

Feathers

from the Duster

By The Over-time Editor

BIRTHDAYS can be exhausting when you gather up enough mutual daters to prolong the observance. Like this past week when a number of our group had birthdays within the week. Three couples of us celebrated the first time on purpose; then the second time with a surprise party and finally another night just for the heck of it. We don't especially enjoy having birthdays as such, but when you can gather a crowd the milestone serves a purpose of making a lot of innocent people happy.

Best part of the whole thing is that on three occasions where it would have been legal, no one asked how old anyone was. That is true friendship.

A SHORT time ago we made a remark about the town passing an ordinance on mileage for wandering officials, and it was not too kindly received at the seat of government here. In fact, the ordinance is printed in this issue. My point still remains a sad one—how cheap has civic pride and duty become when it can be bought at 10c a mile.

I'm, of course, recalling that in quite a few years we have had dozen of citizens who put in long terms in local office without ever once considering it something to be paid for by piece-work scale. Actually thousands of dollars have been spent from private pockets to attend meetings and promote ideas of interest beneficial to the town or the valley. Some hooked on pride of being able to be a contributing member of society still continue blowing their own cash for community progress.

These are the folks who can be called upon in any emergency without fear of financial negotiation on overtime, postage and phone bills, gas and oil, or overtime hours. They are apparently a passing race. The new crop have dollar signs printed on their "do good" buttons.

If, in the future, we ever get to the point where nobody does anything for the place they live and hope to retire in, it will be because there is no treasury to pay for the inconvenience of being actively interested.

State Board Approves Skagit Park Site Swap

Plans for a new Skagit County park in the upper valley moved a step closer as an exchange of lands between the county and the state was approved by the Board of Natural Resources. The State Land Commission has announced approval of a land swap involving 120 acres of state-managed lands and 372 acres of land owned by Skagit County.

State Senator Peterson and the Skagit County commissioners asked for the exchange as part of a three-way swap to develop a county park. Skagit county will trade the 120 acres they acquired from the state for a park site presently under private ownership. The proposed park is near the Skagit river.

Under the exchange terms, the state will receive five separate tracts of county land. The difference in acreage totals reflect the difference in value of the property involved.

The trade is contingent upon the acquisition of the private land included in the park site.

ART, A NEW INDUSTRY FOR THE VALLEY?

Gregory Products, producers of cedar shakes, is now exploring the possibility of going into the wood-art business. Samples of their attractive wall decorations above are only two of over a dozen clever designs now being groomed for mass production.

The locally designed products are sawed from cedar plank, burned and burnished and then completed with brass wire, ceramic tile, etc. Designs include musical instruments, ships, animals, flower pots and other interesting objects. Tentative name for the line is "Sillo-Woods".

Several distributors have indicated interest in handling the line and the Gregorlys are now busy preparing extra samples and colored photos for promotion purposes.

They have already run into a minor hold-up—their friends have been buying the samples away from them about as fast as the two can make them.

C. H. S. HIGHLIGHTS

By Cindy Brown

Tuesday, March 7th, the girls of Concrete High School were called to the cafeteria for a general assembly at which one of the teachers from a beauty school spoke on the advantages of becoming a beautician. Linda Wenrich, a former student at our high school, also spoke on her work at the beauty school.

Wednesday, March 8th, all of the classes had monthly meetings. The Seniors discussed the class colors, class flower and motto. They agreed on the following: Burgandy and Pink; Pink Carnation; "Our Knowledge Will Light The Road To Our Future."

Ken Brown was nominated to read the Class Will at the Junior-Senior Banquet.

The Juniors discussed money-making ideas to raise funds for the banquet. They also appointed committees and talked over preparations.

The Sophomores talked about the basketball game between the Redhead Girl's team and the school faculty, which they will sponsor on April 3rd at the gym.

At this time we do not know what was discussed at the Freshman meeting.

Thursday, March 9th, there were Girl's and Boy's Club meetings. The girls discussed their Mother-Daughter Tea and members were appointed to collect the money for corsages; and committees were appointed for Tea preparations. The president handed out candy "Polywogs" which are to be sold this year.

Friday night, the high school gym was the scene of the annual GAA Tolo. The dance lasted from 9:00 to midnight. Because the girls asked the boys to the dance, each couple seemed to match perfectly. The Brandymen from LaConner were the great sound you heard if you happened to pass the high school when the dance was on. The music was really "groovy" and everyone enjoyed the band.

"A History of The Upper Skagit Valley, 1880-1924"

BY PAUL C. PITZER

CHAPTER FOUR CITY LIGHT AND THE DAM AT GORGE CREEK

In April, 1921, the camp had so many residents that the Bellingham Presbytery sent in a logging camp missionary named L. H. Peterson, a down-to-earth minister who preferred the name 'Parson Pete.' Peterson organized a number of social and church events and he published a one-page mimeographed newspaper called "Fits and Starts" which printed local gossip, announcements of picnics, social events, church services spiritual messages and frequent invitations to the men to attend Sunday services.

Some residents of the camp favored naming the community Goodell. Others advocated Newhalem. The debate continued into the summer of 1921. During the summer college students were hired by the city to work on the project. Two of the students obtained a sizeable plank from the sawmill and printed "Welcome To Newhalem" on it with roofing tar. The sign was placed at the entrance to the camp and the event was timed to correspond with a visit by a delegation of City officials. After 1921 the camp has always been called Camp Newhalem.

After August 16, 1921, when the Newhalem Powerhouse was completed, each house in Newhalem was allowed four lights; one in the kitchen, one in the shed outside, and two in the living room. At that time there were approximately one thousand people in the camp and many lived in tents which were removed after completion of the project.

In March, 1921, the railroad reached Newhalem Camp and in April Grant Smith Company was awarded a $94,932 contract to extend the railroad two and a half miles to Gorge Creek. By August the railroad reached the Devil's Corner and work began on a bridge to carry the track to the south side of the river. The bridge was called the Devil's Elbow Bridge, in part after the name of the old corner on the mining trail and in part because at each approach to the bridge there was a sharp curve. The City purchased a World War I surplus gasoline motor car with a twenty-five passenger capacity, a three truck rail flat car and a ten-ton flat car trailer were also purchased. Three electric engines were purchased in 1921 and 1922; the railroad from Goodell Creek to Gorge Creek was electrified. A rotary unit was added to the Newhalem Powerhouse to convert alternating current to direct current for use by the railroad.

On October 24, 1921, the R. C. Storrie Company of San Francisco was awarded a contract to build the Gorge Power Tunnel on their $2,203,865 bid. Storrie immediately built a bunkhouse in Newhalem and began work on his project. His equipment included a narrow gauge railroad. The city had standard gauge facilities, so Storrie merely added a third rail between those of the City's. Most of the railroad was a single track system with few sidings and cooperation was necessary to keep the City, Storrie, and Grant Smith from experiencing difficulties. Furthermore the railroad was not yet completed to Gorge Creek and this delayed Storrie because plans called for the tunnel to be dug from each end and from the middle toward each end, using a total of four headings. A 1,300 foot central exit at the Devil's Elbow Bridge gave access for the central tunneling. Large air compressors were placed near the Storrie bunkhouse in Newhalem and an eight-inch pipe carried compressed air to the jack hammers two miles away at Gorge Creek.

In December, 1921, shortly after the railroad was completed floods washed out part of it. Other sections of the right-of-way were covered with as much as ten feet of mud. The Skagit River Railroad was a frequent victim of washouts and slides of both mud and snow. Uhden claimed that completion of the two or three dams on the Skagit would end such floods in the future.

"PICKED UP ALONG THE WAY"

—By PASTOR ROY OLSON

"Men may be convinced but they cannot be pleased against their will."

There is a cute little anecdote about a little boy who has been arguing with his mother. The time came when the mother felt that the argument should come to an end. So she took her little son by the shoulders, backed him into a corner and sat him down—hard. As she did so, she said, with real emphasis, "Now sit there!" The tiny tad glared up at his mom and said, with such emphasis as a tiny tad can muster, "Alright Mom, but I'm still standing up inside!"

So it has ever been, so it is, and so it will ever be. "Convince a man against his will and he is of the same opinion still." There are times when emergency situations demand that men shall be coerced into acting in certain ways, but when the emergency is over, look out. Then comes the backlash.

In whatever area an attempt is made to get men to act in a certain way or do certain things, it is only when the mind has been changed that permanent good can come from it. Any other way can only result in a house divided against itself.

This is a hard lesson to learn for the man who knows all the answers and insists that every man shall accept the answers as he sees them, or else. Religion has paid a terrible price in history at the hands of leaders like this. Paul was smart. When he had finished his calm, reasoned argument for the truth of the Christian faith, King Agrippa said, "Paul, almost you persuade me to be a Christian."

That's it, persuasion! That may well include telling people some hard truths, but telling hard truths depends for effectiveness on the kind of coating they are given. The kind of coating is what makes a bitter pill hard or easy to swallow.

Newhalem Rifle Club

The Newhalem Junior Rifle team placed second in the State Junior Rifle Competition at Tacoma. The first place team had a score of 1106. The Newhalem team had 1102. The team members are Linda Vance, Jerry Harrison, Chuck Drake and Bob Smart.

At the March 8th meeting details of the award banquet were discussed. It was decided that it would be held March 24th at Currier Hall. Everyone should try to be there at 6:30 p.m. Charles Stroud and Wilma Vance are in charge of the banquet committee.

Charles Stroud also brought up the need for writing letters to our representatives against anti-gun laws. Charles Stroud and Marty Turnbull both have lists of the people the letters should be sent to with their addresses.

Mathematics is getting beyond the common man, what with computers and steel-tape memories. Seems the logical step now would be to concentrate on language as a defensive science. The assault on the home of words and phrases designed to rid you of all surplus cash and get you to sign your future for created desire needs a combating force. Start 'em in the first grade reading and understanding can labels. Then work up through sales slogans, sucker pitches and hard sell. End up high school with courses in fine print contracts and un-simple interest. College could be directed toward advanced sales resistance with bachelor of arts degrees in saying "No."

Money trouble for Congressman seems to be an occupational disease. They spend any they can get their hands on privately like it was ours.

Clean-up week will be coming along soon in the community. Already our Junior Women are sizing up the town like a wives planning a husband selling job on new curtains and drapes. A casual eye-ball survey would indicate that what we need the most to get Concrete out of its growing shun-like appearance is an old-time pest-house burning. The pests being the many vacant and no longer liveable houses. Consent of the owner is all that is required. In return they get a saleable vacant lot on which someone can make a fresh start.

Heard In The Lube Room:

DUAL PART

It seems that, occasionally, duels still take place in Italy. On a recent evening, the desk clerk at a Rome police station got an excited telephone call from a man who said that a duel was to take place the following morning and that the police ought to stop it.

As the caller started to give the time and location of the duel, the policeman interrupted, laughed and said, "We know about it. The other 'duelist' already called us."

Cascade River Park

For the month of March so far the weather has been like spring. The property owners here have spring fever I guess. The smoke signals were sure going up and could be seen from the Teepee on the hill. The Nelsons were busy the first part of the week with smoke signals and did some more paneling inside their cabin. The Robinsons found time to break away from the busy pace in the city and spent a couple days camping at their favorite spot. The Stantons spent a couple of days brushing and doing some work on their cabin.

Mrs. Krogh came in and had fun burning brush on her lot in hopes of getting a cabin this summer. The J. C. Campbells spent the week end relaxing and enjoying the beautiful weather. The Barnhills were busy brushing out their property but had to leave early and go to Bellingham. Welcome to the W. E. Hosea's as property owners at C.R.P. They purchased the Durham property and plan a trailer or cabin soon. The Scotts were busy sending up smoke signals. Helen Scott says there isn't anything that tastes better than pies or baked potatoes from a wood stove.

The Jerry Dills were in checking their lot and making plans to clear it. The Halleys were in for the day and are making plans to spend sometime here this summer. The McNivens were busy landscaping and sending up smoke signals. The Edens have spring fever for sure. They were busy planting rose bushes and clearing a spot for their septic tank. The Russell Stevens stopped by to find out if they too could burn. Smitty had the chain saw buzzing, clearing out a spot for their septic tank. The Harps had as guests, Mrs. Harp's niece and family.

The Owens and Padgetts were busy working on their cabin. The Kantzers were busy burning brush and picnicking at their favorite spot. The Olsons were checking their lot and plan to bring in their trailer soon. The Snyders were planning a spot for their septic tank. Glen and Doris Stevenson were burning leaves and reported all their lilacs were growing. Janie and Jill Harkoff were visitors at the Park one Sunday afternoon. The Thurstons were seen clearing and cleaning around their trailer.
