

Feathers

from the Duster

By The Over-time Editor

IT ALWAYS provides a lot of inner comfort to get out and dig in the ground in the spring. Something a man needs, probably an instinct left over from the days when it was necessary to raise a crop or stop eating. Our efforts are not directed at raising a crop, or even growing a blade of grass. In fact we'd rather not. But we do get stuck on "projects" which involve the moving of the good earth. Latest is a backyard leveling job with the ultimate plan to lay a patio of cedar blocks for the purpose of loafing in the shade in a practical surrounding.

After chipping away with a shovel and wrestling a heavy wheel barrow the urge to move fingers in soil quickly vanished. A small tractor with a blade and back hoe was called in to finish the projected grade. The Walter Mitty approach was used with our first moments finding us acting out the courageous pioneer whacking a home out of a wilderness. When the machine arrived we were quite ready and anxious to assume the role of the engineer and far-seeing empire builder who tamed the west with men and machine.

That the whole process of winning our west took a tractor less than an hour is beside the point. It was the planning and ground work that consumed the weeks since the idea appeared. Now there lies ahead the surveying of about a 55th of an acre of patio, laying enough blocks to cover it and finishing up with crushed rock or gravel to fill in the holes. That will take study, as to do the job properly we must line up a block putter-downer and a gravel intersperser. That, alone, could take all summer.

Viet Nam Chaplain Tells Of Combat Life

Navy Chaplain Eugene Smith of Snohomish, recently retired after spending eight months in the combat zone with a Marine Company in Viet Nam, spoke on his personal experiences at the high school Monday. He told of the hardships suffered by the soldiers in trying to survive in jungle heat and torrential rain while fighting an enemy generally unseen.

His work was in holding services and ministering to the men of his company on the firing line and in the hospitals. He went through Marine training with his men and followed them in their landings and in all their engagements.

A veteran of three wars in the navy, starting as seaman, he served in World War II, took time out afterward to become a minister, then went back to serve as chaplain in Korean and more recently in Viet Nam for eight months.

Following his talk to the students he lunched and talked to a group of interested citizens at the Legion clubrooms, then made another talk at Marblemount.

As long as public safety is related to mechanical factors, perhaps bottlers should do something about hard liquor. Alcoholism can be traced directly to loose bottle caps.

The proposed levy to buy a new city fire truck is only a stop-gap based on a possibility that the working agreement between the rural district and town department might be terminated. We think a long-range solution is possible and can be worked out with the district to the town's benefit. A heavy concentration of fire equipment under two separate organizations is a waste of taxpayer cash—no matter which area pays it.

Progress can be defined as giving up what you have now for what you think you will need to make you long for the days when things weren't hectic.

The so-called "student group" who cry for dropping all rules of morality, society and political stability for freedom of personal desires have yet to discover that the value of anything is how difficult it is to obtain. If all beach pebbles were diamonds, we'd treasure gray stone.

"PICKED UP ALONG THE WAY"

—By PASTOR ROY OLSON

"And when you stand praying, forgive, if you have ought against anyone; that your Father which is in Heaven may forgive you your trespasses. But if you do not forgive, neither will your Father which is in Heaven forgive your trespasses."

I picked this up from the Bible, a direct quote from Jesus Christ. And so, as I close out this series of columns on forgiveness, I address it squarely to people who lay claim to be Christians. It always has been and continues to be a deep mystery to me how people who claim to be Christians can continue to carry grudges. Not only does it give the lie to everything that has to do with the central theme of the Gospel, but in the face of what our Lord said, it spells suicide of the soul for the one who refuses to forgive. Let us not deceive ourselves about this. No amount of pious talk or hypocritical prayer will change it.

The poet Whittier gives us all food for thought in these poignant lines.

My heart was heavy, for its trust had been abused. Its kindness answered with foul wrong.

So, turning gloomily from my fellowmen.

One summer Sabbath day I strolled among

The green mounds of the village burial place.

Where, pondering how all human love and hate

Find one sad level and how, soon or late

Wronged and wrongdoer, each with meekened face

And cold hands folded over a still heart

Pass the green threshold of our common grave.

Whither all footsteps tend, whence none depart.

Awed for myself, and pitying my race.

Our common sorrow, like a mighty wave,

Swept all my pride away, and trembling I forgave.

There are some things that can wait for tomorrow. Forgiving cannot, unless you want to gamble with your soul.

Out of the five men, four raised their hands. The boss turned to the lone hold-out and barked, "Are you telling the truth? You haven't kissed her?"

"No, sir!" was the reply. "Fine," said the boss with relief, "You're the guy to tell her she is fired."

The bride was dressed in a gown of candlelight peau de soie, accented with pearl-encrusted Alencon lace on bodice and Alencon lace appliques on skirt and chapel length train. The silk illusion veil hung from a circlet of Alencon lace and pearls, which was designed and made by the bride. She carried a bouquet of white baby roses and stephanotis.

REPEAL OF TRAIN CREW LAW IS VITAL TO FARM PROSPERITY

You Can Help Change This Archaic 1911 State Law By Supporting Initiative 233

The cost of getting farm crops and livestock to market largely determines which farmers and which farm regions can compete. Despite the farmer's great dependence upon competitive shipping rates, our state has a train crew law that requires the railroads to hire unneeded men. At the end of this year, no other state in the West will have such a law. It costs over $4 million a year, and this expense is reflected in shipping to farmers.

Here's What Farmer Spokesmen Say About The Train Crew Law:

"If the train crew law were repealed, saving the railroads $4 million a year, it would create a climate that could result in the reduction of rates to growers."

DELT CLARK, President

Washington State Fruit Commission

"The railroads have gone to bare bones and cannot lower shipping rates for us. We have got to help them reduce operating costs if we are ever to get lower rates."

EUGENE A. PRINCE, President

Washington Association of Wheat Growers

"Rate reductions on corn, grain sorghum and soybean meal have saved Washington poultry and livestock farmers thousands of dollars. If the train crew law were repealed it would materially assist our industry efforts to obtain further rate reductions."

DALE SMITH, General Manager

Western Farmers Association
