VOLUME FIFTY-EIGHT — CONCRETE, SKAGIT COUNTY, WASHINGTON, OCTOBER 16, 1958. — NUMBER 42

THIS & THAT

BY H. L. D.

Sunday was a wet, miserable day for the opening of the fall hunting season but we can't say we are sorry. We are not going to be very popular in this valley of mighty hunters, but never having understood the desire to hunt out and kill defenseless animals and birds, we have a hatred for this time of year and if there is anything that will cut down on the number of hunters, we are all it. The sight of a once beautiful, graceful, wild creature turned into a stiff, dead thing because of man's desire to show his superiority, makes us sick inside. Once when it was necessary to go out and kill to get meat to live, this was a necessary part of the life cycle. But to call it a sport is beyond our understanding.

Art, Ann and the grandchildren and Don King of Anacortes spent the weekend here, the boys to hunt and Ann to visit with us and the Roy Pyattes. Art and Ann have moved from Edmonds to an apartment at the Lynnwood Motel on Highway 99. They recently sold their home and thought they had another bought but another buyer got in ahead of them. They have been hunting for a new home but so far have not found what they want so are renting for awhile until something turns up. Art works in Edmonds and wants to live close to that area but it has had such an influx of new people the last few years that suitable houses are hard to find.

In our kitchen we have a closet that holds the hot water tank and cleaning equipment and it extends out in the room a little. This corner has many pencil marks on it where the grandchildren have been measured each time they come to see how much they have grown. We measured them all Sunday morning and the first mark, put on about five years ago when we first built the house, shows Judy Ann at two was twenty-nine inches tall. Jerri Lynn, who is now two, has a mark just above it. Judy's mark now at 7 is forty-eight inches from the floor and it gives us a rather odd feeling to have her stand beside us and measure herself. It wasn't so bad when the goal of our nephews and neices was to be "as tall as Aunt Helen" at a early age, but our grandchildren creeping up there is something else again. As we are only four feet eleven it won't be long until we hear that crow of joy that always comes when a child finds that she (or he) is a little taller than we. Our long standing retort on the evils of drinking coffee at an early age isn't going to make us feel any younger this time and we have a feeling it won't even seem funny.

When you send in your subscription money don't forget that the price went up on October 1st, and the Herald is now $3.00 in the county and $3.50 outside except for Newhalem and Diablo. Postal rate hikes made this necessary to cover costs. Not only did the cost of mailing go up but the cost of billing and the notices we get when you change addresses and do not inform us in time. Each paper we send to the wrong address costs us five cents so we would appreciate being notified in advance when you move.

Jack Westland Visits Dam Site

Congressman Jack Westland, who made a complete tour of the Upper Baker hydro-electric project last year, was back again last Thursday for a look at the progress made since that time. In company with Puget Sound Power & Light officials: Hal Foreman of Seattle, John Wallin of Bellingham, Harlan Martin of Sedro-Woolley and Andy Miller of Concrete; and Editor C. Dwelley of Concrete and Ken Wallin of Everett, Westland visited the damsite cafeteria for lunch, then inspected the work now going on in the area.

He saw the workmen working on forms for the powerhouse on the lower side of the big dam, also the trucks and equipment busy in building the large earth dam that will prevent waters of the completed lake from going out the low place in the terrain northwest of the main dam.

After looking over the upper Baker project the party returned down the east side of Lake Shannon to the gravel pit installation, then down to Concrete to inspect the lower Baker power house and the new tunnel for the next generator to be installed. The tunnel is now completely drilled and the work of building forms for lining the interior with cement is under way.

Congressman Jack Westland Looks Over Project With Supt. Norman McKinney

The tour was completed with a visit to the fish dam, where the crew lifted a large catch of silver salmon from the trap for a quick trip to their spawning grounds at Baker lake.

U. Of W. Students To Conduct Church Survey

A religious preference census is to be taken in the upper valley communities of Hamilton, Concrete, Rockport, Marblemount and Newhalem on Saturday, October 25th. The survey will be under the sponsorship of the Washington Council of Churches. Students from the University of Washington will work as census takers.

Information being sought in the census includes the names and address of the family, the names and ages of all members of the family, and the church preference or preferences of the family. The census is entirely interdenominational and the results will be shared by all the churches of the valley.

Census cards will be left at the homes where families are away so that they may be filled out and sent to the survey headquarters later.

Rev. Allan Parker of Concrete will be the local contact concerning the census for anyone wishing additional information.

Local Garden Club Host To County Association

The Associated Garden Clubs of Skagit County were guests Monday of last week of the Upper Skagit Garden Club. The groups gathered at the local American Legion hall with about forty present from the lower valley. Sack lunches were brought for the noon meal.

Mrs. Elmer Gustafson, Sr., a guest for the day, brought in many lovely arrangements to be judged, as did many others. The judges were Mrs. Nellie Anderson and Mrs. Nelson of Mount Vernon.

Officers to be installed in May for the coming two years were elected. Mrs. Vera McRae of the Allen Garden Club will be president; Mrs. Fender will be vice-president; Mrs. Paulson of Bay View, treasurer; and Mrs. Clifford LaFleur, secretary.

Many interesting discussions were carried on throughout the day with Mrs. Jurgena of Burlington acting as presiding officer. Mrs. Magnus Miller, local president, welcomed the visitors and gave an informal talk telling of the visit of the local group to the Arboretum in Seattle. Mrs. Ray Ross gave a recitation as part of the entertainment program.

Lost Hunter Out At Darrington

Search parties hunted in vain for a deer hunter lost in the upper Finney Creek country last weekend, but they were searching in the wrong place. The hunter came out on the other side of the ridge and walked into Darrington Tuesday evening at 6:15 after being out in the woods since Sunday morning.

The hunter was Lester Eubanks, 32, of Everett, who was hunting with Jim Sapp, also of Everett. When Eubanks failed to return late Sunday evening, Sapp walked in to report him missing. He had taken the keys to the pick-up with him, so had left Sapp afoot.

The local deputy, state game protector and Marshal Bianchini organized a search party and hunted all day Monday and Tuesday in the area. The county sheriff's office had a plane over the territory Tuesday and Dr. Monzingo flew his plane in the search.

Just as the officers were really getting plans set for an all-out search, word came from Darrington that their man was safe. He was in good shape after the ordeal but very hungry.

Joe Weckerlys Welcome A Baby Daughter

The county commissioners completed a big trimming job Tuesday when they passed a balanced budget for Skagit county for the next year. The figures as presented by the various offices and departments totalled $90,090 more than the estimated income. The board cut their figures by $87,778.

The sheriff's department took a trimming from the requested $92,000 to $67,000. All county employees were given a $10 a month raise.

Mark Rathvon, Norma Rutherford Wed Friday

Mark Rathvon and Norma Ruthford were united in marriage on Friday evening at the home of the bride's parents near Sedro-Woolley. Pastor Sensabaugh of the First Baptist church of Sedro-Woolley officiated with only members of the family attending. Attendants were Caroline Ruthford, cousin of the bride, and the groom's brother, Glen.

The rooms were beautifully decorated in fall flowers in bronze and gold with gold satin streamers.

The bride wore a fall knit suit and hat and an orchid corsage. A small reception followed the ceremony. The young couple then left for a weekend honeymoon trip to Soap Lake from which they returned to make their home at the Elliot cabins in Sedro-Woolley.

Opening Day Cold, But Duck Hunting Is Hot

It was a wet, windy, stormy day Sunday in the upper valley. Hunting season opened in spite of weather conditions, so the hunters ventured out to see what they could do. They did fairly well. A check of the locker in Concrete today showed twelve deer hanging ready for packaging.

As for the remainder of the county the checks taken Sunday by the game department showed some 450 deer hunters, who bagged 58 deer and 2 bear. The best hunting appeared to be in the Nooksack area and on the south Skagit around Day Lake. Deer in this area were picked up all over the valley with no specific "hot" spots.

The storm also brought good luck to the duck hunters with big bags being taken on the flats. The pheasant hunting was slow with 80 sportsmen checked with 53 birds taken.

Scott Paper opened its private logging road bordering the South Fork of the Nooksack on opening day, and will also be opened this week end: Oct. 25-26; November 1-2; and November 8-9 of Elk season.

Scott Paper land is also open on the east side of Day Creek, Finney Creek, Illabot Creek, Jordan and Jackman creek, except where logging operations are in progress.

Logging road gates will be locked at 6:00 p. m. at the close of each weekend. In most cases the hunters will be asked to register before entering the private land.

Diablo Damage Suit Is Settled

A $200,000 damage suit against City Light, over the case of four year old Gregory Sherman, who lost an arm on the lift at Diablo, was settled in a superior court in Seattle Tuesday with a $74,900 verdict.

Little Gregory was injured when he wandered away from the home of his parents at Diablo camp on April 14, 1957. In his wanderings he climbed up the track of the lift as the platform was on its way down. Although there were people on the lift and they attempted to get attention of the lift operator, it continued down, running over the child's arm.

Gregory is the son of Martin Sherman, City Light employee.

Homecoming Is Friday Event

Football will be the big event Friday night in Concrete as the old graduates of Concrete High return for another Homecoming celebration. The opponent of the undefeated Concrete squad will be Langley.

Last week Langley and Lake Stevens battled to a 0-0 tie, so the Lions have a slight edge on statistics.

As usual there will be quite a few things going on. There will be a street parade by the high school students at 4:00 in the afternoon, culminating with a rally at the school field at 7:00. After the game there will be the annual Homecoming dance at the gymnasium with Harry Lindbeck's orchestra playing.

The high school students will add more interest to the dance by choosing their Homecoming King and Queen during the evening.

For the older folks the America Legion Auxiliary will add to the evening's entertainment with one of their famous Smorgasbord dinners, served from 5:00 until 8:00 with a choice of ham, fish or barbecued short ribs for the main course.

Defeat Oak Harbor 27-13

Last Friday night the team went to Oak Harbor to bring home their fifth straight victory of the season. The Lions battled the islanders to a tie for three quarters of the game, then cut loose with two touchdowns and a safety to pull away in a blaze of glory.

With the game tied up at 13-13 and time running out, Regan took the last Oak Harbor kick-off for a 55-yard ramble that set Concrete in position to score again. Jimmy Chamness had the honor of taking it over from six yards out.

The next score came shortly afterward when the Lions punted out of bounds on the Oak Harbor 3-yard line. In attempting to run the ball from behind the goal line the Oak Harbor back was tackled for a loss by Jerry Williams and Alvin Kratzer, scoring a 2-point safety.

Trying desperately to get back possession of the ball, the Wildcats tried an on-side kick on their kick-off. The play failed to work and with the the ball on the 30-yard line Wayne Crinklaw broke loose to out-run the secondary and go all the way to score.

With the game safely tucked in the win column Concrete held Oak Harbor for the final minutes, blocking all their rallies.

● Suffers Broken Leg

Mrs. Harold Lynch slipped outside her home in Anacortes on Friday and fractured a leg. She is now in the Anacortes hospital. Her mother is taking care of the youngsters.

ROCKPORT STATE PARK IS ENLARGED

After being tied up most of the summer on forest fire alert, the crew of the state forestry station at Grasmere finally got a chance to work on the new Rockport State Park. The result is shown above—a section large enough for fifty or more tables and room for many cars. An appropriation of $4,000 was made available this year by the park department. Next step will be installation of a water system. Tables and stoves will be put in for next year's use.

SKETCH OF PUGET'S NEW FISH TRAP AND BARRIER DAM AT BAKER RIVER

How Puget Helps Conservation

Salmon is one of Washington's most vital resources, and salmon conservation is one of our major problems. Puget Power works closely with our State's Department of Fisheries to help preserve and expand our salmon runs.

Puget has continued this long-range conservation policy in the construction of its new Baker River Hydroelectric Project. A new fish trap and barrier dam have recently been completed just below Puget's present Lower Baker Dam. Here the salmon heading upstream to spawn are collected into carefully engineered holding and loading ponds, and placed in special tank trucks. The trucks then transport these fish 22 miles to their "home" in Baker Lake.

Provisions also are being made at the Upper Baker Dam and at Lower Baker to enable young fish to complete successfully their migration to the sea. Puget and the Department of Fisheries are pioneering new methods both to help get more salmon up to their spawning grounds and more of them back to salt water. In these ways Puget will help our salmon runs to flourish and increase for the benefit of all our people.

The Baker River Project will develop and expand another great natural resource, too. The Upper Baker Dam and the expansion at Lower Baker will add 158,000 kilowatts of new low-cost electric power to Puget's generating system, enabling us to serve even better the homes, farms and industries in the growing Puget Sound-Cascade Region.

State Pamphlet Gives Facts On Cement Mfg.

In a recent bulletin from the state department of economic development there appeared the following article entitled: "CEMENT INDUSTRY."

Importance: Cement production, while not one of Washington's biggest industries, pyramids into an important economic factor when made into concrete end-products. Cement used as a binder for sand and aggregate is used in practically all engineering construction. Almost without an exception every structure, whether it be a home or bridge, uses a certain quanity of portland or masonry cemet in the foundation, basement, mortors, floor r roof.

Market: Consumption of cement in the State exceeded 5,000,000 barrels in 1957. Of this amount about 1,000,000 barrels were imported and approximatley 500,000 barrels were exported, with the majority of this going to Alaska. Six major plants located in Washington produced close to 4,500,000 barrels of cement in 1957, obtained from our limestone deposits which contain the required percentages of lime, silica, aluminum and iron oxide. Aproximatley $18,000,000 or 1.4% of the national total cement revenue is realized directly from the sale of cement in Washington. Considering the tremendous quantities of sand and aggregate required for concrete end-products, this figure could be at least doubled for revenue derived from cement, cement aggregates. More than 1,000,000 five-yard truckloads of cement aggregates are used annually in this state.

Employment: Approximately 850 people are presently employed in the manufacture of cement in Washington. this work force is dispersed relatively evenly in Spokane, Metaline Falls, Grotto, Bellingham, Concrete and Seattle. Another 350 people are employed throughout the State in producing sand and gravel aggregates.

Capital Investment: Crushers, grinders, ball mills, kilns and plants represent a capital investment of over $60,000,000 in the cement manufacturing industry alone in investment in quarry and land.

Outlook: Construction awards and bids called for the first half of 1958 indicate that the demand for cement and concrete producte this year will far surpass that of 1957. The long-range outlook for the concrete industry appears to be good in this State, aided by technological advances in prestressing of girders and beams and in utilization of light weight aggregates.

Weekend guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Stokes were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McIntosh and family of Moses Lake and Charles McIntosh of Seattle. Kenneth is with the Air Force and is being transferred to California.

With new Thunderbird flavor in each lively line and tastefully new interiors, these 59 Fords are beautifully proportioned for elegant driving.

Power, performance and economy are served up in new proportions, too. All standard Ford engines—Six or Thunderbird V-8—thrive on regular gasoline at regular prices. You save up to 5 cents on each gallon! There's a new aluminized muffler that normally will last twice as long as conventional mufflers used on other cars . . . full-flow oil filtration that lets you change oil at 4000 miles instead of the 1000 often recommended . . . a brilliant new Diamond Lustre Baked Enamel Finish that's so durable you won't have to wax it ever . . . and two new economy power-transmission teams that will bring you savings automatically. That's why we say, for '59, Ford is truly a masterpiece of underpricing!

NEW economy team Number One! Now you can have all the high performance of a completely new, completely automatic Fordomatic Drive teamed with Ford's new Mileage Maker Six or Thunderbird V-8 engine—at a price that should banish "stick shifting" forever!

NEW economy team Number Two! Take Ford's versatile new Cruise-O-Matic Drive, add the responsiveness of Thunderbird Special V-8 power and you have the last word in automatic driving plus the "built-in" overdrive savings of an economy-geared axle.

Altogether NEW in everything you can see, feel or touch!

We note the derby hat is back in the men's fashion ads. We never wore one, but from the pictures in the family album, there was a hat to reckon with. It tolerated no half-way measures. Either you looked dignified and carried an air of authority, or you looked stupid in either a comical or slightly larcenous manner. The movies did a lot of moral injustices to the derby by making is a trade-mark of the mild-witted and the crook. It is just lately that the derby and the black homberg have begun to show up as crowning glory of the leading men. One authority on the subject of hats quotes history in an effort to prove that the derby and the top hat are symbols of manly domination and that it was when these top-pieces began to disappear that women started to take over on decisions and rule of the family fortunes. True, the beard, the goatee, the pork chops side brush and the curled-up mustache disappeared about the same time. We think the man has something there. Grandpa had all the commanding appearance of a Civil War general until he shaved off his beard and became a little old man. And who, woman or not, would stand up and argue against a busy beard and a black derby? The idea is liable to cause many a twinge of manhood in the modern male. All it needs is for somebody a shade below the actor or statesman type to make the break on Main Street, America, and boom will be on. Back to the stern and sturdy sky-piece, men! Toss away the razor and dominate!

The true test of a hunter is when he can get up at the first glimmer of light, walk all day in the rain and come home swearing that he loved every minute of it.

Some public figures who are facing the voters this time are worried about the fact that most questions directed at them concern the deplorable mess of most government finances. The subject is something like the weather—everybody is effected. And if the voters knew the answers, they would start with their own family budget, which is just as confused.

The Asian flu is coming around again. This time, we presume, the Formosan variety.

There are many ways to get an education. Get into the service, get into business, get married . . .

As science develops machines that almost think for themselves we expect any day to hear a space rocket reply to questioning, "Where did you go?" "Out." "What did you do?" "Nothing."

Polities is a tricky business. A man who doesn't drink coffee might as well not file.

The county budget is in balance for at least one more year, voters are reminded. And you just don't hardly find those things anymore.

The last laugh can be the start of a long silence.

Looking About

By Hermie Hollister

Another political campaign will soon be drawing to a close. How different they are from those in our grandparent's time. With our radios and TV we can all see and hear our candidates, hear all the issues debated and discussed by "experts on the subject", even hear voices floating down to us from planes, telling us what to do. With all the limited facilities in those days, they just couldn't have been more confused than we are about some of the issues coming up for vote. Perhaps our present day troubles spring from hearing too many pros and cons, so no wonder some of us just climb up on the fence and stay there where we don't have to take sides or get all upset about the state of the nation. Of course, we can always save a little wear and tear on the disposition and mental equipment by voting a straight party ticket regardless of the candidate or issue.

This week Roy discovered another of the many joys of being a grandparent. When he decided to do a little fishing he found his best line on his favorite reel hopelessly tangled. If he ever gets the line off it will be in many pieces.

The young people of the Community Bible church will enjoy a homecoming game party at the church right after the game Friday evening and on Saturday evening at 7:30 there will be a Youth Cinema program for them at the church.

The Rebekahs met Tuesday evening for a business meeting. First nomination of officers was in order. The next meeting will be Tuesday, October 28. A district meeting will be held Saturday afternoon and evening at Clear Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Roller visited Mrs. Lulu Barnhart in Sedro-Woolley Monday.

Mrs. Jerry Clements visited Mrs. Sawhill in the Skagit Valley hospital Saturday. Mrs. Sawhill is the mother of Mrs. Arnold Gerritson and has visited Concrete many times. She has been confined to the hospital the past three weeks for medical treatment.

Sunday dinner guests at the Geo. Quiggle home were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Quiggle and son of Bellingham.

There is a slightly mournful sound to the wind in the dead leaves these days in spite of the warm weather. That contrary old weather man just couldn't have given us a little of this rain last season when we needed it so badly. We are beginning to wonder if we are going to keep that lawn mower working all fall. The grass must be trying to make up for last summer's rest. One sure sign of the times, along with the falling leaves, is the coming out of all the new cars. One wonders why the 1959's come out in '58. Each company must be trying to jump the gun on the others.

Mrs. Chuck Ford and Mrs. Bill Cupples were Mount Vernon visitors Monday.

"YOU DIDN'T HAPPEN TO HAVE A GUY DRIVE IN HERE WITH NO BRAKES AND A MISSING BUMPER?"

Nope, we'd be willing to swear that Texaco customers are the kind of people who keep their cars, and their driving habits, well above reproach.

Heard Last Week At Pete's Corner:

The latest story going around is about St. Peter, who got to checking up on married men and found that 85 per cent of them had the type of mind that could lead them to being unfaithful to their wives if the opportunity arose. He decided to write each one a letter, but after more thought decided that would be a lot of letters at 4c each. So he wrote letters, instead, to the 15 per cent who were absolutely true to their wives. In the letter were some very interesting truths that every married man should know.

The letter was very long, so we won't print it here. Besides, you got your letter, didn't you?

"Take a boy fishing—today."

In this world of slogans, mottos and catch-phrases, these are words with a simple, direct and purposeful meaning.

Lucky indeed is the lad who inherits a natural love of the world outdoors. With such an inheritance unfailingly comes self-practiced coaching in the ethics of sportsmanship and fair play, so essential to future successes, not only in meadow and stream, but along the roads of life as well.

Take a boy to the world outdoors, for nowhere is there to be found a more common meeting ground for man and boy. Here it is possible to form a workable relationship that is, without being so labeled, one of teacher and student, "old pro" and novice. It is a world of real and sensitive things, in which there is no imagination or pretense to sustain the barriers of silence that often exist between the man and the boy. There is only room for the comradeship that builds confidence in the heart of the young and understanding in the heart of the more experienced.

Take a boy fishing, hunting, hiking, camping or for a walk in the woods and he comes into his own. Brash, timid, or indifferent though he may be, he emerges a young individual, at once interested, confident, and amazingly eager to learn as much as possible about the exciting world that surrounds him.

And there is indeed joy in the heart of the lad who shares with his father, and "pal," of a "big catch," the flickering light of a campfire, or the mere act of sharing in the wonders of the world outdoors.

Sam Beck is still confined to Memorial hospital for treatment of a chipped knee bone but is coming along nicely.

As Supt. McKinney puts it, the work on the upper Baker dam has now reached the "boredom" stage. MOST of us miss the miracle and the magic that is the coming of spring. Mother Nature touches her fruitful wand here and there and for the most part the marvel of it all goes unnoticed. How many can rightfully claim to have found the first bud or bloom, to have been first witness to the building of the first cozy nest in the neighborhood? Has anyone seen the revival of a lowly blade of grass, long stunted and bent by the heavy weight of snow and sleet? Touched by the wand, it becomes erect and, tip pointed to the sky, it begins to grow.

Spring and its magic are old lore before most of us recognize the wonders that have been accomplished. One bright and beautiful morning, we discover a world outdoors that is a panorama of beauty. The trees are full-blown and decked in their most appealing green and the fresh fragrance of youth is everywhere about us. The willow dips its boughs to drink the cool waters of the stream and on a distant hill a throaty Bob White whistles to his mate. "Hooray. Spring is here," say we.

Mother Nature's presentation of spring will never win an Oscar or an Emmy. The action moves slowly and only the trained eye appreciates the precision and the attention to detail that makes its accomplishment a masterpiece of art. But, think how dramatic it would be if, in the space of a single night or day, snows were brushed away and in one all-sudden transposition, the world of new life that is spring became unrolled in its full glory and splendor! But such is not nature's way.

Spring comes to us slowly. In spring are the leisurely days of fulfillment, the time for sharing in the fullness and goodness of all that earth has to offer.

The St. Mary's ship canal with the Soo locks at Sault Ste. Marie carries more traffic than the Panama, Suez and Kiel canals combined.

By WNPA Correspondent

Olympia. . Hearings on operating budgets of all state departments, boards and commissions began last Friday and will continue through November 13. Governor Albert D. Rosellini is sitting in to raise questions and guide policy. The consolidated budget will carry also the requests to the legislature from all other elective officials as well as the Governnor's departments. The schedule is to have the billion dollar plus budget for 1959-61 in the hands of Jack Gregory, the state printer, by December 1.

This time the state is setting up a program type budget, simplified, and presumably one more easily read and interpreted by legislators who will make final decisions on appropriations.

become big business in Washington

Sport fishing and hunting have state. John Biggs, State Game Director, says that in the hunting season now beginning, between 350,000 and 400,000 hunters will spend an estimated $40 million. This will cover cost of hunting equipment and supplies, permits, travel and lodging. Biggs expects hunters to take 65,000 deer this season, 6,500 elk, 6,000 bear, almost a million upland birds and 1,235,000 migratory game birds. He says this represents 17 million pounds of wild life. This should be a record season, says Biggs, because of two mild winters in succession and favorable environmental conditions.

To foster this game crop, the Game Commission has submitted a budget of $11,670,520 for the 1959-61 fiscal period. The program is self sustaining. The budget comes from license and permit fees and some other wildlife sources. None of it comes from the state's general fund.

Joe Dwyer State Agriculture Director, says Washington State canneries will share in a large purchase of canned applesauce and canned apple slices for the national school lunch program. A total of 55,000 cases of apple slices were purchased from Washington canneries. The value is $203,500.

The Washington State Research Council said last week that any proposal for raising teacher's salaries should take into consideration the fact that the average teacher pay in Washington is now fifth highest in the nation. Average pay for teachers and all other instructional personnel except administrators was $5,250 last year in this state. California paid an average of $5,925 to lead all states. Oregon paid $4,875 and Idaho paid $3,975.

Development of an over-all management plan for managing and recommended to the State Board of marketing state owned timber was Natural Resources last week. The recommendation was made by Wm. A. Eastman, Jr., Seattle consulting forester, who was retained by the board to study the timber management and marketing procedures of the state. Eastman said data compiled under a management plan could be used to plan for a long term removal of state timber in order that timber harvesting from year to year would be on a more even basis.

The State Land Commission told the board that his department has already undertaken formulation of such a plan. He submitted a study which recommended that approximately 463,031,000 board feet of timber be cut annually. This figure was based on estimates of the state's timber holdings and would be modified when a complete inventory is made.

At its recent meeting in Walla Walla, the Washington State Good Roads Association went on record favoring a revamping of the State License Department to create a Department of Motor Vehicles which would encompass all state motor vehicle licensing and driver improvement programs. The Good Roads group also called for a change in the makeup of the State Toll Bridge Authority to eliminate appointive officials and make it a body of elective officials. Members would be the governor, state auditor, state treasurer, chairman of the State Highway Commission and one other Highway Commission member. Eliminated would be the director of general administration and chairman of the State Public Service Commission. Legislative action would be needed to effect the recommended change.

The Good Roads delegates also called for reestablishment of motor vehicle inspection, but asked that it be set up in private garages with State Patrol over-all supervision.

JACKSON

is doing a great job

U. S. SENATOR, DEMOCRAT

Few men have contributed more to the growth and prosperity of our state in the last 18 years than has Henry Jackson.

First elected to Congress in 1940, at the age of 28, Jackson served six consecutive terms. In 1952, the voters elevated him to the Senate.

Today 46-year-old Henry Jackson is regarded as one of the brightest young leaders of the Senate. He is 18 years wiser, 18 years more skilled in the art of government.

Let's re-elect hard-working Henry Jackson.

INDIANA "202" LAW INCREASED UNION MEMBERSHIP!

INDIANA, MORE INDUSTRIALIZED THAN WASHINGTON, HAS A 202-TYPE LAW. HERE'S WHAT THE STATE'S GOVERNOR (WHO ONCE OPPOSED SUCH LEGISLATION) NOW SAYS ABOUT THE LAW IN PRACTICE:

"Good sense and intelligence know the right-to-work law has been beneficial to Indiana, particularly to organized labor. It is in keeping with the American tradition of freedom of choice and it has brought no destruction of unionism as predicted by labor leaders. It has, instead, increased union membership and placed the control of unions in the hands of the individual members where it properly belongs."

DRESS UP FOR LOVE

By Lillace M. Mitchell

LULIE emptied the coffee grounds on the Spartan rose and eyed the ground around the plant as it drank the liquid almost thirstily.

Although she did not look next door she could see, out of the corner of her purple eyes, Charley Cornell polishing his convertible.

"Hoo hoo!" he said suddenly.

"Hoo hoo yourself," she retorted. She laughed gaily and went back into the kitchen.

"I wish you'd press my blue nylon, Sis," Emmy said. "It only takes a whisper of the iron but—I'm really in a rush."

"Go on! My white shoes have to be whitened," Jimmy cut in.

The other two sisters looked at the sink full of breakfast dishes distastefully. "My stars, when we all get up late on these holiday mornings," grumbled Grace, "it puts everything back—I simply can't take time to help with the dishes, Lulie."

Lulie noticed now that the oldest sister, Marcia, was already decked out in her "little cotton" that was skilfully cut and had cost forty-two-fifty at the dress shop. Lulie stood there for a few moments after they had all left the room, her eyes studying the dishes, the nylon dress that needed only the whisper of the iron and the white shoes that would need at least three coats of whitening—to look white.

Out in the yard next door she could hear Charley Cornell whistling tunelessly: a little sound that always pulled her heartstrings. For Charley Cornell had always whistled like that when he had been waiting to take her to the Prom or on a class picnic when they were in high school. Since graduation Charley Cornell has asked her for a dozen dates but Lulie remembered dully that she seemed never to be through with her tasks and she had refused him almost crossly. She was sorry now as she remembered back: after all, it wasn't his fault if the work was all too much for one slim girl to handle.

Her Mother had broken down under the strain and had been in the hospital for three months. No one else ever seemed inclined to shoulder any of the burden and somehow Lulie had found herself "elected" to the job.

"Hoo, hoo! Where you going, for Pete's sake?" called Charley.

She looked over at him and smiled tantalizingly. "Did you have any special place in mind, Charley?"

He blinked "ME? You mean you're going places with ME?"

"Oh, didn't you intend your kind words as an invitation, Charley? Excuse me!"

He shook his polishing rag uneasily. "Gee, I thought I was poison—'r something. You kept turning me down every time I asked you. You want to go places today, Lulie?"

"Why not?" she asked simply.

From the upstairs bedroom the sisters shared, Emmy called shrilly, "Bring my nylon up, Sis. I'm ready for it now."

Lulie looked up and waved carelessly. "It isn't ironed, darling. Charley and I are going places—"

Jimmy crawled out his bedroom window onto the roof over the kitchen porch. "It's mutiny!" he howled. "Mutiny on the Bounty! It's mutiny, that's what—"

"H'm," laughed Charley loudly. "I thought Lulie was going to be MUTE all the rest of her life while you-all walked back and forth over her stretched-out body! Come along, Lulie—let's get going—I sure got sick and tired of those old cotton kitchen dresses you've been living in."

"I s'pose you're wanting to buy her real dress-up dresses, huh?" Jimmy yelled down angrily.

"It's a right good idea, Buddy," said Charley. "Glad you mentioned it. It'll smooth the proposal for me—later in the day. Eh, Lulie?"

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Ruyle and two children of Birdsview spent Saturday evening there. Mrs. Mary McLeod of Rockport visited Sunday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. John Bitonti and Mrs. John Frank attended the regular monthly meeting of the board of Catholic Children's Services of Skagit and Island counties at the Immaculate Catholic School in Mount Vernon Monday night. Be It Resolved, By the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Washington in legislative session assembled:

THAT, At the general election to be held in this state on the Tuesday next succeeding the first Monday in November, 1958, there shall be submitted to the qualified electors of this state, for their approval and ratification, or rejection, an amendment to Article I, section 11 of the Constitution of the State of Washington, as amended by Amendment 4; to read as follows:
