He is a member of the county Farm Bureau and of the Allen Grange.

The Sedro-Woolley Junior Chamber of Commerce is holding a recognition banquet for the Ovenells at the Liberty Cafe banquet room in Sedro-Woolley on Saturday evening, October 26. Ed Wise, President of the Sedro-Woolley Jaycees, extends an invitation to the Ovenell's many friends to join the Jaycees members and their wives in honoring the Ovenells at this dinner. The Ovenells will also attend the state-wide recognition meeting which will be held at Ritzville on November 16.

STORYBOOK FINISH WINS TWIN CITY GAME FOR CONCRETE FRIDAY NIGHT WITH 13 - 6 SCORE

The score at the end of the game was Concrete 13, Twin City 6, but that doesn't tell the story at all. The game here Friday night was a hard-fought struggle all the way with Concrete having a slight edge on power—but the contest was a tie up until the final two minues!

In the brief flurry before the final gun Concrete had whipped a 4th down desperation pass for a touchdown, kicked an extra point and Twin City was madly flinging passes in a march down field to try and tie it up again. Bates, who had played a whale of a game for Concrete for four quarters, finally took charge of the Twin City threat personally by intercepting a pass. That ended the excitement and the gun cracked with Concrete carefully running out the clock with deliberate, safe action.

The game got off to a good start with Twin City taking over after Concrete failed to gain on their initial kickoff return. The Cardinals moved right down field and were on the 30 yard line when a fumble upset their touchdown plan.

Anderson moved the ball swiftly for Concrete in a few plays to midfield. A pass to Jonson added 10. Bates boomed to the 22, a pitchout carried to the 9 and from there Bates banged through the line for short yardage until he reached the goal line. A pass for the point was knocked down.

In the second quarter Crinklaw picked off a Twin City pass to start another drive but a fumble stopped Concrete on the 10 yard line. Twin City was held and forced to punt and Ron Regan rambled 20 yards in a fine return only to have the hopes again dashed by a fumble two plays later. Twin City suffered a 15-yard penalty and when all appeared safe and sound a pass play caught Concrete's secondary flat-footed as a Cardinal man, all alone in front of the grandstand, took a long pass and went 60 yards to score. Nobody came near him on the run. The kick failed and the score was 6 all at the half.

During the second half Concrete threatened with a thrust to the scoring section again, only to meet a stone wall. As the quarter ended Concrete recovered a Cardinal fumble and began driving again. The ball changed hands several times before an interception by Concrete

Strike Ends, Plant Starts Operations

After 168 days fo deadlock over terms of a new contract, the strike at the Lone Star Cement Corporation plants here and at Seattle was ended Wednesday morning. The settlement came suddenly when the company withdrew all its objections and granted the workers essentially the same contract as they had held with the Superior company before Lone Star took over. The contract was accepted by a vote of union members 141 to 7. Men were at work at the local plant Wednesday morning.

Men now on the job are the shipping crew, but others will go back to work as they report. It is expected that it will take two weeks or longer to get the plants under full production as many of the men had secured jobs elsewhere and, under contract rules, will have two weeks in which to give notice to present employers.

The program will probably be: shipping crews back to work immediately; clean up and maintenence crews next; then finish end workers followed by resumption of raw end and kilns; quarry workers will follow activity of tram crew in getting tram line ready for use.

The picket lines were cleared Tuesday evening about 10:00 p. m. when word was received that the Seattle union had voted favorably on accepting the contract.

New Wage Pattern

The settlement also includes the 1957 area-industry pattern providing for wage increases averaging 14c per hour, 8c and 12c shift differentials, time and one-tenth for Sunday work and a fourth week of vacation after 25 years' service.

The union dropped the retroactivity clause maintaining it no longer had any practical value as a contract specification.

The contract clauses include the understandings that all employees as of April 30, 1957, will be offered their former positions within two weeks after call to return, full vacation pay to be paid by December 1st, the Health and Welfare plan used by Superior to be reinstated, and the members to receive 40 hours pension credits for each week they were on strike.

The union members are anxious to get back to the job of making cement and an era of better labor relations is expected due to their firm stand on what they felt was a fight to retain the fruits of many years of contract negotiations.

Deer Scarce As Rain Soaks Hills

The opening of hunting season was no huge success in the upper valley as, after a long series of sunny days, the weather man decided to put on a nice storm for all day Sunday. The result was that all most hunters got was soaking wet. Few deer were sighted—only one appeared in the local locker Monday morning.

According to the official game department figures there were 632 hunters checked during the day in county. Sixteen of them had deer one had a bear and there were four grouse listed in the total take.

The duck shooting was much better with 431 hunters taking 532 mallards, 186 pintail, 273 widgeon, 148 teal, 3 spoonbill and one Canadian goose at Skagit Bay. In other areas checked 128 hunters had 101 mallards, 40 pintail, 84 widgeon, 47 teal.

Fifty-nine hunters went out for pheasant and were checked with 35 pheasant among them.

Pastor Parker Installed At Mount Baker Church

Sunday evening, Oct. 13th, the Rev. Allan C. Parker, Jr. was installed as pastor of the Mt. Baker Presbyterian Church here. The installation service was conducted by the Presbytery of Bellingham, the Rev. Wm. F. Kuykendall, vice moderator and pastor of the Mukelteo church, presiding. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Harold K. Lawrence, pastor of the St. James Presbyterian Church of Bellingham. Others taking part in the service were Rev. Carlos Shafer of Sedro-Woolley, Rev. William Graler of Anacortes and Rev. H. E. Penhalurick of Bellingham.

Preceding the installation service a fellowship dinner was held for the congregation, their friends and the visiting ministers. A reception for Rev. and Mrs. Parker was held in the church basement following the service. The many out of town guests included the family of Rev. Parker.

Rev. Parker, a graduate of the University of Washington and San Francisco Theological Seminary, comes to Concrete after serving fourteen months in a two-church parish in Leoti, Kansas. He and Mrs. Parker have three children.

In installing a full-time pastor the congregation of the Mt. Baker Presbyterian Church have come a long way since their reorganization last year. In one year the Sunday school has grown from 17 to nearly 70. An active choir has been organized, a women's association has been organized and is an active group, and a youth group is now being set up.

Also during the past year the church building has been completely redecorated inside and out. The manse has also been redecorated and repaired. New hymnbooks have been purchased, along with many other needed furnishings for the church.

The church is now looking forward in the months to come to an expanded program under the leadership of their new pastor. Among the things planned for the future will be the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Mt. Baker church, to be held next spring.

HALLOWE'EN DANCE

A Hallowe'en observance for the dancers of the uper valley will be held by the Newhalem Vet's Club with a costume Hallowe'en dance at the Newhalem grade school gym on Saturday night, October 26th.

State Starts Suit To Condemn Sauk Land

The state highway department is not one to let grass grow, in some one else's name, on property they desire for highway purposes. So this week people in the Sauk community who had not already sold land for the new cut-off from Faber to the top of Sauk Hill found themselves named as respondents in a condemnation proceeding.

Those to appear in court to settle their differences of opinion as to valuation of property to be taken for road purposes are: C. C. Baughman, The Sound Timber Co., John Unger, George Vogel, Ben Tingley and Skagit County.

Those named have been notified to appear in court in Mount Vernon on October 28th at 9:30 a. m.

The land in question is approximately 9.6 acres, the largest portion thereof belonging to C. C. Baughman.

Roy Benham, state forester well known throughout the upper valley, was in danger of losing his left hand last week following an accident in which his left arm was crushed while working on a gravel loading hoist. The arm was almost severed by the hoist. The accident occured near Alger a week ago Monday.

Three doctors worked to save the arm and reports are this week that their efforts have a good chance of success.

Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Horn spent the weekend in Friday Harbor, visiting the Burton King family and Mrs. Chas. Horn and baby.

As you read this your editor will be in Chicago, the windy city, listening to more wind generated by an assembly of newspaper editors from every state in the union. We are quite proud to have been chosen to represent the state of Washington, and more especially the upper Skagit valley, and we only hope we can do justice to the occasion. As one of the smaller newspapers in the United States, our position as conferee will have to be one of theory, ideals and enthusiasm. Actually this column you are reading has opened the many doors leading to the honors accorded. No one should underestimate the advantages that can be derived from expressing your views in print. You can be wrong at times, you can beat helplessly at unsolvable problems, you can berate and needle personalities that serve the public, but if you can maintain a consistent objective of a better world someday, someone is going to start listening. Happily our sense of humor has brought us a wide field of "listeners" and on the heels of recognition has come a most rewarding period in our career. We intend to enjoy it, then get back to another decade of whacking out a newspaper and this column for your weekly perusal. Remind us if we ever forget our first duty is right here.

Seattle is now hot for a big league ball team and pro football franchise, with the hope that state funds will build the stadium for them. Here rises the question of whether such activites are really sport instead of big business. Better we should build a free factory for someone who would employ a thousand men.

First complaint deserving of real attention since the artificial moon was launched is that horoscopes are becoming unreliable. Adding another celestial body has upset the star-dreamers. Also think of the hundreds of new babies who will find they were born under the influence of a sputnick.

A theorist states that present big families need more privacy for individuals, such as dens, primping rooms, own bedrooms, etc. Could be, but we never saw a large family yet that didn't want to spend most of their home hours crowded into the kitchen.

The world has a way of putting people in their proper places. Some times it takes a while, but the phonies, the geniuses, the mediocre and the great find their true station. You can't go on forever if the only wind in your sails is your own.

Ever stop to think that half our top government officials, including the president, are men that would be considered too old to be given employment, elsewhere?

Our congratulations to the Jim Ovenells for their Conservation Farmer honors. Just another of our upper valley man and wife teams. These days you have to operate nearly any endeavor in double harness.

One of the best ways to kill an idea is to hold it down long enough for somebody to put his foot on it.

Spanish flu, asiatic flu—still unable to come up with anything but imported stuff.

Marblemount News

By Mrs. Viola Uttley

Mrs. Shirley Worley and Mrs. Jean Crawford were hostesses to a lovely baby shower for Stella Cuthbert on Wednesday night at the church basement. The decorations were in yellow and green carried out even to the cake and jello. Stella received many nice gifts. Everyone was happy that she could be there after her bout in the hospital the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Crawford moved here from Seattle this week. They will be living in one of the Clark cabins. Ernie will be the new man in the fish hatchery personnel.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Crawford motored to Seattle on business on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Robbins and family spent the weekend in Bellingham with her parents.

Mabel and Warren Pressentin visited with relatives and friends in Rockport on Friday evening.

Neal Clark's mother, Mrs. Mabel Tollefson, of Sedro-Woolley visited here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Crawford and girls were dinner guests Sunday at the Dick Eldridge home.

Ed and Oliver Clark, Bud Glover and Wayne Smith went hunting at Mount Baker last weekend.

A3/C Rolland Turner reported Monday in New York on the first leg of his trip to Iceland, where he will stationed for a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Odis Rogers of California were Tuesday visitors in the upper valley. Mr. Rogers was with the primary survey gang that worked on the power house for the City of Seattle. He left here to join the Navy in 1916. He visited some of the pioneer residents while here.

Her friends will be glad to know that Helen Scott is up and about again after being sick last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frances Turner were visiting in Granite Falls on Tuesday at the Ed Johnson home. They also visited with Marge and Jim Evans in Marysville.

The Marblemount P. T. A. Supper turned out real nice. The food was delicious, well served and of a nice variety. The crowd that attended was large and everyone enjoyed getting to visit with their neighbors. Our thanks to the many friends who helped to make it possible.

Visitors at the Fritz Wenrich home this wek are Mr. and Mrs. John Gutoski of Bremerton.

Visit To Hanford Atomic Project A Chilling Experience For Washington Newspaper Men

P. A. Olson, of the Aquatic Biology Operation, explains to the WNPA group how Columbia River fish are fed food "spiked" with various radiotactive isotopes to determine safe limits of radioactive material for marine life. Hanford project.

A side trip of the recent newspaper convention in Yakima was a visit to the Hanford Atomic Energy plant. We had also thought of Hanford as a town, a big place where plutonium was manufactured in a sizeable group of factory buildings. It was quite a surprise to find that the present Hanford is a vast 600 square mile section of Eastern Washington desert land, dotted at intervals of several miles with identical appearing installations consisting of a large smoke stack; a long, low concrete building and another box-shaped building. These are the "plants", each complete in itself and isolated from the others by miles of wasteland. The plants are surrounded by steel fences with heavily guarded gates. Patrol cars are constantly on the move on the 850 mile network of roads, patrol planes fly overhead and ominous-looking military installations are seen interspersed among the dunes.

Most noticeable was the chill and quiet that semed to pervade the area. The absence of people about the plants was almost eerie when you know that there are 9,000 employed within the bounds of the project. The only life is seen at the gates, the rest of the buildings seem devoid of life.

Our tour, following pre-convention credential check, another check at the gate, briefing and pinning on of radiation detectors, turned out to be little more than a bus ride over the miles of road. From the bus we could see the various installations, the "hot" water being decontaminated before letting it back into the nearby Columbia, the pumping stations, the power stations, the deadly looking smokestack pouring out a sickly yellow smoke. All very interesting, but viewed from a respectable distance.

Our one stop was at the Biology Testing Laboratories where dozens of scientists conduct experiments as to the effect of radiation on fish, pigs, sheep and the food they eat.

As water from the reactors is returned to the Columbia river, the effects of what little radiation may still remain in the flow is of prime importance to fisheries men. So a continuous series of tests are going on in a special building that has long tanks very similar to a fish hatchery. In these tanks fish are subjected to various stages of radiation.

For the safety of visitors, those tanks containing radioactive material are carefully roped off. Men working within the roped-off areas wear heavy boots, aprons, and gloves.

Outside the building several pools contain plant life upon which fish feed, or which grows on the bottoms of streams. Here again the tests go forward constantly.

Pigs Are People

Radioactive iodine is one of the principal constituents of the gaseous wastes at Hanford. As this type of gas could call on vegetation eaten by grazing animals or by man, experiments have to be made to determine how dangerous this could be to human and animal life.

Studies are made with pigs and sheep, the pigs mainly because the skin, the flesh and the general physiological makeup is similar to that of man. Therefore, the skins of the animals are subjected to radiation and the effects studied, diets are conducted and the effects tabulated. Miniature pigs are used for some studies as they are much easier to handle than the large, normal breed. Special built metabolism cages are used to house the test animals so that they can be observed, handled and cared for through holes fitted with rubber gloves and various trap doors that permit work to be done without any human having to come in actual physical contact with the animal. All animals are treated better than they would be on a farm. They are well-fed and cared for and all manipulations that cause pain or injury are performed under anesthesia. Overdoses are given if suffering occurs. The animals seem to be perfectly happy and they have been known to enter the metabolism cages of their own accord after being released from confinement.

Hanford's Product

The end product of the Hanford works is plutonium, which is an artificial and radioactive metallic element that is used as a basic ingredient for the atomic bomb and a possible fuel for the atomic power reactors of the future.

The "transmutation" of uranium takes place in a reactor, a cube of extremely pure graphite as high as a five-story building, enclosed in thick concrete and steel shielding. Most of the entire process has to be done by remote control and often behind thick walls of concrete with windows of thick, heavily leaded glass. Water from the river is pumped through the reactors at tens of thousands of gallons per minute to carry off the tremendous heat generated. A number of systems, each independent of others, have been created to shut down reactors automatically in case of a manmade or natural disaster such as an earthquake, bombing raid or power failure.

Town Once Had 250 People

In 1943 Hanford, the town, was a quiet village of 250 people. A yar later it became a city of 50,000 who had come to build a secret project. Some 350 million dollars was spent in construction. More than 3,700 homes were built. A complete business district was built to serve the residents. Due to the heat of the desert the beer consumption at Hanford in an 8-hour period was more than Seattle consumed in 24 hours.

By March of 1945 the job was over. Permanent employees lived in Richland. Hanford, inside the barricaded perimeter, was slated to become a ghost town. In 1946 a Detroit wrecking company bid and received the entire city for $103,000.

One of the last things we saw before leaving the project was the former site of Hanford, the town. Miles of streets, acres of foundations where homes had stood. Not a useable building in sight where once was a city of 50,000.

The trip was well worth the five hours that it took to make. Someday we may live next door to the atom, but for the present its all right with us to have it secluded in 600 square miles of desert. That is the place for it.

Mrs. Jerry Martin and her mother, Mrs. Schonblom, went to Bremerton Sunday to bring Lee home. He is now back in school, but will be on crutches for at least six months.

Notes

By Hermie Hollister

Mrs. J. P. Brooks returned home from the hospital Saturday, but had to go back Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs .Bill King and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Weckerly of Newhalem took Mr. and Mrs .Joe Weckerly to the plane in Seattle on Monday. The young folks are flying back to New Jersey, where they will be stationed for a while.

Mrs. Joe Bitonti, Mrs. Lyle Buchanan and Jack Savage were Mount Vernon visitors Monday.

Word has been received from Mrs. Alvin Harris, who is with her mother in Worthington, Minn., that her mother is improving and may return with Mrs. Harris to Concrete when she is stronger.

The flu bug seems to be getting more active. Instead of running out of victims, it is giving lots of people a second visit.

The weatherman is certainly doing himself proud this year. No one could ask for a lovlier summer and fall than we have had, except for those hardy souls who ventured out in the rain Sunday to do a little hunting.

Eagles Will Fix Toys For Christmas Giving

Gordon Dean, president of the Concrete Eagles, has announced a "fix-it" program for the Christmas holidays. The Eagles members will accept any used toys or items that can be fixed up and given to the needy as Christmas presents.

Anyone having anything to donate to the project may call 5-2401 and someone will be around to pick up the donations. The main work will be in restoration of toys of all kinds.

MARBLEMOUNT 4-H CLUB

The meeting of the Marblemount Lucky 4's was held at the home of Brenda Williams on Oct. 14th. The meeting was called to order by president Judy Clark. We discussed the Bake Sale that is to be held at the post office on Saturday, Oct. 19th, starting at 10:00.

The meeting was adjourned. One of our members, Donna Cook, is moving away so a farewell party was held for her after the business meeting. The club presented her a necklace and wallet as a going-away gift. She is moving to Cathlamet, down on the Columbia river.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Jennifer Witham on November 11th.

Out Of The LIONS DEN . .

CONCRETE HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By Judy Pennington and Rebecca Unger

Lions Make Comeback

After losing a heartbreaker to Arlington the Lions made a comeback and beat the Twin City Cardinals 13-6. In the first quarter of the game the Lions made the first touchdown. The Cardinal flared back in the second quarter and tied the score. The game stayed 6-6 until the final quarter when the Lions went on for another touchdown.

The Lions will travel to Lake Stevens this Friday to play a league game.

There will be no more rooter busses to the football games, but they will be taken to three basketball games.

G. A. A. News

G. A. A. girls have grouped into teams for volleyball and a tournament has started during the noon hour. Instead of playing volleyball some girls are referees and umpires.

Concrete Wins Thriller Over Twin Cities, 13-6

set up for the final score on the Cardinal 35. Slowed after several plays by an offside penalty the Lions had the ball on fourth down about the 20 yard line. Regan faded back to pass, spotted Jonson in the corner of the end zone and threw. Jonson picked the ball out of the hands of two defenders as he stepped on the last foot of corner left and fell off-field. The referee was on the play and held up his hands as the grandstand went berserk. Time was 1½ minutes.

The kick for point was good and Twin City dashed back downfield to lineup for receiving the kickoff. In the seconds that followed they got off one long run when the passer found himself with no receivers but lots of running room. As they hurriedly sent up another pass, Bates gathered it in for safe keeping.

Concrete's line did a fine job of opening holes on offense, but had a bit of trouble with their tackling on defense. Keilgas was outstanding in the line-work. Lacking Darrel Pressentin (out on injuries), the backfield still did very well with Scott and Crinklaw filling in with good performances. Regan played a smooth quarterbacking job that added much to the game. Bates and Anderson needed only Pressentin to have doubled the score.

Sultan Next Home Game

This week the boys will play at Lake Stevens. The next game here will be with Sultan on October 25.

Vivian Bates' Observe Silver Wedding Date

Mr. and Mrs. Vivian Bates were hosts on Saturday evening to some forty-five relatives and friends who gathered to help them celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. During the evening the group sang "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" with Mrs. Richard Riffle at the piano. Mrs. Grant Nelles sang "I Love You Truly" for the honored couple and Rev. Richard Riffle offered prayer.

The dining table was centered by a beautiful anniversary cake which was served by Mrs. C. T. Jungblom. Mrs. Kenneth King and Mrs. Robert Plut poured, and Mrs. Norton Shelver was in charge of the punch bowl. Mrs. Vernon Engelson had charge of the gift table and Sylvia Bates was in charge of the guest book. All who assisted in serving and those in charge of other items wore corsages of baby mums. Mrs. Bates also wore a pretty corsage of light pink mums.
