

FEATHERS from the Duster

By The Overtime Editor

WHAT TO DO about the endless confusion caused by a misplaced figure is one of the headaches of newspaper business. Like last week when we announced our reception for "this coming Sunday" and then added the wrong date. Well, if a lot of friends show up next Sunday, we'll have another one, but this time it will be at the apartment. If you were one of those we confused—drop in.

Sunday's reception was very nice as it quickly became a gathering place for folks who hadn't seen their next-door neighbors to talk to for several weeks. Also a lot of old friends were brought together and a number of new acquaintances started on their way.

For the men folks, such dress-up affairs are strictly duty jobs, but Sunday there were enough men and enough conversation going to keep them going all afternoon. —And the kitchen couldn't hardly accommodate all the women who also seemed to have plenty to talk about.

As a clincher on whether a good time was held, the proof provided when the lingering guests started seeking excuses for giving another party. In Concrete you don't really need one, but it helps everybody justify the effort.

THE DRUG STORE lost a front window last weekend when someone accidentally fell against it and ended up inside. The story was made unusual because the fellow who fell through it wasn't cut. The cuts were received by those who thought he must have been hurt and went to his aid.

There seems to be a moral there yet anyway you twist it, it doesn't come out like those mother taught us.

OUR SPRINGLIKE DAYS have a few drawbacks. Mainly, a horde of salesman who swarm up here at the first hint of spring. Not the ones we know and enjoy, but the type that knocks on the door and gives you a big pitch about how he can save you so many dollars on a job that the local fellow could do too. Sad but true, the local fellow is usually too busy to hunt out the jobs house to house, but you could contact him and reverse the transient salesman's words.

The Better Business Bureau tells us that in a good percentage of cases the itinerant crew that will "do so much for you" collect an exorbitant price for the type of service they perform. Many do not fulfill their agreement either in quality or workmanship—and some collect a nice down payment and never return at all.

At best you wind up with a contract that binds you to pay, but gives you no warranty of satisfaction. A ten-year guarantee is little good from a man you never saw before and won't be able to locate next week.

In the long run the local workman and the local supplier offers the best buy you can get—integrity. Nobody can give away either time or money, but least of all a perfect stranger. Watch it!

CORRESPONDENTS NOTE: Get news in Monday next week. Early paper. Washington's Birthday.

Heggen Named State Senator

Bert Heggen, well known farmer from the Skagit flats, will serve as our State Senator until the next election. Mr. Heggen's appointment was made yesterday by the county commissioners of Skagit and San Juan counties, who met to choose from a list of three names submitted by the Democratic Central Committee.

The men chosen by the committee were Jerry Manfield of Anacortes, Warren Gilbert of Mount Vernon and Mr. Heggen. The senate position became vacant upon the resignation of Fred Martin to take an appointive job in Olympia. The successor will hold the office until the election in the fall.

Heggen has been active in the Democratic party in the county for many years and his most recent attempt as a candidate was a race for the job of county commissioner of the First District. In that race he was defeated by Wallace Sharpe. In the vote by the six commissioners Heggen received four votes and Mansfield and Gilbert, one each.

SPORTSMEN UP IN AMS OVER GILLNETTING OF STEELHEAD, BUT—

Indians Have Law In Their Favor

A mass meeting of sportsmen of the county with state game department and fisheries men was held in Burlington Tuesday night to discuss the problem of gill-netting in the Skagit river. The aroused feelings of the sportsmen was evidenced by a huge crowd which overflowed the community hall there.

When all the oratory had been exhausted in protests, ideas for action and demands that "somebody do something" had been heard, the final gloomy conclusion was reached that everything that could be done on the state level had been done. The only hope now is for an act of Congress to effectively end the 107-year-old argument over exact meaning of the Point Elliott Treaty between the Indians and the federal government.

Development during the past week on the controversy included a complaint by Solie and John Jones, members of the Upper Skagit Tribe, that a warning shot was fired at them as they were setting their nets at Day Creek. They also reported they had lost two sets of gear and a new skiff was damaged by unknown persons determined to discourage their fishing.

In other reports freshly cut trees with branches stubbed to tear the nets have been launched about the set nets in efforts to destroy them. Arrests have been made on the Puyallup and Nisqually rivers and

Fared In Three Cock At Minkler

Afternoon about 5:00 P. M. came together on Highway 1 near Minkler Lake and the suffered minor injuries. The car was driven by George J. Jolly, Ronald Metcalf, 21, and William Froehner of Sedro-Woolley.

As the state patrol report was driven by Spencer of Route 3, Sedro-Woolley, attempting a left turn on the highway, a pickup truck driven by Dan H. Ranta 1, Sedro-Woolley, saw pass. Bryson saw the Ford car coming in the east lane and tried to stop. His car into the Harris car and all three were involved.

IL CAR WRECKED

The Patrol car, driven by Shields, also figured in the accident over the weekend. The car was badly damaged last night when the Patrolman forced off Highway 16 just the Van Horn store. As the car rolled onto the soft shoulder, the patrolman was unable to push onto the highway and it is a utility pole, ploughed through mud hole and ended up in a five-way to the Harris place. Pain Reynolds was uninjured and this to the use of his seat.

Offending car that caused the accident sped away before the busy patrol could get his automobile stop.

Lnan Woman Got To Death

Leonard P. Simpson, 45 year old man, was being held in county jail this week pending charges of killing his wife, Edith Friday morning. According to Simpson the shooting came after quarrel about 3:00 A. M. Mrs. Simpson was brought to the Memorial hospital by neighbors but died in her wounds shortly after arriving there.

Leonard Simpson was formally charged with second degree murder arraignment in Superior Court Monday Tuesday morning.

Services for Mrs. Simpson were held in Sedro-Woolley Monday. She survived by three brothers, Leal, Elmer and Morris Cabe, all by Lyman; three sisters, Mrs. Doris Lyman, Mrs. Eva Taylor and Mrs. Tagham, also of Lyman. Her mother, Jack Cabe, lives in Sedro-Woolley and her mother is Mrs. Ernest Vanderhoff of Lyman.

ROCKPORT SCHOOL DECISION POSTPONED PENDING STUDY

No decision will be reached on closing of the Rockport school until a more thorough investigation proves that such a move will be necessary. This was the word of the school board Monday night to a group of seventeen residents from the upriver community who appeared at the school board meeting to protest the proposal.

Chairman Hornbeck made it clear to the visitors that there had been no decision to close the school and that both the meeting in Rockport recently and the hearing Monday evening were merely exploratory due to the fact that enrollment at the Rockport school has been dropping steadily and would be at a new low next term.

According to Supt. Barr's figures the entire school budget for next year will have to be cut about

Friday Is Last Day For Council Candidates

Rumors of another caucus for the Municipal Election to be held in Concrete on March 13th had, up to press time, not materialized with a new party.

A check with Mrs. Alice Leonard, registration clerk, confirms the fact that Friday night is the deadline for any other nominating caucus to be held with the list of candidates appearing on the official ballot. After that date the only way other names could be substituted for the official list would be by write-in voting.

As Mr. Hornbeck has had children in the Rockport school and now as bus students to Concrete, he had difficulty convincing the Rockport people that he was not arguing for or against closing the school, but just trying to determine what the right course would be. After arguing on both sides, he finally called on the other board members for an expression of opinion.

A suggestion was made that the matter be put to a vote of the patrons of the old Rockport district alone. This was countered by the suggestions that due to budgetary problems, the whole district was as much to be considered as the expression of will at Rockport.

Merv Peterson again reiterated that the trend of attendance was down and that the big "war baby" classes were now moving into high school so that it would be necessary to recognize that economies have to be made. He asked that the decision be postponed until a survey of some type can be made to show a better picture of what the future will bring.

Colin Thomson was of the same opinion and said that rising costs were going to force a number of changes in the district in the next few years and that more information should be prepared to make advance plans to meet the problem.

Marjorie Barber also went along with the idea of a survey to show the board the trends now apparent in educational planning.

$20,000 to come within the revenue that can be anticipated from all sources. Drop in enrollment in all schools of the upper valley district created the loss of funds, as practically all revenue is based on number of pupils and attendance. It was this need for economy that prompted the idea of closing Rockport school and transporting the remaining pupils to Concrete by bus, starting next fall. Cost of operating the Rockport school runs approximately $15,500 per year.

REASONS FOR PROTEST

All Rockport people present were against the closing, although at an earlier meeting, held in Rockport on January 15th, it was learned that of the 28 families involved, 18 were in favor of sending their children to the Concrete school.

Ed Presentin led off the Rockport protest by stating that when the school districts were consolidated in 1944 the people of that community were promised that they "would always have their school." He felt the promise should be kept. Mel Benton went on to state that he felt the school was needed and that in his opinion the children learned a lot more in the one-room type of school. He said the people were pleased with their school and the teachers and didn't want to have any changes made.

Womenfolk present spoke of the fears of sending the first and second graders away from the community by bus, it being a hardship due to the long day made by bus travel each way. The Rockport people submitted a list of seven first graders who would be entering school next year. With one student known to be leaving the school, this would make an anticipated enrollment next fall of twenty-six pupils.

TEACHERS HARD TO FIND

Chairman Hornbeck answered a question about possible retirement of the present Rockport teachers by saying that such a thing was possible in the next few years but the board was very happy with the work they were doing and unless the school was closed, there would be no board action speeding such retirement.

He went on to comment that the board finds it increasingly difficult to find teachers for a rural school due to present schooling where the teachers are specializing in a small group of subjects such as would be taught in large schools, and unless experienced rural teachers can be hired, the chance of getting an adequately prepared couple to take over the school was very small.

As Mr. Hornbeck has had children in the Rockport school and now as bus students to Concrete, he had difficulty convincing the Rockport people that he was not arguing for or against closing the school, but just trying to determine what the right course would be. After arguing on both sides, he finally called on the other board members for an expression of opinion.

A suggestion was made that the matter be put to a vote of the patrons of the old Rockport district alone. This was countered by the suggestions that due to budgetary problems, the whole district was as much to be considered as the expression of will at Rockport.

Marjorie Barber also went along with the idea of a survey to show the board the trends now apparent in educational planning.

BUDGET PROBLEMS

In summing up the problem of financing which brought on the Rockport incident, Supt. Barr gave

It's time to start more clamor for the highway. Time for calling bids is past and if we are to get work under way this spring as promised, somebody in the driver's seat had better start cracking the whip. One construction job on each side of the mountains is the goal. Surveys are ready and waiting. As Omar once said, "When all the temple is prepared within, why waits the drowsy worshipper outside?"

Snow storms in the east, torrents in California. Below normal rainfall in Washington. Sounds like a publicity gag for the fair. "Come to Washington! We are jolly well unsaturated!"

One thing about it, if the Indians get their rights to fish the Skagit straightened out maybe there will be a chance for their poor white brothers up here who have to sneak around to catch a salmon with a hook and line.

That there would be more emotion than calm appraisal was expected in the Rockport school problem. The cold facts are now presented for all to study and which ever way the decision is made, the results will be felt by the entire district. On a small scale the elected representatives are again going to be forced to tell the voters that they can have anything they are willing to pay for. It is also no strange thing for a minority to benefit by the largess of a majority. The idea of postponing any action until an impartial survey can be made has a great deal of merit, if only as a tempering agent for the minds. We don't necessarily need someone to tell us what to do in these cases, but it would help greatly to have one logical course of planning upon which to base future judgements.

Prosperity is a wedding of ideas and finances. Kind of May and December in this area. The ideas are yet unborn and the finances are away in the big city having a look at the bright lights.

The U-2 incident, milked of its propagand value, has ended by Russia sending the pilot home. Practical people. Why pay board and room on yesterday's headlines.

Leftists, rightists—blightists. Let's just admit society is like a grist mill that is kept turning by the cranks at both ends of the shaft.

For the wife's information the game department has revealed that steelhead cost each fisherman on an average of $3.10 per pound. Now isn't it a thoughtful husband who works to bring home such expensive delicacies.

We still lack fodder for our town election. Without two candidates for each position there isn't much use going to the expense of printing the ballot. Serving on the council can be both an enlightening and interesting experience. It should be no embarrassment to step up and say, "I'd like to try."

Wonder just when Astronaut Glenn started on overtime pay?

The Soviet call for another disarmament conference is still the same old propaganda game. Even if we send to top man there will be no agreement on any terms by Russia's. And that is total surrender.

DELAY DECISION ON ROCKPORT SCHOOL

tentative figures on the budget for next term, showing that under the yardstick of educational units (teachers) per student days the Upper Skagit School District would lose state support for about five teachers in addition to losses in all other fund dependant on attendance and enrollment figures.

With other revenues, such as the lunch room and shop dropping due to decreased classes, the district was faced with a certain loss of $12,000 to $15,000, and a possible loss of up to $20,000. This will be met by cuts wherever possible all through the district. The board has the responsibility of doing this or seeking additional funds.

The showed that under state law the teachers must be given another raise next year to bring them up to the amount set by the legislature as the minimum salary hike over a two year period. One raise was given last year, leaving about $333 per year to be added to each salary next term.

With this extra load and the decreased revenue, the board seconded Mr. Barr's assertion that the decision on the Rockport school automatically becomes one that affects the entire district—through financing.

Steelhead Netting Will Cause Loss Of Run

not spend part of their lives in the rich pasture of the sea. However, due to natural mortality, only a portion of the steelhead that head to sea live to return.

Returning numbers depend upon the number of downstream migrants going to sea, and this depends upon the number of fish spawned and hatched. Numbers of eggs spawned is dependent upon the number of fish successfully going upstream to spawning ground.

"This upstream escapement is hindered little by the hook and line fishermen since such tools are very ineffective for taking fish. Regulations on seasons and gear are designed to perpetuate a recreation steelhead season, insuring that adequate numbers of fish escape upstream.

NETTING TOO EFFICIENT

"Taking steelhead with a net, however, is a different matter; highly efficient, and effective in reducing upstream escapement. Netting by the Indian is unrestricted, out of control, and can completely wipe out a run of fish in a stream."

Meigs goes on to point out that the sports fisherman contributes much more to Washington's economy than do the limited number of Indians netting steelhead.

"Current cost estimates show that the average steelhead fisherman is spending about $3.10 per pound of fish caught.

"The money spent by the steelheader—an estimated $3,365,900 annually by an average 67,250 person—goes for fishing tackle, boats and motors, food and lodging and cost of transportation.

"The Indian, in selling netted fish averages 20-30 cents a pound for steelhead. Clearly, analysis shows that the steelhead contributes a much larger amount to the state's economy when taken by the sports fishermen."

Records of the State's fishermen disclose just how effective the hook and line angler really is. At the end of the winter steelhead season fishermen return punch cards to the State Game Department, on which they have kept record of their catches.

Last season the total catch of steelhead in Washington during the winter season was 117,750 fish. During the previous season—1959-60—the total catch was 148,281.

Comparing number of punch cards sent in to the Game Department with the number of punches on those cards, shows that during the 1960-61 season anglers averaged 1.65 fish per man. In 1959-60, 2.19 fish were taken for every person fishing.

Using the higher success ratio of the 1959-60 season, to give optimum results, one can easily calculate that the season quota of fish for a group of 20 fishermen would be just under 44 steelhead.

Records show that the average steelhead fisherman makes between 9 and 10 trips per season. Thus, a check of 20 anglers at any one time during the season which showed them having 5 fish would beat the season quota.

Much of the steelhead fishing opportunity that exists today is directly due to fish stocking carried out with the sportsmen's dollar.

CONCRETE HERALD, Thursday, February 15, 1962

The Game Department, which operates on hunting and fishing license fees, has stocked many streams with steelhead and built runs far above what the stream would normally produce.

In the Samish river, the total run of steelhead in 1946 was 300. The planting program has increased the river's production so that the run of steelhead in the Samish now averages 4,000 fish.

Community Church Challenge

A WORD FROM THE WISE

We are always eager to give words of wisdom to others but perhaps not eager enough to receive the same wisdom when applied to us. A very wise man in his field, J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the F. B. I. says this:

"Children are not born criminals, but certain turns of the road of life guides some youngsters off into side roads where they unwittingly begin criminal careers. The churches can bring these youngsters back to the right road. If more of our children can be reached by the church, we will be much nearer a real solution to the crime problem. There is no substitute for religion and the church. By the same token, there is no synthetic replacement for a decent home . . . Religion and home life are supplementary. Each strengthens the other."

It would be well for us to receive with personal application these words from a wise man. His philosophy certainly agrees with that of the Community Church. We do not try to teach just a creed, but rather conduct based on Life in Jesus Christ. This life is lived in the home, on the job, in school and in every aspect of life. The truth of this life in Christ brings the only freedom the world can know today. We urge you to come and hear for yourself.

MORAL LAW and BIRTH CONTROL

Many views are published today about birth control. But there is very little published regarding God's view on that subject.

Since the words "birth control" can mean several things, it is advisable first to distinguish between artificial interference with conception (by the use of contraceptives, drugs, pills, etc.) and natural birth regulation by voluntary self-restraint, such as abstinence during the fertile period (so-called rhythm method).

Long before the time of Christ and the founding of the Catholic Church, God made it clear that artificial birth prevention is morally wrong. Artificial interference is contrary to nature and violates the natural law, which is the law of God. The principle is the same as the one which makes it morally wrong for a person to disgorge his food artificially (as some ancient pagans did), so that he could continue with a gluttonous banquet. Furthermore, in the Old Testament God expressly showed that artificial birth prevention is sinful. The Book of Genesis reveals that God directly punished a man for that practice. (Genesis 38, 8-10.) Artificial interference with the natural effect of the marital privilege is always and everywhere a moral evil.

Regarding natural regulation of birth, there are two things to be kept in mind. First, the natural law (God's law) does not require parents to try to have as many children as possible. While procreation of children is the primary purpose of marriage, it is not the only purpose. Secondly, natural limitation of birth is not always permissible; it is not proper to practice it indiscriminately. Since the primary purpose of marriage is the procreation of children, natural limitation (through abstinence or rhythm) can be practiced only if there is good reason (such as ill health, dangerous physical conditions, serious financial problems or the like).

The above principles are based on the natural law of God, and were true long before Christ founded His Church. Throughout its 2,000-year history, since the time of Christ, the Catholic Church has adhered consistently to those principles. You are invited to write for a free pamphlet on this subject. After discussion on the cost of running expenses which would include the annual dues to the county organization, postage, long distance phone calls and other costs which currently are being met by Mrs. Temple, a motion was passed to assess each member 25 cents. This will go into a fund which will be drawn on as needed. All members are urged to meet this small obligation which should be sent to Mrs. Bon Temple.

WESTLAND ASKS FOR MORE TIMBER SALES

Congressman Jack Westland, now taking action on the requests for action in stepping up timber sales and federal forest activity in this area, appeared before a Dept. of Interior Subcommittee February 6th to present his case. He told of the need of more park facilities in the state this year and the opportunity to further develop the Mt. Baker National Forest in this field.

Excerpts from his talk on logging and recreation follow:

"In my district timber is harvested in large amounts for lumber, plywood, pulpwood, poles, piling and a variety of other uses. Logging and its allied industries is the largest single industry in the district and a becoming more and more dependent on the national forests for a source of raw material. Availability of this timber is important to the gyppo as the small logger is called. To provide small sales upon which these small operators must depend for their livelihood the Forest Service must have adequate personnel to supervise and conduct them. I am pleased to see that the budget request contained a $400,000 increase for small timber sales over the 1962 budget for our national forests. I hope the subcommittee will approve this increase.

"Adequate roads is one of the most important items that contribute to the full economic use of the forest. Small and large logging operators are reluctant to bid on timber that is inaccessible. The budget request for forest roads and trails is $37,500,000 of which $5,444,000 would be used for maintenance and construction of roads and trails in Washington State. The 1962 program would permit construction of about 129 miles of general purpose roads and about 480 miles of timber access roads to harvest timber in our national forest. This is about 92 miles more than planned for the current fiscal year.

The need for recreational funds for national forests is as important as for national parks. More than three million persons visited the seven national forests in Washington State, Mount Baker National Forest in my district had more than 575,000 visitors in 1961.

The budget request contains $10,000 to rehabilitate 819 family recreation units in the national forests of Washington State. Approximately $140,000 of this will be used to rehabilitate 270 units in forests of my district. Another $60,000 is scheduled for construction of 60 new family recreational units in the State. Each unit furnishes facilities for a family of five. This includes stove, table, water and other items to assure maximum use of picnic and camp areas."
